FOUR WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MEN IN A CIVIL SUIT.

John L. Hull Opposes Payment of a Chester M. Butt's Note on the Ground That He Was Simply an Accommodation Endorser-Three Victims of Trolley Accident at Archbald Bring Suit Against the Scranton Railway Company-Sheriff's Deeds Acknowledged.

Four of Scranton's well-known business men, from what is commonly termed the wholesale block, are parties to an interesting civil suit called for trial in common pleas before Judge Edwards yesterday. David Spruks is plaintiff and is represented by Attorney George D. Taylor. The defendant is John L. Hull and his attorney is A. J. Colborn, jr.

The suit is brought to recover on note of $111.59. In 1896 the defendant opened an account with Spruks, who s a wholesale grocer. The goods he purchased were, he said, for a store of which he was proprietor and which was to be conducted by E. W. Palmer as his agent. From time to tim goods were delivered to Palmer's store and charged to Hull. At the time of the last sale Spruks had delivered $702.90 worth of goods and had received payments aggregating $591.46. Chester M. Butts at this time took the store and gave to Spruks a note for the balance owing, $111.50. Hull signed the note and Spruks also endorsed it. Butts having failed to meet it when it became due, Spruks brought suit to recover from Hull. The latter defends on the ground that he was an accommodation endorser and that he was relieved from responsibility for the debt of his agent, Palmer, by Spruks' action in accepting Butts as new surety. The case of L. R. Evans against the city of Scranton and others was on all day before Judge Kelly and will likely consume most of today. The bulk of the testimony, yesterday, bore on the question of values. City Solicitor Vosburg made a motion to have the case non-suited as far as it was directed against the city, but Judge Kelly thought the better practice would be to await the conclusion of the testimony and ask for binding instructions. In the case of E. Mulligan's Sons against Michael Gooch a verdict for

The two women were in delicate condition and serious complications may result from their injuries.

THE HUMAN PUNCHING BAG

Ed. Dunkhorst, the Syracuse Giant Has a Kick Coming Over His Treatment in This City.

The trials and tribulations of a second-rate prize-fighter are sometimes more serious and painful than the blows of Champion James J. Jeffries This fact was forcibly illustrated yesterday in the case of Ed Dunkhorst "the human punching bag," or better known as "the human freight car."

After weeks of severe punishment and humiliation at the hands of Jeffries, to whom Dunkhorst has been playing the under dog, and incidentally suffering the jeers and taunts of spectators on ball fields and in theaters, the Syracuse giant received what he sportively terms "the first t'row down I ever got in me life." It all came about in the following man-

Dunkhorst arrived in Scranton about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, and Acting Manager Cook immediately sent him to the Academy of Music to take tickets at the door. This he did without a murmur. When Jeffries reached the theater, Dunk went behind the and for three rounds performed the remarkable feat of not hitting the champion at all (as that is against the rules), while Jeff made him look like a lobster after the bones are picked.

He even suffered a "leak at de nose," he says, and "took, me medicine like a t'oroughbred," and would even do nore for the champion, whom he considers "de tines' feller in de bus'ness," but his kick was registered after all that occurred. Cook informed Dunkhorst that it would be impossible for him to stop at the Jermyn, as the accommodations were limited, and it was necessary for the clerks to place cots in Jeffries' room to accommodate himself and Ross O'Neill, the announcer and referee. Right here is where the man who took $2,600 for being knocked out by Beb Fitzsimmons in two rounds feit himself humiliated before all "dose actors in de show," as he expressed himself to The Tribune man. Without even a carriage or the suggestion of a hotel, Dunkhorst alleges that Cook sent him out in the rain to find shelter as best he could. After wandering around for several hours. during which time he met many convivial well-wishers and sympathizers, who are always bent on drowning their sorrows, the ill-fated pugilist found refuge in the Rudolph.

Jeffries was scheduled to leave at 8.26 a. m. and his sparring partner was also on the card for an exhibition at Reading in the afternoon, but he failed to leave a call with the clerk, and when he awoke it was too late to even think of catching a train for

New York, where Jeffries gives an exhibition tonight. There were tears in his eyes and tremor in his voice as he bid the reporter good-bye, promising to "show Cook up" before Billy Brady and tell his troubles to all the yellow journals before morning.

THE FIRST DEGREE

JURY WAS OUT FIFTEEN DAYS

It Stood Eleven to One From the Beginning of the Balloting-The One Man Was the Foreman, F. A. B. Koons, of Huntington Township, Who Was of the Opinion That Lutz Was Insane at the Time He Committed the Terrible Crime of Which He Has Been Convicted.

After deliberating for fifteen days and four hours the jury in the Latmurder case came into court at Wilkes Barre yesterday afternoon and ren dered their verdict, finding Lutz guilty of murder in the first degree. A good deal of interest was excited in the case, owing to the long time occupied by the jury in reaching a verdlet. With one exception this is the longest time a jury has ever been out on a murder a jury has ever been out on a murder case in Luzerne county.

The exception was in 1861, when Henry W. Palmer was clerk of the courts. A juror became sick and his fellow jurymen were compelled to re-main near him for 30 days. The verdict in the Lutz case has been anxiously awaited, and when the jury came in at 4.05 yesterday afternoon there was a large crowd in at-Every juror answered "guilty of murder in the first degree." Since the jury first went out the vote polled showed ten for conviction and wo for insanity. A few days ago. however, one man was won over and the vote then stood eleven to one in favor of conviction. Recently the jurors came out for dinner at the Exchange hotel, eleven of them were noticed to have a bow of baby ribbon in a button hole on their coats. The one juror without a ribbon was Foreman F. A. B. Koons, giving the impression that Koons was the one holding out for insanity, and when the verdict of each juror was polled this afternoon it was shown that he was the man that had hung up the jury so

WANTED TO SPEAK

When Mr. Koens' name was called by the court yesterday afternoon he started to make a speech in justification of his action, saying he signed the verdict under protest, that he believed Lutz did not know what he was doing at the time. Judge Halsey, however, interrupted him, and asked him what his verdict was, to which he replied, "guilty of murder in the first degree."

The crime for which John Lutz, was found guilty was one of the most horrible ever committed in Luzerne county. Lutz, with his wife and family of four children, lived in a neat little home in West Pittston. On the night of Nov. 28, 1899. Lutz and his wife had a slight quarrel. The mother and her children went upstairs to bed. About 12 o'clock Lutz quietly sneaked up the stairs and into the room in which his wife lay in bed asleep with one child by her side and another in a crib by the bed.

a crib by the bed. With the sharp edge of a longhandled axe Lutz struck his sleeping wife several blows, cleaving her skull. Her hand was also split open, evidently as she raised it to ward off a blow. Lutz then stepped into the nex room and attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a pocket-knife. The first intimation that a crime had been committed was when the little daughter in bed with her mother awoke and found herself lying in a pool of blood and her mother moaning.

Mrs. Lutz lingered between life and death for three days. Lutz was arrested and quickly recovered from his
