

EVENTS OF DAY IN WEST SCRANTON

FLOWER THIEVES AT WASHBURN STREET CEMETERY.

Graves Decorated Recently Have Been Shorn of Their Beauty by Vandals Who Pass in the Night. Temperance Societies Will Entertain—Weekly School Deposits at West Side Bank—Singing Festival To-morrow—Mrs. Corey Injured—Other News Notes.

Many people who visited Washburn street cemetery yesterday were horrified when they discovered that the flowers placed on the graves of departed ones Saturday and Sunday had been stolen and in some instances placed on other graves. This practice has been reported before, and in one case the ribbons from a bouquet of flowers were removed a few hours after a body was interred.

Such despicable conduct seems hardly possible, but such is the case, and before any more acts of this kind are reported it would be well for the cemetery association to place an additional watchman on the premises today and tomorrow to see to it that this nefarious work is not carried on this year as it was last Memorial Day.

The cemetery has been beautified in many ways and now presents an attractive appearance, and those who attend the memorial services within the enclosure tomorrow will be surprised to note that there is not a scrap of ground in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Many handsome monuments have been erected and the drives and walks are in excellent shape.

AFTERMATH OF THE FIRE.

The origin of Sunday night's fire is still a mystery, and it is the general belief that the flames were of incendiary origin. There was no fire in either building, and Mr. Carson is of the opinion that the dastardly work was done by a fire bug. The loss will amount to about $2,500 on the building alone, and this is only partially covered by insurance. A quantity of hay and feed, owned by Carson & Bender, the grocers, was also destroyed, the loss not having been estimated as yet.

The damage to the Plymouth church is covered by insurance in companies represented by Daniel J. Evans, and the Grand Union Tea company's loss will figure up to about $300.

PHILADELPHIA HORSE SHOW.

Ninth Annual Open Air Exhibition Opened Yesterday. Philadelphia, May 28.—The ninth annual open-air exhibition of the Philadelphia Horse Show association opened today on St. Martin's green, Wissahickon Heights, under the most favorable conditions. The weather was perfect, and society was well represented at the opening hour. The gowns and millinery of the women combined to make an exhibit of their own and interest was divided between beauty and the beast.

The floral display about the exhibition grounds is gorgeous, every available nook and corner containing its quota of rich blooms. The stables are full to overflowing with the finest specimens of horse flesh that the country contains, and probably the finest ever gathered at any exhibition. The most beautiful specimens of pheston, brabes and of every description that human skill can devise are everywhere to be seen. The spacious stables and sheds cannot hold all. Some of the exhibitors arriving on yesterday's special trains from New York were compelled to throw themselves upon the hospitality of the neighbors to obtain their barns and wagonboxes to shelter their exhibits.

The show will continue six days. There are eighty-eight classes and prizes, aggregating $15,000. The opening programme was the exercise of stallions, following which came the preliminary contests in the jumping class,
