ST. LEO'S GLEE CLUB ENTER-TAINMENT AND SOCIAL.

Attended by a Small Assemblage in Mears' Hall-United Church Choirs Render Congregational Hymns in Welsh C. M. Church-Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Celebrate Wedding Anniversary-Masonic Funeral at Blakely-Other Funerals Yesterday-News Notes.

A double disappointment occurred to St. Leo's Glee club in Mears' hall last ticipants failed to materialize, and when the attendance was anything but encouraging. The programme as given, however, merited the applause received, and what enjoyment was lacking in the entertainment was fully made up in the social which followed.

John H. Devine was chairman of the evening, and seated on the stage were a dozen members of the Glee club in full evening dress. The stage settings were entirely new and much admired by the patrons. New scenery was in evidence and the furniture and curtains were especially secured for the occasion. The Glee club sang three numbers and showed much improvement since their last public appear-

Miss Kate Reardon played three plane selections and also furnished the music for dancing. Will F. Burke, the song writer and comedian, gave a clever monologue, which was very well received. Miss Anna Scanlon, one of the most promising of the younger soloists in the city, sang "This Is My Dream of You," and received an encore, which showed that her effort was appreciated. She was accompanied by Miss Mame Cavanaugh.

John Shaughnessy sang a solo in his usual clever manner, and the Glee club closed the entertainment with an excellent rendition of "Farewell." club contains some splendid material and under the direction of Prof. John T. Mr. Morgan Williams, of 550 North Hyde Park avenue, employed as a miner at the Hyde Park mines, who says: "I had for one year off and on charp pains across my kidneys. If I stooped it hurt me so that I almost yelled from pain and when I went to straighten the sharp pains in my back were very severe. I mentioned my condition to a friend, who advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills, saying that they were the best remedy that he had heard of. out and take it. A people which has done so much and has taken advantage of so many chances will surely not fall to reap for its commerce the benefits which it has earned by its bravery. The possession of the Philippine Islands brings the United States close up to the greatest markets in the worldmarkets which have only just begun to be developed, but which have already shown a capacity for development that a great commercial people will understand. There are many millions of people in China, and they are ready to buy from other nations the things which they can use. Some in America seem to think that the Chinese now manufacture practically all that is sufficient for their own needs. Far from it. Of course, it is true that for centuries before China was open to foreign trade its people made the goods they used, and this seemed sufficient; but now China is open to fore-gn trade, and manufactured goods come from America and Europe. We buy them readily. America can sell us goods more cheaply than our people could manufacture them. This is true especially of cotton cloth. That which we manufacture ourselves we weave with our own hands, and it is very durable; but the American product is very fine in comparison, and now it has come to be in common use with us. In some parts of the empire American and English cottons have taken almost entirely the place of our native manufacture. With finer dresses, silks, and that sort of thing, it is not yet true; but with cheaper articles it is.

China takes kindly to improvements. We have not only the railroad, but the telegraph and the telephone. The telegraph lines extend throughout the length and breadth of China. There is not a province now without the tele-The first cable in China was laid by the Danish company, and our principal telegraph company is now superintended by a Danish engineer. The first telegraph company was organized by an official named Sheng Hsuan Hual, commonly known as Sheng Taotal. He induced Chinese merchants to subscribe and built the line under government protection. The line extended from Tientsin for a short distance; then it was continued to Shanghai; then to Peking, and ec branched out from north to south from east to west. This was twenty private enterprise under government control, with Danish operatives, in the ritory. With the railroad, the telegraph, the telephone, and a great population thickly settling a vast extent of territory, the to sitend the normal school at Strongblurg this future possibilities of the Chinese trade must appeal to the commercial instincts of the United States. With a foothold in the Philippines, America will have a great advantage over other nations which lack possessions in that part of the world.
