Thomas Watkins, a young boy, was caught in the act of stealing fruit from E. G. Coursen's grocery stors, on Lackawanna avenue, yesterday atterneon. He was taken in charge by Patrolman Potter and was removed to the central police station. He will be given a hearing in police court this morning, at which Mr. Coursen will appear against him.

George Coffee an' Guiseppo Guaglamo were arrested Thursday night by Patrolmen Day and Frency and taken to the Center street police gan in a Lackawanna avenue saloon and might have had serious results had it not been nipped in the bud by the two patrolmen. One of the men had a rance in his hip pocket and the other a revolver, and after being arrested one of them made a move to draw his weapon. A sourd party was also involved in the quarrel. He had drawn his razor and made a slash at the side of one of the other men. The short blade cut the cloth on his trousers and broke on the colver in his pocket. He escaped the police. The two prisoners were fined $5 apieco.

INJURED AT THE COURT HOUSE BRIBERY CASES TO Sad Result of a Cruel Joke or Vicious Lie.

Some cruel joker or victous-minded person is responsible for a very sad accident of yesterday. Mrs. Fred L. Weimer, of Dunmore, is a frail-looking, gray-haired woman fully sixty years of age. Her husband was committed to the county jail by Alderman Balley May 14 last, for making threats to switch a neighbor's child. Yesterday some person told Mrs. Weimer that her husband had a woman in jail with him and she being ignorant of the conduct of prisons belleved it, and proceeded to the fall to berate her supposed unfaithful spouse.

At the jail she learned that a pass was necessary and being too poor to pay car fare, walked to the court house. Nervousness and exhaustion combined to undermine what little strength she possessed, and as she was ascending the steps at the Washington avenue entrance to the court houe she suddenly collapsed and falling backwards struck on the sharp edge of one of the steps and rolled unconscious to the bottom, sustaining an ugly gash in the back of the

She was carried into the arbitratenderly cared for. Dr. Myles F. Gibbons was summoned and after examining the wound directed that she be sent to the Lackawanna hospital. The ambulance was summoned and was discovered and she will likely be Mrs. Weimer has no friends to help her and was compelled to work as a scrub woman since her husband was incarcerated.

WERE AFTER FORGER.

Vincenzo Fiengo Forged the Name of James Pelogyi to a Money Order and Got the Money.

The facts in a successful forgery case, which took place in this city in January last, have just been made pub-He, now that an unsuccessful attempt to catch the forger has been made. It appears that on January 27, last, Vincenzo Fiengo forged the name of one, James Pelagyi, who lived in the same house with him, to a money der drawn in favor of the latter and cashed it at the local office. The forgery was not noticed until a few weeks later, when Pelagyi reported that the order had been stolen by Fiengo. The case was put into the hands of Postoffice Inspector Gorman, who recently located Finego in Westfield, N. J. Last week Inspector Gorman, accompanied by Deputy United States Marshal Burns, of Jersey City, went his arrest. Not knowing Fiengo, a registered letter was written to him and the usual notice to call for the letter and receipt for it was sent out.

The two officers waited around the postoffice and that afternoon two Italians appeared. The registry clerk had difficulty in making them understand English, and finally one of them went out, ostensibly for an interpreter. The other remained for some time and, finally becoming nervous, started to leave but was arrested.

It now transpires that the one who went out for an interpreter was Flengo, who became suspicious when he entered the office. The man arrested gave his name as Guiseppe De Felice, and a federal grand jury on the charge of interfering with a United States marshal in the discharge of his duty.

NO SPECIAL GRAND JURY WILL BE SUMMONED.

Upon Learning That a Special Grand after; not pleasant to meet the occa-Jury Brings with It a Special Term of Court, the Idea Was Given Up. Mr. Sturges Makes Reply to the Criticism on His Action in the Pave Matter and Incidently Says Some Very Interesting Things About City Affairs in General.

There will be no special grand jury Attorneys James H. Torrey and F. E. Beers, of counsel for the Municipal league, advised the prosecuting committee that if a special grand jury is summoned a special term of court must also be held, and as this would mean sessions in July and August and consequent hardships on the court officials and attaches, it was decided to tion room by several bystanders and forego the petition for a special jury and await the regular sitting in September.

An interesting letter from E. B. Sturges, in answer to the criticism made by the Times of his movement she was taken thither. No fracture to escape payment on a technicality of his assessment for the North Wash ington avenue pavement, was made public yesterday.

He goes on to explain that he paid the first three or four annual instalments and then, when the defective nature of the job began to develop, he withheld further payment until the asphalt company should make good its contract. Despite the written protests of every property holder along the line of the improvement, councils surrendered the bond given by the company to insure a faithful performance of the contract and repairs for five years.

Then Mr. Sturges took advantage of a technical error in the liens and prevented their enforcement. Other property holders did likewise, and the value of the pavement bonds, in consequence, is decreased very materially. He says: "I have never said I would not pay this assessment. In fact, I always told my attorneys and others that I should do so, voluntarily, but not until amply assured that this great expenditure for public improvement would not be thrown away, either by individual owners or by the city.

DISLIKES BEING DRIVEN. "Like most men, I don't like to be driven when I am right. When this suit comes on, I shall try to secure the decision to which my attorneys advise me I am entitled. Then, as has alto Westfield, armed with a warant for ways been intended, if proper assurances and fair treatment be given to me and the city, I shall try not to be 'inconsistent with my record.' My counsel say that the loss would, as hereinbefore shown, not fall on the city in any event, but upon the paving contractors. If such is the case, their chances for collecting the balance will not be one bit improved, either by unfounded suits or newspaper attacks." Referring to the campaign against corruption, Mr. Sturges says: "When the Suburban rallway franchise was granted there was not a suggestion of any desire for personal advantage from any councilman. Up to the time we sold the roads (at their exact cost in hard cash, with interest, has been held to await the action of let me say to enlighten those who believe I became rich from these sales), I do not remember that we were ever asked by any city father even for a arilla.

"A little later one or two corrupt men crept in, and as temptation arose and impunity emboldened, the cancer grew until a regular band of two-thirds of each body held office almost solely and absolutely as a means for private gain. Think of the shame of it! At least twenty-eight boodlers, of greater or less degree of guilt, out of forty-two councilmen sworn to faithfully guard the interests of this great city, with two or three more that would surrender their honesty and manhood when occasion required and the bait especfally tempting.

"If any of the interested parties doubt our ability to prove it, let them have a little patience. Or, if in haste, they know my address, and that of at least a few others of the 'Municipal league,' who are just as much in earnest as Teachers' Committe Visita Ten More myself. In either case they will probably find that the elaborate cultivation of at least one jury commissioner and of certain prospective jurymen, already begun, may prove a boomerang.

FEW HAVE STOOD HONEST. "There are a few men who at great personal sacrifice have stood honest and true all the time. All honor to them. God willing, we'll give them plenty of company, by and by, of their own kind. And there are a few honest officeholders besides in city and county. In the police force are many men as manly and ready to do their duty, if permitted, as any that ever wore a 37 50 uniform. Of some other officials the less said the better. To put it mildly, while their duties have been neglected vice and immorality have run rampant and wide open. Things that have occurred in our city would have made Sodomites blush. I believe that more young men than are found in all our churches have been needlessly led into temptation and have been accompanied on the road to ruin very often by young women. In this, and for this,

The second chapter in the case of Miss Mary Ogorozak, who is detained at the West Side hospital, charged with killing her infant child, the circumstances of which were fully related in The Tribune yesterday, was enacted last evening, when the woman made a sworn affidavit before Alderman John P. According to the statement made by the woman she arrived in this city seven months ago and secured employment at Oram's place. Two days after her engagement, she alleges, Mossach entered her room in the house and criminally assaulted her. When she made known her condition to him he procured medicine and compelled her to take It.

AUNT THE PROSECUTRIX. When the circumstances in connection with the case were revealed to Constables Jake Ellman and George Davis at the coroner's inquest, they immediately set to work to locate the party responsible for the woman's downfall. After diligent search an aunt of the Ogorozak woman was found at 318 Gibson street in the person of Mrs. Sarah Keirvin, to whom the unfortunate woman had told her troubles during a recent visit.

Mrs. Keirvin identified Mossach as the responsible person and agreed to become the prosecutrix in the case. A warrant was accordingly issued by Alderman Kelly after the testimony of the Ogorozak woman was taken at the hospital, and the man was found at Oram's place. He was arraigned before the alderman last night and committed to the county jail in default of $2,000 bail. There are three charges against him.
