CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES.
It Was Prepared by Rev. Dr. Pierce of This City.
The American Baptist Publication society, of Philadelphia, has just published the new Children's Day Sunday School Services, prepared by Rev. R. F. Pierce, D. D., pastor of the Penn Avenue church of this city. This particular service was arranged for the Publication society's missionary work and is to be used in the Baptist Sunday schools throughout the United States and Canada. Arrangements are in progress to have the service presented at most of the Baptist Sunday schools in this city next Sunday. Mr. Pierce is an exceedingly busy man, having the pastoral care of one of the largest churches of the state, but he finds time to give attention to many departments of literary and general religious work in addition to his multiplied services in the church. As an author of several works and a regular contributor to various religious periodicals and magazines he is widely known outside his denomination. As a lecturer he is in constant demand, particularly at the international conventions of young people of all denominations.

FRANK SCOUTEN A HERO.
Saved Two Children From a Terrible Death at Parsons.
Frank Scouten, a lumber dealer who lives at Parsons, performed a deed of daring heroism at that place yesterday morning.

The press on the Delaware and Hudson road going to Wilkes-Barre, which makes no stop at Parsons, was approaching the station at a high rate of speed when two little girls walked on the track a few feet north of the station. They took no notice of the approaching train and in an instant would have been run down had not Scouten jumped onto the track and with marvelous quickness grabbed the children, one with each hand, and swung them from the ground jumping backward. He just cleared the track as the engine whizzed by, the cylinders brushing along his vest. He was unharmed as were the children. The girls were daughters of John Barr, of Parsons, and were 5 and 6 years of age respectively.

VERY LIVELY TILT.
Occurred in a Penn Avenue Quick Lunch Restaurant.
Considerable excitement was caused on Penn avenue early this morning by a row in Burros' quick lunch restaurant at Penn avenue and Linden street. A negro customer and the night clerk, a youth known as "Denny," had an altercation, which resulted in the manipulator of the frying pan and griddle picking up a salt cellar and hurling it at the customer. The Ethiopian took it on the fly and gave it back at the clerk. It missed him, but he took a window, and for a time there was a general row.

FINLEY—O'MALLEY NUPITALS.
Well Known Merchant Marries Miss Mary O'Malley.

ADDRESS ON THE GENERAL CONFERENCE GIVEN BY G. F. REYNOLDS, ONE OF THE DELEGATES.

He Said It May Properly Be Termed a Revolutionary Conference, but for the Most Part the Outcome of the Deliberations Was Wise and Good and Will Probably Be Helpful to the Church—Legislation in the Interest of Women That Was Considered.

G. F. Reynolds, a delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Chicago, gave an address at the prayer meeting in Elgin Park church last night before a very large audience. Mr. Reynolds said, in part:

One of the penalties, I may say, which comes to you for sending a delegate to the general conference is that you are bound to be a conscientious discharge of one's whole duty is always gratifying, but those who witness the process may find it a little trying. The general conference is, as you know, the great law-making body of the Methodist Episcopal church, and is held every four years, each session being presided over by one of the general superintendents. When last year Wesley his adherents numbered only 110,000. The conference just held at Chicago represented a church with 2,700,000 communicants. Just a word concerning the great city of the west. It has had a marvelous growth, springing from less than 5,000 in 1840 to its present population of nearly two millions. The main reason for this is the great and fertile valley on the great eastern and western coasts. Substantially every acre of the soil is under cultivation. The great cities are prominent features of the west. Material property and population are increasing at a rapid rate. The mayor's representative, in his address of welcome, remarked that the city authorities did not deem it necessary to increase the police force by reason of the increase in crime, Albeit he had dropped in on some sessions he naturally would have thought that a power greater than the prevailing officer's was needed to preserve order. About 700 delegates were in attendance.

The general conference just closed may properly be called a revolutionary one. Those of you who are familiar with the old discipline may not be able to recognize the new one when it shall be edited, containing all the additions, alterations and amendments enacted; but if it will be the record of the time, permit me to say that the covers remain the same as heretofore.

WERE WISE AND GOOD.

For the most part the outcome of the deliberations was wise and good, and will probably be helpful to the church. It was not so legislated into heaven, but sign boards here and there may greatly assist him—even when painted by human hands—in reaching the celestial city.

For the first time in all the history of the church lay representation equalled the clerical, all of the provisional delegates elected being laymen. This was a very wise and judicious action made possible by the graceful withdrawal of Mrs. McMahan, of Griggsville, Ill., who made quite as famous as the widow whose cow kicked the clergyman who caused the great configuration of Chicago in 1871. The Episcopal address was by far the most interesting and instructive paper presented to the conference. It was a paper of length, although it consumed about two hours in reading. The document was read by Bishop Andrews, by whom it was said to have been prepared. The spirit pervaded that it was one of the ablest episcopal addresses ever written.

To equal lay representation may be ascribed, some at least, of the radical change effected. It was sought to adopt business methods, particularly in carrying forward the great benevolent enterprise of the church.

One secretary and one assistant were elected to take charge of these societies, with the exception of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Societies, which were coordinated power, were chosen; and this it is thought that greater efficiency would result in administering those important branches of Christian work. Perhaps the greatest change effected during the sessions was the removal of one of the distinctive features of Methodism—the time limit, referring to which the Rev. Dr. Nicholas, of the same denomination, in a very able manner the fraternal greetings of the Presbytery general assembly then in session at St. Louis, intimated that we were thereby getting nearer and nearer the Presbyterians.

THE TIME LIMIT.
I do not think, however, that the removal of the time limit will result in materially lengthening the pastoral term, for few men only are competent to maintain themselves in one place for a longer period than five years. We, of the Elm Park church, are thankful that the work of the man of one of these is our honored and greatly beloved pastor, Dr. Giffin; and we count ourselves exceedingly fortunate in having the right man at the right time, and if agreeable to him, are sure he need not look for new fields and pastures green for a long time to come.

The legislation was not all in the interest of men; women received their full share. By a pronounced vote the eligibility of women to various offices of the church was passed, and subject to approval by a two-thirds vote at the annual conference. So we shall expect to see, possibly in the next general conference, women struggling for the floor, rising to points of order, and moving the previous question; which we trust she may do with more ease and grace than was witnessed during the recent sessions.

A stormy debate ensued on paragraph 218 relating to amendments, and by a small majority no change was made therein.

The reports of the general conference were listened to with profound interest. Bishop Thoburn, who reported for Southern Asia and Malaysia spoke of the terrible famine now raging in India, and how the great work of the missionaries. Said, moreover, that we are stronger today in all the essential elements of strength than we have ever before. Our Methodist membership numbering 11,000,000 souls. Bishop Thoburn made a request for two additional missionary bishops in his field, and proposed a substantial reduction of salaries, beginning with his own. Ministers and Christian workers in common with people generally, are usually anxious about an advance in salary, not a reduction, and this proposition of Bishop Thoburn's, which is of a disinterested nature, sacrificing spirit of this consecrated man.

From Bishop Hartzell's report I quote encouraging words:

EXPECTS TO SECURE LITTLE'S RELEASE
COUNSEL EXPLAINS GROUNDS FOR HABEAS CORPUS.
Claims That an Inherent Right to an Appeal Attaches to This Case Because of the Constitutional Question Involved, and That Under the Law, an Appeal From the Superior Court Acts as a Superedeas When the Appeal to the Superior Court Was Allowed to Act as Such.

Attorney Cornelius Smith yesterday explained to a Tribune reporter the grounds on which he and his colleague, Attorney James P. Mahon, base their petition for a writ of habeas corpus to secure the release of Richard Little, which was presented, Tuesday, to Justice McCollum, of the Supreme court, at his home in Montrose.

When the appeal from the judgment of the local court was taken to the Superior court the appeal was allowed to act as a superedeas, and upon the filing of the proper bond, Little was released.

The Superior court decided against the appellant and Little was again jailed. At the first opportunity, Attorney John P. Lenahan, of counsel for the defense, filed a motion in the Superior court for permission to take an appeal from the decision of the Superior court. This motion has never been heard from, and the Supreme court has taken its summer vacation.

The defendant's counsel contend before Justice McCollum that while they went to the rounds to make a motion for permission to appeal, such action was not necessary, the appeal being a natural right by reason of the fact that a constitutional question was involved. They expected the motion would be disposed of at an early date, by reason of the fact that the defendant was in jail, but for some cause the matter was left untouched.

When the Supreme court adjourned a few days since without having passed upon the appeal, the defendant's counsel resolved to withdraw from their former position and proceed under habeas corpus proceedings, just as if the appeal was being entertained by the Superior court, instead of simply a motion to appeal being pending. A position which they could fairly assume, they claim, because of the defendant's inherent right to an appeal and the fact that the appeal was to all intents and purposes filed.

Their right to assume this position being admitted, as they trust Justice McCollum will decide, they are entitled, they hold, to have Little released, as the law regulating the practice of the Supreme court says, in the plainest of terms, the defendant's counsel aver, that in a case appealed from the Superior court to the Supreme court, if the appeal shall act as a superedeas, if the appeal from the court of first instance to the Superior court was permitted to act as a superedeas. Further, the bond in the first instance is allowed to continue for the second appeal.

Justice McCollum told Attorneys Smith and Mahon that he would not take any steps in the matter until he could find out who had become of the motion to appeal, which, it is alleged, Mr. Lenahan filed. Justice McCollum avowed he knew nothing of it. He informed the attorneys that he would communicate with them later as regards the matter of a time for a hearing on the petition for habeas corpus.

The Crawford County System gives every citizen an opportunity to run for office; there is one office, however, that requires a man of good physique, good judgment as well as experience to fill it, and that is the sheriff's office. In Deputy Jacob D. Forster we have all the necessary qualifications and it would only be a gracious act to promote him, he has earned it. Vote for him June 11th.
