"Governor Taylor, of Kentucky, is recognized."

Every eye was turned toward the center of the hall, where a tall, gaune, black-garbed figure, with the saffron face of an Indian, stood with a paper During the pause in the hurrah, which his name had evoked, "Come to the platform, governor, they want to see you," called out Mr. Wolcott.

People leaning over the rails of the pit watched his every movement, and many of the delegates climbed onto the chairs and watched the crowd eddy around him.

When order had been restored after the confusion incident to this scene, Mr. Wolcott announced that the secretary would read the lists of the various committees. The clerk read the list in a voice which did not carry fifty feet from the stage, and the spectators. who usually applaud the name of the popular party leaders as they are called, were denied this pleasure of paying tribute to their favorites.

Applause for Wolcott.

The address of Senator Wolcott, the temporary chairman, which followed, lasted an hour and ten minutes. It undoubtedly added to the brilliant Colorado senator's reputation as an orator.

With a clear, ringing voice, that reached the most remote spot of the hall, and with graceful gesture, he brought all under his spell. Time and again his hearers broke into cheers, as he spoke of the present prosperity of the country and predicted McKinley's triumphant re-election. man of the delegation, and who is an administration man, is responsible for the New Jersey men supporting Mr. Long if the administration should give a hint that it is for some other candidate, the delegation will be the first to turn in for that man.

"If Rossevelt's name is placed before the convention for vice president the Indiana delegation will be for him to a man," said one of the Hooster delegation tonight. Their second choice is Dolliver. There is no sentiment in the delegation for Long, but if the administration should come out for the secretary of the navy, it is the convention with a candidate, and believed that the delegates would support him. So ne of them would have will be nominated. Senator Hanna has liked to have named Senator Fairstated that he controls the delegates to banks, but a majority of them think he is more useful in the senate.

Wall Street Review. New York, June 19.—The liquidation of stocks was rather decisively checked today, and as vias to be expected after the considerable decline of yesterday and Saturday there was a sufficient of mand from outstanding shorts to accomolish a rally in prices. There was no evidence of any buying outside this narrow professional circle, and the domand dwindled away to practically nothing as prices rose an colorating fraction over last night's level. The market then fell back into its purely professional character and drifted rather aimlessly the rest of the day, net charges being slight. ### Ovation to Roosevelt.

It was very undemonstrative at first, While the crowds and delegates were Editor Rosewater Placed Upon the funneling into the hall before the hour for calling the convention to order had nrrived, there were no wild greetings of party leaders. A scattering applause met Mr. Hanna, as he made his way to the stage. General Grosvenor, Senator Lodge, Senator Foraker, ex-Senator Quay and a few others aroused a fluttering of handkerchiefs and a round of hand-clapping, but men of national reputation, whose fame had spread away from our shores across both oceans, entered without producing a ripple. Perhaps most of them were not recognized. Just before Chairman Hanna was ready to drop his gavel, Governor Roosevelt entered, and the vast audience was electrified. He stalked in at the main door. His rough rider hat signalled him out to the craning multitude. Seemingly the audience had been waiting for him, and the applause that announced his appearance swept over the vast amphitheatre and swelled into a great roar as he made his way towards the seats of the New York delegation. Senator Depewand Chairman Odell.of the New York state committee, were with him, but the crowds had eyes only for the dashing hero of San Juan. No man ever made entrance more opportunely. But he made no acknowledgement of the ovation his appearance elicited. His jaw was firmly set and he came on through the press like a soldier performing a duty. He did not even remove his hat, but pushed his way through the delegates who swarmed from their places to grasp his hand. Fully two minutes it took for him to traverse the length of the hail to his place near the stage. All of that time the roar followed him and the handkerchiefs rose and fell like the wings of gulls over a summer sea, but he made no sign that he realized it was all for him. When he took his seat with his slouch hat still on, without having glanced to either side, the people gave it up and the cheering gradu- York; Mrs. J. Chairman Hanna was registered on the delicate plates. When the venerable chaplain, in the robes of his church, arose to pronounce the invocation, the man behind the camera had his machine trained upon him like a gun. While Chairman Hanna wa talking, after the reading of the call, the picture man was most active. During the delivery of Temporary Chairman Wolcott's speech the east gallery camera had a brief rest, but there were others directed at the delegates and across the convention hall at the people in the galleries. One of these was established in the northeast corner of the platform occupied by newspaper correspondents; another was in the corner opposite; still another was in the south side gallery. These three did husiness during every hour of the convention. When the ensemble of the hall was taken from every view point the lenses were turned upon individual groups in the delegations, and shifted alternatively upon coberies of spectators in the gallerles.
