Sermon in English by Rev. D. D. Hopkins at the Welsh Baptist Church Yesterday Morning-Funeral of George Griffiths-Thieves in a Speakeasy-Chapter of Accidents-Chil'dren's Day Exercises in the First Welsh Congregational Church-Other News Notes.

Rev. D. D. Hopkins, pastor of the First Welsh Baptist church, preached one of his characteristic English sermons to a large congregation yesterday morning on "The Conditions of Jur Spiritual Success." His text was taken from James, 1:2-4, "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that be trying of your faith worketh pa-But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." Rev. Hopkins spoke, in part, as follows:

The apostles knew that the gospul they breached was divinely adapted to the needs of the human soul. They knew because Christ lived in them. In the gespels we have the history of Jesus Christ—a picture of Him as He appeared before men. In the Acts and Epistes we have the Christ in the history of the church, Christ revealing himself in the life of believers. ers. So the apostles had the knowledge of Christ because they had the experience of loyal and

And every Christian knows that the principles And every Carsenan divinely adapted to the spiritual needs of bomanity because he has tried them. When we take into consideration the value of the knowledge of experience we can ried out at the grave in Washburn easily account for the seeming contradiction in the words of our text. The author says, "Count it all juy, my brethren, when ye fall into mani-

Those words apart from the latter part of our text contradict the testimeny of our feelings-because there is nothing pleasing in tempta-tions to the tempted. But the word "Knowing" that the proof of your faith worketh patience."
The links that connect the words "joy," "temp-tations" and "perfect," suggest to us the conditions of our spiritual development.

The word "Knowing" conveys the idea of our

The word "Anowing" conveys the inter of our success in life; not as a more possibility but as a certainty. There is not even a shudow of doubt as to the final triumph or victory of him who lives in Christ. Doubt is a point midway between the knowing and the not knowing; and the doubter is be that knows not which direction to the him which the contraction to the him when the contraction to the contraction tion to take; he ascillates like the pendulum

But there is no room for doubt in the mind of the man that has a life of experience in the work of Christ. And the reason for the words of our text is found deep in the consciousness of the author who had a life of experience behind him. There is no doubt as to his belief in the survival of Christianity, and the glerious end of every Christian. Hence the joy even in the manifold temptations. The knowledge the suthor had of Christ and Christianity swept away the seeming contradiction in the theory of suffering, and even the shadow of a doubt. "Count The scientist tells us that "In the struggles

f human minds the victory will eventually remain with what is best." That statement must be true, because man, by means of his scientifle investigations will some day discover the great fact which is the basis of everything ex-isting. It is true also in the spiritual world. The origin of man-whence he came, is not of prime importance; but when looking into the endless future, we cannot but ask the question-What will my history be there?

The only answer that can be given to that mestion is-My character today is the only index to my future. If my character will change then the nature of my future must of necessity change. So if we want to be perfect in character we must exercise ourselves in that direc-tion, because spiritual development comes by battle; we must fight our way to perfection. To illustrate this, the drunkard most say "No" to every temptation before he can be a sober man. Before we can attain perfection in character, we must possess the faith that can turn even the trials of life to our spiritual advantage. Paul said to Timothy, "Exercise thyself unto Collisions in the street of the said to be said to the said to th Faul said to Timothy, "Exercise thyself unto Godiliness"; work thyself into that life which ends in glory. He could not be a strong man apart from exercise. So it is in our text, the trial of faith worketh patience; it makes a man strong in Christian virtues and brings him nearer day after day to perfection, which is the goal

COTTAGE BURNED DOWN.

The "Queen Bess" cottage, located on the West Scranton side of Lake Winola, was burned to the ground at midnight Friday night and the contents totally destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown, and the flames spread so rapidly that the entire building was consumed before any assistance could be rendered.

The structure was occupied by two well known West Scranton young men, who had leased the cottage a few days previous, and when they left the building at 8 o'clock Friday night there was low wood fire in the cooking stove, which was a dilapidated piece of work. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective flue. The building was owned by T. R. Stark and W. A. Townsend and was valued at $1,600. It is a total loss to them, as no insurance was carried.

ROBBED A SPEAKEASY.

Several thieves gained an entrance into a speakeasy located on Jackson street, near the Keyser Valley branch railroad, Saturday night, and robbed the place of all the contents.

From what could be learned the thieves used a dray wagon to haul the wet goods and cigars away, and when they returned for the last load, the proprietor, who resides upstairs, was aroused and drove the intruders away at the point of a revolver.
