Mrs. Col. Richardson SAVED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MES. PINERAM NO. 22.806] "You have saved my life, snatched me from the brink of the grave almost, and I wish to thank you. About eighteen months ago I was a total wreck, physically. I had been troubled with leucorrhœa for some time, but had given hardly any attention to the trouble.

"At last inflammation of the womb and ovaries resulted and then I suffered agonies, had to give up my pro-fession (musician and piano player), was confined to my bed and life became a terrible cross. My husband summoned the best physicians, but their benefit was but temporary at best. I believe I should have contracted the morphine habit under their care, if my common sense had not intervened.

"One day my husband noticed the advertisement of your remedies and immediately bought me a full trial. Soon the pain in my ovaries was gone. I am now well, strong and robust, walk, ride a wheel, and feel like a girl in her teens. I would not be without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it is like water of life to me. I am very gratefully and sincerely your wellwisher, and I heartily recommend your remedies. I hope some poor creature may be helped to health by reading my story."-Mrs. Col. E. P. RICHARDSON, RHINELANDER, WIS.

POLISH WOMAN DRUGGED AND ASSAULTED.

Found in a Semi-Unconscious Condition Last Night in Kirst Court. Brilliant Concert Given by the Pupils of Miss Timberman, Assisted by Miss Edith Norton-Junior Epworth League of the Cedar Avenue Church Celebrated Its Second Anniversary-Mrs. F. L. Terppe Recovering.

A young Polish woman, recently married, was found lying in a semiunconscious condition in Kirst court, in the rear of Alderman Ruddy's dwelling, last night. Her dress was torn, her hands and face scratched and solled, and it was evident that she had been very roughly used.

She was taken into the Ruddy residence, where she stated that her name is Mrs. Selman, and that she was recently married. Last evening she was on the way home from a store with a number of packages, when she was called into a house on Cedar avenue, occupied by a Polish family. offered what purported to be beer, but which she declares was some other liquor, which made her deathly sick. Her mind became a blank, and she has no further recollection of anything until she was found in Kirst court. After she was given the liquid she was evidently assaulted.

After recovering sufficiently, she went with Alderman Ruddy and pointed out the house where the outrage made of it. Taken all together a neat was committed. A warrant was issued sum was realized, which will be sent for the inmates.

Epworth League Concert.

A most brilliant concert was given last night in the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association, before very large audience, by Miss Timberman and pupils, assisted by Miss Edith Norton, elecutionist.

The concert opened with a duet, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," by Miss Susan Black and Ralph Williams which was splendidly rendered. Miss Rose Gallen sang "All Through the Mist" in fine style. Miss Gallen possesses a remarkably deep contralto voice and interpreted the old Welsh air in a most pleasing manner.

"The Brigands" was sung by Charles P. Kreig with a vim and dash and in such an able manner as to elicit much applause. Miss Edith Norton, wellknown as a most able elocutionist, next rendered "A Matrimonial Controversy" in a highly acceptable manner, and responded to the encore with "A Picnic." Miss Grace Duncan rendered with great effect "The Promise of Life," Miss Duncan is the possessor of a sweet voice, and her execution was perfect.

Miss Susan Black's rendering of Love Me Well" was very skillful and was favorably received by the audience. "When the Heart Is Young," by Buck, was beautifully rendered by Miss Anna Salmon, who has an unusually fine mezzo-contralto voice. Miss Salmon's interpretation was one that elicited much applause.

Ralph Williams, in his clear baritone voice, rendered "The Grenadiers," by Schumann, in an excellent manner. Miss Norton's interpretation of Paul Laurence Dunbar's "Angelina" was captivating and took the house Her negro dialect is perfect. and her motions graceful and pleasing. Llewellyn Jones was accompanist.

Concert Last Night.

The Junior Epworth league of the Cedar Avenue Methodist church is two years old. Having Fun at Mardi Gras.

T HEY WERE discussing Mardi Gras celebration in the days of old Memphis. "That was the first time I was ever in a parade, and I hope the last," said a well-known railroad man. "Jim Brown and I had been selected as guards of benor, or some such thing, and we were going to do the thing up right. No costume in Mem-phis was good enough for us. We sent of to New York and had two suits of armor made, and came out as knights of old. I never will for-cet that night. As we rode along in the proget that night. As we rode along in the pro-cession the light was reflected from the tin armor and made us feel that we were the whole thing. At the corner of Gayese and Main streets my pattner fell off his horse, and it sounded like the bottom had fallen out of a tinahop. The mules in the fleat behind got sucred and come near running away. I was atraid if I got off my horse to help him on that I would have to stay off. Spectators helped him on, however, and the parade preceded. When it was over we climbed several flights of stairs to my rooms to get rid of the armor, which had become unbearable. As I valked I made as much noise as a tinware peddler. When we eached the room I tried to relieve my partner first, but found that the fasteners were patented and neither of us knew the combination. We sent for the man who had ordered them for us, and while the boy was looking for him we spent the time in danning everybody and everything. He arrived in about two hours, but the fasteners were a riddle to him. He ran over to the res-taurant and in a few minutes came back with a can opener, hatchet and pair of shears. He went to work, and after chopping, cutting and shearing relieved us from our coat of tin. It was then about 3 o'clock in the morning, and too late to go to any of the balls. I think the several hours I spent in that harness trying to get out were the most miserable of my life. No ore parade for me, partner."-Memphis Seim

He took a toothpick and pried the slide from over the hole in the door. Then putting his mouth to the opening he yelled with all his might, "Milk!" The man "on the door" almost had a hemorrhage, and the lodge members were thrown into a panic. When quiet was restored and an investigation made the true facts were revealed. Consul to Hades.

FOR SEVERAL years there was employed as messenger and doorkeeper for the secretary of the navy a stalwart colored man who was acquainted with the personal appearance of nearly every officer in the navy who visited Washington during his stay "in office." He even came to consider himself quite a personage, and when officers returning from a long cruise would appear in person to report he was often a little too familiar to suit the tastes of some of the more aesthetic of our tars. Usually, however, he received a good natured response to his effustre greeting, and was generally regarded as harmless if not useful. Not long ago a gruff old sea dog, a commo dere, who had just returned from foreign shores, thought he would have some fun with the col-ored man and brother. In answer to the greet-ng he received the commodore said: "What, John, are you still here? Why, I thought you would have been promoted ere this. It is a burning shame that you, who have served the government and the party so faithfully, should be left here. If I were you I would ask for a consulship somewhere. You could get it easily, and you deserve it. You just atick it out and you'll get a chance to travel to foreign ountries. Insist on it."

"Well, Mister Commodore, whar do y'u t'ink I had oughter go?"
"Why, just tell the secretary that you want

o be consul to Hades, "What's that?" "Oh, that is a nice warm place, where the climate will just suit you climate will just suit you.

Sure enough the colored brother went in to the secretary at the first opportunity. He stood there till Mr. Long noticed his expectant look and inquired what he could do for him. "Master Secretary, I'se tired of my job; don't like it."

"What is the matter new?" asked the august official, not a little surprised.

"I wants to be consul. The Republicans hain't treated me right, nohow; I'se worked mighty hard fur the pahty down in Alabam', and I wants to be consul."

Seenting something, Long asked him where he wanted to be consul to "I thinks that I'd like pow'ful well to go to Hades, suh."

"Hades!" ejaculated Long, laughing. "Who "Commodo" ---"Well, you go and find out just where that "Well, you go and find out just where that is and come back, and if you want to go there then I gless we can fix you up," and the secretary, almost smothered with a desire to laugh. The story got out samebow, as such stories do. Some say the secretary thought it too good to keep, but at any rate it was soon current throughout the department, and the doorkeeper, much chagrined at the laughter it caused, re-signed, and is today shaving customers in a barber shop in a hotel not far from the capitol,

An Excellent Liar. PRESIDENT M'KINLEY had quite an amusing experience recently when he visited the state, war and navy departments shortly after 4 p. m., when the departments close. He and Assistant Secretary Cortelyou were out for a walk, but when they reached the street it began to rain. The president suggested that they take refuge in the state department. They passed into the building without question and walked to Secretary Hay's office on the second floor, The secretary's office was closed, and the prestdent himself tried every door in the department.

A messenger finally informed them that all the clerks and officials had gone.

"We'll call on Secretary Ross in the war department," said the president, and they walked around the corridor. The same conditions confronted them there, and the president as a last chance went to the navy department to see Secretary Long. Here they walked into a reception room and the prestdent, in telling the story to the cabinet, de-tailed what transpired.

"I met a bright young colored man," he said,
"Who asked me to be seated, and stated that he would see whether or not the secretary was in.
The messenger apparently did not recognize me,
We sat waiting for several minutes, and the and the messenger returned and said: 'I'm sorry, sir, but you have just missed Secretary Long. He only this minute left for home.' 'The president then turned to Secretary Long with the remark: 'Long, if I were you I would the remark: 'Long, if I were you I would the remarks' that the remarks' 'Long, if I were you I would 'Long, if I were you I would promote that messenger. He's the most excellent liar I ever heard." Now every messenger in the deartment is an-xiously awaiting a visit from the president.--

The Effect of Higher Criticism. R EV. DR. HILLIS, of Brooklyn, the other day told a story showing the unsettling effects of the higher criteism, relates the New York Tribune. It fell to his lot to attend the funeral of a negro, sharing the service with a colored minister. As the two clergymen were riding to the cemetery the brother in black suddenly to the cemetery the brother in black suddenly to the cemetery the brother in black suddenly ked Dr. Hillis how he got along at his church with the higher criticism. Dr. Hillis replied that it was not a disturbing element at Ply-

"Welt," said his companion, "it's making "Well," said his companion, "it's making things pretty hot at our church. One of my deacens who is down on it comes to prayer meeting and prays. 'O Lord, bless our pastor and help him to bring old treasures out of the Word;' while another deacon who believes in it follows him and prays. 'O Lord, bless our pastor and help him to bring new treasures out of the Word," and betwist these two descens and the Lord they keep me black and blue."

Dr. Hillis naively added that he supposed the deacons kept the minister blue while the Lord leacons kept the minister blue while the Lord
