These towers are for utility as well as ornaments. The side walls of the building project about three feet above the point where the roof meets them and alongside of this wall is a walk where soldiers can patrol from one tower to the other. The towers furnish greater protection and will have loops for pointing guns through. Should it ever become necessary to defend the armory it can be done very successfully. The feature of the Adams avenue front is the main entrance. Entering the lobby you can proceed up broad flights of stairs to the drill room floor or go right ahead. We will take the latter course. On this floor will be the gymnasium, 56x24 feet, swimming tank, shower baths, tollet rooms, locker cooms. These are on the Myrtle street side of the building. On the other side will be the rifle range of 100 yards, with waiting room for marksmen. The targets will be at the Jefferson aveiue end of the building, below ground.

On this floor, also, will be a field equipment room for each of the eight companies and regimental headquarters. There will also be rooms for the non-commissioned staff, regimental quartermaster, armourer, janitor and inspector of rifle practice.

Two wide stairways of iron and slate will lead to the second or drill room floor. They open onto a corridor eight feet eight inches wide, and across the corridor is an entrance seventeen feet wide, leading to the great drill room, which will be 146x256 in the clear.

In the administration portion of the building on this floor will be eight company rooms and eight equipment rooms, which open directly into the drill room. The equipment rooms will be 17x18.

The floor of the drill room will be of oncrete, covered by asphalt. At either end will be two galleries. Across the PROPOSED ARMORY Jefferson avenue end will be a gallery 20x146, and at the other end of th building one 20x120. It is thought that these galleries will sent at least 4,000 persons. The roof of the drill room will be sustained by great graceful curved arches, five feet thick, which will begin down below the level of the drill room floor. Between these arches seats will be arranged, so that the seating capacity of the armory, without encroaching on the drill room floor,

Besides the entrance, seventeen feet wide, leading toward the front of the building, there is the gateway, fourteen feet wide,on Myrtle street and two doors that will open into the passageway at Jefferson avenue. The gallery at the Jefferson avenue end will dis charge its contents through a door at the level of Jefferson avenue. Access to the opposite gallery will be by means of doors from the third floor of the administration building. For emergency purpose there will be great double doors on the north side of the building, opposite the gateway leading to Myrtle street. The ventilating of this room will be of the best. There will be a row of windows in the Myrtle street wall, two rows of windows in the curved roof and ventilators in the pinnacle of the roof.

On the third floor in the Adams avenue and Myrtle street corner will be three rooms for the use of the Regimental Veterans' association. This floor is approached from the second by two stairways, seven feet wide, which open on a corridor eight feet, eight inches wide, which runs the entire width of the building. The entrance to the gallery of the drill room from this corridor is by means of six doorways.

OFFICERS' QUARTERS.

This floor has apartments which will be used as a library for the officers, colonel's private office, room for the regimental adjutant and his clerks, room for the battalion commanders another for the battallon adjutants special room for the regimental surgeon, with small room opening off it for physical examinations. There will also be a large room for general meetings of the officers.

On the fourth floor will be three unfinished rooms, 56x25, 56x15 and 15x39, which can be used for squad drill There will be another room, 15x42, for the use of the band, large mess room and a well-appointed kitchen and pantry, a dumb-waiter running from the kitchen down to the first floor. In its entirety the building will be as complete as the most enthusiastic citizen soldier could desire.

ANOTHER BOY DROWNED.

He Was Bathing in Roaring Brook, Close to the Point Where James Daley Met His Death.

Jacob Rauner, the ten-year-old son of Peter Rauner, of 526 Hickory street, was drowned yesterday afternoon, about 5.45 o'clock, in the Roaring Brook, near the Blast furnace, close to the spot where James Daley met a similar fate. Tuesday afternoon.

The Rauner boy was at the dam with a young companion, Rudolph Getz, and about 5.30 o'clock, with the other boy, waded into the water. He was barely able to swim, and soon got beyond his depth. In a moment he was sinking nd gave a frantic cry, which mahis companion aware of his position. The latter swam out of the dam and ran, shouting, toward the Blast furnace. Two men, who were standing on the wall of the Blast furnace, saw the boy sink and, turning, ran to the mill and told Daniel Dempsey and Charles Pierce, who were working there, what had occurred.

The two men ran to the rescue, and pringing into the creek, searched for the body. Dempsey waded, after a few moments' search, into a deep hole. His foot struck something and, reaching down, he found it to be the boy's body. He removed it to the bank, where it was placed for the time being.

The boy was still alive when taken from the water and was breathing very His body was vigorously faintly. rubbed, and all means of inducing respiration tried, but in vain. Shortly after the boy died.

The remains were taken to Cusick's undertaking establishment, on Washington avenue, but later were removed to Undertaker G. A. Miller's place on Cedar avenue.

Coroner J. J. Roberts was notified of the death, and arrived about 9 o'clock at Miller's. He examined the body, and then decided to hold an inquest. A jury was empanelled. The inquest will be held later.

EXHIBITION OF PUPILS' WORK.

What Was Seen in the Art Department of Hardenbergh School.

The exhibition of pupils' work at the Art department of the Hardenbergh school closed yesterday and was visted by a large number of guests. The exhibition included several studies in oil from the natural fruit by Mrs. John Broadbent, roses in oil and pieces in black and white by Mrs. A. R. Gould. Several finished pictures from the natural roses by Miss Grace Birdsall, Miss Laura Schimpff and John Coolidge; full length figures of Venus, of Milo and the Nike, or winged victory, and a number of other shaded figures from the cast were especially admired, as were also their water color and pen and ink sketches.

Apples, bottle and glass, and Grecian vases by Miss Marjorie S. Platt: head of Perseus, by Keislis Szlupas; leaves and tulips, from the object, by Miss Eloise Phelps and Miss Louise Smith. A number of very artistic sketches in pen and ink, by Miss Charlotte Voris and Miss Ruth Hand; head of Perseus, by d'Andelot Belin; arm of fighting Gladiator, by Miss Nellie Benjamin; oriental vases, by Leon Brown; head of Perseus, and a number of other charcoal pieces and several water color sketches, all well executed by Miss Anna L. Law, of Pittston; bow knot, beautifully drawn and shaded, by Rodney Meals; apples from the cast, by Law Watkins.

The outline drawings from the object were by the following pupils, showed very accurate drawings: Kenneth Wells, Law Watkins, Ruth Hand, Eloise Phelps, Louise Smith, Eleanor Clemons, d'Andelot Belin and Miss Tessie Nallin. Miss Laura Schimpff had a number of cleverly executed designs in color, Miss Schimpff has great originality and a New York firm has accepted a set of her designs for silverware the past season.

SAYS EVERHART TRIED TO KILL HER

STATEMENT MADE BY MRS. MAY RINSLAND.

Claims That Edwin E. Everhart Fired at Her Point Blank, but the Bullet Missed Her and Went Through a Window-She Makes a Vehement Denial to the Alleged Statement of Everhart That She Induced Him to Conspire Against His Father.

According to the story of Mrs. May Rinsland, Edwin E. Everhart has good ortune and a bad aim to thank for his not being called upon to face a nomicide charge.

She says he made a deliberate atempt to murder her less than a month

Some of the reputed interviews with Everhart made him say that Mrs. Rinsland tempted him to the heinous rime for which he is now occupying felon's cell-conspiracy to murder his This, as might be supposed, made Mrs. Rinsland extremely indignant and determined her to speak her mind freely.

"Ed says he has done with me," Mrs. Rinsland went on to say, "Well, you can say for me that I have washed my hands of him. A man who could be so devoid of honor as to try to lighten the responsibility for his terrible crime by placing the burden on the shoulders of a woman for whose many miseries he is almost solely responsible, is deserving of little sympathy. I will be criticized for turning on him, but if the public only knew the whole story would receive as much sympathy as KNEW NOTHING OF IT. "I never knew or suspected the first thing about this conspiracy business until Ed was arrested. The men around the hotel will tell you, as they now tell me, that Ed. warned them not to tell me that he was receiving notes from anyone. I wanted him to let me alone and go his way. I am working at Horn's hotel scrubbing floors to support myself so that I would not have to take any of his money.

"Any one at the place where I work can tell you whether or not I have encouraged him to be attentive to me. Why, less than a month ago I told him I was done with him and that I was going to New York to live a new life and that he must not follow me. "We had some words and when I said nothing could prevent me from going, he flared up like a madman, drew a revolver, pointed it directly at my head and shot. The bullet whizzed past my ear, broke a hole in the window glass and struck the building next door. You can see the broken window and the bullet in the side of the house

"I dashed into the next room and out of the house and stayed away till he had gone. People say he wouldn't harm anybody and they couldn't be lieve he would make up such a terrible plot as to kill his father. I say he has a murderous heart, and I know. Only last Thursday he said if I went back on him he would kill me and kill him-

LOST ON RACES.

"I want it denied, too, that I have been getting his money. The papers say he squandered his money on me. It's not so. He spent his money at the race tracks. He used to tell me about being out to the aqueduct and losing money on the races.

"If Ed. Everhart took my advice, he ould not be in jail now. I wanted him to go to his father and make up with him, and leave me alone. He said to me that his father told him that he would have to give me up or be disinherited, and that he told his father to go ahead and disinherit him

"I could have married Ed. Everhard down in New York, after I was divorced, but I wouldn't. I don't want to claim anything for myself, except that I wanted him to let me alone and I would go to New York, where I had a position. I'm sorry he tried to put the blame on me. I can't see how he could do such a thing. Detective Moir will tell you whether or not I was working honestly in New York. H was in the store where I was employed and spoke to me. I only came home to get my share of the household goods. I didn't want Phil Rinsland to cheat me out of everything.

"I heard that some paper said I be lieved Phil was in the conspiracy with Lewis. I never said or thought such thing. I firmly believe Phil and his sister combined to get me to trap Everhart for them, but I don't believe Phil could have had anything to do with the other case. Phil has done me #### a great injustice, but I want to do the right thing by him, as well as anybody else. Whoever said I said Phil had anything to do with the conspir-acy matter lies. How could I know he had anything to do with it, when I didn't know anything about it myself?" Mrs. Rinsland told her story with tears rolling down her cheeks, and they were the tears of a woman who sincerely thought she had been grievously wronged. She says she proposes to go to New York and resume her position as clerk in a store.
