TO LOCATE THE WEATHER STATION

CHIEF MOORE, OF WEATHER BUREAU, IN THE CITY.

He Is Looking Over the Various High Buildings—Says Government Building Does Not Suit—Board of Trade Most Satisfactory—Station Will Be in Working Order in Thirty Days—Interesting Statement by Mr. Moore on Advantages of Weather Observation.

Chief Willis L. Moore, of the United States weather bureau and considered the greatest weather expert in the world, arrived in the city yesterday for the purpose of deciding upon the location of the weather station about to be established here.

Mr. Moore had been instructed before leaving Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to give the wishes of Congressman Connell on the matter of location his careful consideration. Mr. Moore accordingly waited upon Mr. Connell yesterday afternoon and the latter recommended to him the board of trade building, stating that he had no desire to have the station located on his own building.

It is almost invariably the rule in establishing stations to locate them on the government building wherever possible so that the large item of rent may be done away with. Mr. Moore visited the government building after his interview with Mr. Connell, but stated to a Tribune man that he was not at all impressed with its adaptability for weather observation purposes.

"The roof exposure is poor," he said, "and the building is not sufficiently high. Should we locate the station upon it, very extensive and also expensive alterations would have to be made and I am not at all sure that the treasury department would agree to this expense."

OFFICES NOT SUITABLE.

The board of trade building suits Mr. Moore as far as height and general adaptability is concerned, but the two offices vacant in the building would not be accepted by him under any consideration, he says. Manager Peck will, however, endeavor to move some tenants around if possible so as to give him just the kind of rooms he wants.

Mr. Moore will decide upon the location of the station before he leaves the city, and states that it will be in complete working order in thirty days. Observer Donaldson, who will be in charge, is at present doing temporary duty in Jersey City, N. J.

Many years in charge of the station at Ithaca, N. Y. He is 35 years of age and has been in the weather service for over twelve years. He will be assisted by a messenger named Johnson, who comes here from Cairo, Ill.

Thirty feet above the roof of the building selected for the station, there will be erected a platform and small house containing the weather instruments. On poles above this will be the windvanes and anemometers. All of these instruments will be connected electrically with the office below, so that the observer can nearly always read the observations without ascending to the platform. The cost of establishing and maintaining the station during the first year will be about $10,000, and in subsequent years between $7,000 and $8,000.

When asked just what advantages will accrue to the city by reason of the establishment of the station here, Mr. Moore grew very enthusiastic, and said:

THE ADVANTAGES.

"The recording accurately of all the climatic data of a city has a most important bearing on the industrial economy. There are a thousand and one industries in which the element of weather plays an important part. In many industries it is necessary that there be recorded accurately every moment out of the twenty-four, the temperature, the precipitation, the relative humidity, the direction and force of the wind, etc., so that the manufacturer may study the bearing of the condition of the weather upon his product.

"I could cite a hundred instances in which the information set out by the different stations is put to use. Tell an engineer the greatest amount of water that falls in an hour and something about your water-shed, and he'll be able to figure out just what the capacity of your sewers should be.

"If the greatest heat or the greatest heat are accurately known, the contractor will know just how much to allow for the contraction and expansion of metal in building the steel frame of a building or a bridge. You would be surprised, too, to see how often the records of the weather stations throughout the country have been taken into court.

"Before I became chief of the bureau I was on the stand over one hundred times, testifying as to weather conditions at certain times. I remember one suit, where a railroad company was being sued for over $100,000 for damage done by a fire said to have been caused by a spark from a locomotive. The company contended that the wind was blowing in another direction that night and the sparks from the engine couldn't have set the place on fire. I went on the stand with my records and showed that the wind was blowing in just the opposite direction at the particular time the fire started and that a spark could have caused the fire.

TESTIMONY HANGS A MAN.

"In another case in Chicago, I believe my testimony hung a man who was being tried for murder. The defense brought on fourteen different witnesses, who testified that on the night of the shooting a thick fog overhung the city and that it was impossible for the witnesses to see and for prosecution, who had already testified, to have seen the shooting.

"I went on the stand and showed by my records that it was an impossibility.

ity for a fog to have settled down upon the city on that particular night, the air being too heavy. The man was convicted.

The station will also be of advantage to this city because the records taken here will be telegraphed to each of the 150 other cities in the country having weather stations, and will be printed on maps printed in each of these cities. The observations taken here will also be published in the newspapers throughout the country. There will also be a map issued in this city which will be sent out to all the towns in this vicinity.

Speaking of Secretary Wilson, the present head of the department of agriculture, Mr. Moore said that he is an out and out expansionist. During the three years that he has held the position, there have been stations established in Cuba, Porto Rico, several islands in the West Indies, on the peninsula of Yucatan, Mexico and on the northern coast of South America.

TURNPIKE INSPECTED.

Streets and Bridges Committee Drove Over It Yesterday—Chairman Keller's Criticism.

Luther Keller, Alfred Harvey, David H. Reese, James Grier and P. F. Callin, comprising the streets and bridges committee of common council, accompanied by Street Commissioner Thomas, personally inspected the celebrated Abington turnpike yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discovering just in what condition the road is. Contrary to general expectations, H. E. Paine did not go along.

Chairman Keller stated last night that the committee drove over the entire road in his carriage and that it is in a most deplorable condition.

"About half of the road within the city is in fair condition," said he. "One half of the rest is very poor, and the other half is about as bad as it could possibly be. In this part the ruts and holes run crosswise and are in some cases almost a foot deep. It is a shame the condition this road is in."

"The larger part of the road outside the city line is in pretty good shape, though there are a few bad patches. It will take $1,000 to put the road within the city in good condition, though $500 for the rest and part could be repaired. We met several farmers along the road and they all seemed to favor condemning it, but thought it should be repaired at once, whatever else is done.

"That's just my position. I think it would be better all around if the road were condemned by the county. If it was in bad repair then there would be somebody to hold responsible for it. The more I look into this matter the more I feel that the city should expend a certain amount in repairing this road every year. I think that under existing conditions, this is the only thing that can be done at present.

"It's not for us to say whether the contract is a good or bad one. We've got to live up to it, that's all. If I used that road very often this summer, I'd see that some one was held to account for its condition, either the company or the city officials."

NAMING TEACHERS FOR COMING YEAR

ALL EXCEPT ONE APPLICANT ARE RE-ENGAGED.

Professor W. R. Graves, Principal of No. 27 School, Will Probably Be Transferred to Other Duties—Number of Appointees Recommended to Fill Existing Vacancies—Transfer of Professor Kemmerling from No. 25 to the High School Will Leave One Other Vacancy Yet to Fill.

With one exception all of the present corps of teachers in the public schools who seek to serve another term will be recommended for re-appointment by the teachers' committee.

Such was the announcement officially made at the close of the committee's meeting last night.

Appointments to fill the vacancies by death and resignation were reported as follows: No. 28, Miss Cora Lidstone; No. 27, Miss Julia Martin; No. 26, Miss Pauline Shook; No. 25, Miss Florence Freeman; No. 19, Miss Edith Hutton; Miss Jessie Davis.

The exception noted above is the case of Professor W. R. Graves, principal of No. 28. There is a probability that he will be transferred to some position in which he can make himself more useful than in that which he is now occupying. The matter will be decided at an adjourned meeting to be held Friday night.

The matter of transferring Prof. Henry Kemmerling, principal of No. 25, to the High school is being discussed, and should the high and training school committee report favorably upon it, the teachers' committee will have another vacancy to fill. The high and training committee also meets Friday night and it is possible this and the Prof. Graves case will be both settled by the teachers' committee that night.

This will conclude the teachers' committee's work, as provision will then have been made for all existing vacancies.

SLOWE WAS EXCITED.

He Did Not Intend to Injure Reporter Levy.

The case of Assistant Chief D. J. Slowe, of the fire department, was considered last night by T. C. Meekin, J. J. Schneider and A. B. Lidstone, of the fire department committee of select council. At a recent fire in Mahon's shoe store, Slowe ejected Leon Levy, a reporter for The Tribune, from the building with such force as to tear his clothing and bruise his hands.

At last night's meeting Slowe and Levy gave their versions of the affair. Slowe said he was executing an order given by the chief to clear the building, but had known Levy was a reporter he would not have disturbed him.

The committee came to the conclusion that Slowe was unstrung and excited at the time and that while he probably used more violence than was necessary, in any event he did not intend to do any injury to Levy when he laid hands upon him.

WHOLE FAMILY INJURED.

Mother, Who Tried to Save Her Babe, Injured the Most.

Mr. and Mrs. William Guy and their three children, of River street, South Scranton, were thrown from a carriage in a runaway, Sunday evening, and all sustained more or less severe injury.

They were driving towards the boulevard, by way of the East mountain road, when their horses became unmanageable and dashed away on a mad gallop, tossing the carriage about wildly and throwing the occupants, one after the other, from the seats.

Mrs. Guy clung to her three-year-old babe as she was falling and, making no account whatever to save herself, struck violently against the ground, breaking her right arm between the shoulder and elbow, and the left arm at the wrist. The babe escaped with a slight cut on the head.

Mr. Guy and the other children were badly cut and bruised, but escaped without broken bones.
