How The Tribune's Educational Contest Is Viewed by Scranton's Prominent Men - Present Subscribers Chance for the Unemployed-A Philantaropic Opportunity - Full Descriptions of the Special Rewards.

The second day of The Scranton Tribune's Educational Contest, which began on Thursday morning, witnessed the first day. Yesterday, despite the intense heat, there were several names handed in, both personally and by letter, of contestants, and it already is an assured fact that this contest is to be a great success. The unusual value of the special rewards selected for the enterprising, ambitious young canvassers who have attached themselves to The Tribune's staff of workhas attracted universal commendation. Leading clergymen, teachers and officials of the city have expressed themselves as particularly pleased with the idea of the scholarship rewards and have signified their intention of placing the matter promi-

In every community there are young men and women who are zealously striving to better their condition and acquire a good education and likewise there are in every place a number who are pleased to note this ambition and who are glad of an opportunity to stimulate it. To find these persons is sometimes a difficult task, but they may be located sought for strenously, and once their interest is secured and the praiseworthy ambitions of the seeker ex-

A Chance for the Unemployed.

The Tribune wishes to emphasize the truth of its statement that this is a great opportunity for the unemployed of both sexes to make a livelihood during the summer, even if they do not win one of the ten special rewards, a description of which is published in this article. They will be employed at a regular commission of ten per cent. on all cash subscriptions they secure, and every facility given them for un-May Aid in the Enterprise-A restricted work. The Tribune is only too glad to help those who desire to help themselves and the young man or woman in this vicinity who bemoans the fact that there is nothing for them to do is greatly mistaken. There is room for all in this line of work, and the article they are asked to handle is one that is a good seller and is constantly becoming a better one. It is a good, legitimate vocation they are asked to enter and their ambition is even a larger number of entries than all that is needed for them to make a profitable investment of their time and labor. The special rewards are of a nature that will appeal to any one, no matter how varied his taste may be, and the selection has been made with discrimination and from the viewpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number.

There are probably a great many persons who are holding good situations who are not averse to increasing their salaries or who may desire a chance to get a higher education than they possess. These persons are particularly desirable for participants in a contest like this, for they know the value of results with the least labor. They can utilize a great many idle hours which now hang heavy on their hands by going about among their friends and acquaintances. They need not hesitate to explain the motives that actuate for they are of the highest worthiness and are such as to enlist sympathy and co-operation.

Haggerty's story is quite romantic. He has always been somewhat of a Australia and from there went to South Africa.

On March 19,1897, togged out in high silk hat and with $11 in his pocket he started for the Klondike. He bummed his way across the continent and sixteen days later found himself in Seattle, Washington, with 50 cents in his pocket. At Seattle he secured work in the ship yards until he had accumulated $100 in cash. He then hired out at the Winela. In the afternoon and evening as an engineer on a vessel bound for the ball room was crowded with graceful dancers Dawson City. While in Seattle he was At 10.30 p. m. the guests witnessed the grand bound for Alaska, but on sight of the rickety vessel on which the trip was to be made, they lost heart and returned home. For his services as engineer he received $150 and landed at St. Michaels with a miner's oufit and $250 in his pockets. From here he went up the Yukon river as far as Dawson City, where he sold his silk hat to a hotelkeeper for $100. In Dawson City he met a Swiss gentleman named today for New York. On Monday he will sail Harry Myers and they decided to become partners. The two men then went on a prospecting trip up the Stewart and Pelly rivers and Junicot creek, but met with no success and returned to Dawson City "dead broke." A man named Will Gates, known as They took a trip down the Yukon river and landed on an island between Nulata and Holy Command between Nulata and Holy Command between Sulata S where they chopped wood and sold it to up-coming steamers, which had run out of fuel. The wood brought from $20 to $30 per cord and the men worked at it for several months until they had cleared $5,000 each. From here they went to Bonanza creek, where they purchased a fraction of a claim and worked it for a while, and later

later sold to the London Rothschild company for $27,000 each.

The excitement caused by a big find next took their attention to French Hill. Here, with seventy other Americans, they staked out claims, out of which they later were swindled by Canadians. The two partners then noved on to Little Minook, where they took up four claims, two of which they sold to the Rothschild company for $80,000. With this lump to start on. they soon purchased other claims and now have nine claims at Dawson City, Rawport City, Birch City and Cape Nome. Each claim has a cabin on it it and is now being worked on the oyalty plan. Mr. Haggerty also owns a mine in East Oregon, near Baker City, the machinery of which alone cost $80,000. this mine the gold bearing ledge is fourteen feet thick and is a true fissure vein, the assays of which average from $5 to $6 a ton. Just previous to coming home he purchased outright for $35,000 an electric car line leading from Baker City to the town where his mine is located. The line is six miles long and has five cars.

Mr. Haggerty brings with him numerous specimens of the gold-bearing stone from Alaska. One specimen weighs 31 pounds and is known as a free gold rock. He claims it contains

HOPBOTTOM.

Special to the Scrupton Tribune.

Horbottom, July 6.-The Fourth was a very quiet day here. Several attended the celebration at Leomis lake and some were badly drenched in the downpour of rain which occurred shortly before noon. The programme of the celebration was not very fully carried out, owing to the fact that the speaker for the occasion did not respond and that participants for the various races were not at hand.

The ladies of the Methodist church served for cream on the lawn on the evening of the third.

The teachers engaged for the coming year are
