MIDSUMMER DULLNESS AFFECTS COAL TRADE.

Advance in Prices Has Had Little Effect—Some Talk of General Restriction—Iron Market Continues in an Unsatisfactory Condition—Make Up of the D., L. and W. Board for Today—Miners Will Have a Convention at Pittston Today—To Elect Officers.

Business continues quiet and the much-quoted "midsummer dullness" is held responsible for this condition. The advance in prices noted last week has had little effect one way or the other. Of course, it does not apply on existing contracts, and it is looked upon chiefly as a caution to dealers to close their fall contracts in good season. Very little new business has been done and the holiday on Wednesday added to the blank in trade.

Production in June was larger, and that for July will probably show well also, though there is some talk of a general restriction in mining. There is a general feeling, however, that good stocks on hand for the fall trade will do no harm.

There is less activity in shipments westward, as the Lake trade is well supplied, or perhaps, over-supplied at present.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

continues to be close and tight, and a great fight is being fought for the leadership. Brooklyn continues playing fine ball, and Philadelphia is playing a listless, maudlin game, which will send the Quakers down the ladder in short order, especially when the great work of Pittsburgh and Chicago is considered. The Pirates have now struck their pace and are playing a great game. Their pony pitchers are doing splendid work, and the team is putting up a fast, snappy article of the national game.

Chicago seems to be playing a little beyond its speed, and St. Louis, weakened by the absence from the game of some of its cracks, is far down in the race, while the New York Giants dimly bring up the rear. The American leaguers are at it hot and heavy, and the fight for the leadership is fast and exciting. Chicago and Milwaukee leading at present and the other teams being closely bunched.

Right From the Bat.

There was plenty of excitement on the diamond during the week, and it was probably the scrappiest period of the season. July 4 was celebrated in great style by Jack Doyle of the New Yorks who assaulted Umpire Emslie, who in return inflicted considerable damage on the peppery first baseman's countenance, and at Rochester by a lively tilt between Manager Buckenberger of Rochester and Barrow, of Toronto. The two men had a red hot argument over the forfeiture of the morning game to Rochester, in which Barry, called Buck several names which, to say the least, were not pet ones. Later he struck the Rochester man in the face with his fist. The case was settled before a local magistrate.

In Detroit, there was considerable excitement also, in the game with Buffalo. Dick Harley, as gentlemanly a player as is on the diamond electrified everyone by being put out of the game for using violent language to Umpire Dwyer.

Little "Kid" Eberfeld, also contributed a good deal of excitement, the general merriment by engaging in several altercations with Second Baseman Atherton of the Bisons. The big ex-Wilkes-Barrean shoved the little Detroit man off second base several times pretty roughly, and once flung him completely off his feet, at which the scrappy little fellow made a jump at Atherton, making a vicious attempt to spike him.

Frank Dillon is playing magnificent ball at Detroit, and is fielding first base in a grand style. The ex-Scranton boy is also hitting the ball fine.

Milligan, late of Scranton, is having hard luck at Buffalo and has not won a game yet. In every game he has played he himself has batted splendidly and in Tuesday's game at Detroit lined out a great three bagger.

Schrockengost, who caught last year for Cleveland and St. Louis, is being played in right field by Buffalo during Jake Gottman's absence from the game. The man with the barbed wire name is playing a good fielding game and hitting the ball like another LaJole.

There was a remarkable game played at Richmond, Ind., last Sunday between the All Kentuckians and the Richmond team. It took twenty innings to play the game and in all that time not a run was scored up to the twentieth inning when the colonels scored three. The Kentucky first baseman accepted thirty chances having twenty-eight put outs and two assists. Dries, second baseman on the same team had eight putouts, twelve assists and one error. Catcher Haberer had a two-bagger and five singles in eight times at bat and four put outs and eight assists. The Richmond team had eight hits and five errors, while the victors had eleven safe hits and three errors. The game was won by Dries, who smashed out a home run, when two men were on bases and there were two out. Pretty good work that for amateur teams.

Archie Stimmel, the stigmatized, slim pitcher who twirled for Allentown this season has been signed by Cincinnati and made his debut Tuesday against New York after Brutenstein had left the box. The man with the smile, as Scranton fans know him, pitched splendidly and held the Giants down to one run. Stimmel certainly is a good pitcher. He has fine curves, terrific speed and excellent control. In Tuesday's game he also made himself solid with the fans by making a time-by-single which sent in two runs. Stimmel proved a mystery to the Scranton team for a couple of games this season, but in the last two times that he faced Burnham's men he re-

The Iron Market.

The iron market continues in an unsatisfactory condition. Although we have closed the first half of the year very little new business is reported. The blast furnaces are generally keeping at work, though a few have gone out since the first of the month, and others are preparing to blow out. Some of the Eastern furnaces which continue have announced reductions in wages. The Alabama furnaces are affected by the trouble with the coal miners.

The usual summer shut-down for repairs in the rolling mills is reducing production. How long the mills will remain closed depends largely upon the settlement of wages.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Among the Pugs.

DOINGS IN the pugilistic world are not the liveliest just now, the majority of the big boys lying back and indulging in the chorus of the spectators at the Ringside. A few, however, are still in the ring, and are a go between Jeffries and Ruhlin. The giant champion and the big aspirant to the honors will give a splendid fight, one which would be full of interest, from the standpoint of the spectators at the Ringside. Both men are specimens of the genus fighter, pure and simple. Corbett, McCoy, Fitzsimmons, Choyneki on the one side represent the brains and headwork of the ring, and against them stand the stalwart figures of Jim Jeffries, Gus Ruhlin and Tom Sharkey, most promising members of the class of hard hitting fighters. And it is the stalwart lads who can endure punishment and can hit with telling effect, those work tells in the end better than the so-called scientific boxers. A few remarks about the men above will give some slight testimony to the truth of this assertion. Jeffries, champion of the world has been fighting only about three years, and in that short time has punished his way to the top notch, stepping over the bodies of ex-champions one after the other, victims of his prowess. Ruhlin, whose great victory over Sharkey makes him one of the most promising candidates for depositing the present champion has been in the ring but seven years, and has sold Sharkey who, despite the above mentioned beating from Ruhlin's hands, still remains one of the strongest men in the ring has only been in the business six years.

Jeffries and Ruhlin appear to be two men of the only John L. Sullivan type, and unless they follow in his footsteps and run the pace that kills
