A. R. JONES' BICYCLE STOLEN.

A. R. Jones, of the Carbondale Review, suffered the loss of his bicycle yesterday afternoon. At 5 o'clock he left it standing on the curb in front of the office, on Salem avenue. At and it was not there. When he left it he noticed a suspicious looking character eyeing him from the opposite corner and he believes the fellow took the wheel. The bicycle is a Spaulding, No. 10,053, model 1322, with blue enamel, red head and back-pedalling brake. The police of this city, Forest City, Olyphant and Scranton were notifled at once, but no clue had been obtained upto a late hour last night.

For an Editor to Recommend Patent

Medicines? From Selvan Valley News, Breyard, N. C. It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the markets, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have reters to the Judaizing teachers and their in-known and used this medicine in our sinuations that the law, especially circumcision, family for twenty years and have ala dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is await-We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure. but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. Susquehanna, July 24.-When turning an Erie Railroad switch near Pond Eddy on Saturday, a brakeman named La Courver was attacked by a bear which came suddenly out of a ravine. The brakeman had no weapon, but he soon found a crowbar left by some section men. With this he defended himself as best he could, yelling lustily all the time to a blacksmith named Lambert, who had a little ship just across the Delaware river. Lambert seized a rifle, and, jumping into a boat, rowed across the river and attacked the bear. It took two shots to put bruin hors de combat. The car-cass weighing 22 pounds. The bear had for weeks been carrying off sheep and calves belonging to the farmers of the vicinity.

an author, whose argument he seeks to overthrow to build up an argument in support of himself-I refer to Farrar. In Mr. Donley's sermon, in which he thought he had made a reply to mine he goes on to show up the inconsistency of Farrar, and now turns around and quotes him as an authority, But I think any one can see that Mr. Donley and his quotation from Farrar have proved nothing. On the other hand, in using Farrar's quotation he puts the knife to his own throat for I fully agree with Farrar's translation in which he says: "Since 'aion' meant an age 'aionios' means properly belonging to an age, or age long; and any one who asserts that it must always (remember he puts in that word always) mean endless," etc. I do not myself believe that as the word stands alone "always means endless," but in the majority of cases it does, and Farrar believes it does. I do not profess such classical lore as would imagine Mr. Donley possesses, but I do know that "aion" is composed of two words, "aei on"-always being-and that the words denote the whole duration of the thing to which applied. Take for example, Eph., iii:21. Him he glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages." Here it applies to the duration of that age. In I Cor., viii:13 we read, "Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend.

I will eat no flesh while the world standarh.

whole of the future existence. You will find I the best lexicographers agree with this lement, but possibly Mr. Donley's new theological seminary will disagree.

M. Haupt says: "'zoe alonios' is a description of divine life." At the same time the plain exegesis of the greater number of relevant pass-ages in the New Testament points rather to everlasting than merely "alonion" rewards or punishments. He further asserts that the "ele-thres aionics" of I Thess., v.il, and H Thees., i.9. the "teles" of Phil. could not give any the Methodist church is inconsistent by saying, "If only believers or one converted are saved and death ends probation, then infants and the heathen must be damned according to Methodist teaching." If a boy made that kind of an argument you would laugh at him; it is illegical to begin with and foolishness to end with. The Methodist church teaches that when a person has reached the age of accountability and can believe, if he does not or will not he will be 'damned," but infants not having arrived at

of the doctrine. Here they are and judge for yourself: Matt. xxii:11; Acts. iii:21; Phil., iii:21; I Tim., iii:4; Col., i:19-29; John, xii:17; I Tim., xi:4. Possibly the strongest one there is I Tim., ii:3-4, "God our Saviour who will have all men to be saved, for there is one God." Of course He will have all men to be saved and no one will dispute it for a single minute. But how about those nursens who will not allow Him to save them? He not declare in John, v:40, "And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life." And If they will not come, even though God wills to have all men saved they cannot be saved. All these passages of Scripture are good Methodist doctrine, my brother, and until you pro-duce something different from what you have already produced, my sermen and previous artele remain unanswered.
