CHALLENGE CAME PROMPTLY. Mr. Garr Was Omitted, but May

Stand for Mr. Bryden. The publication in yesterday's Tribune of Professor Hockenberry's intention to challenge Principal Bryden, of the high school, created quite a sensation. The challenge came promptly, however, just as was said it would.

Only Professor Bryden was chal-lenged, but if he does not care to accept the challenger has given him, option of substituting any friend in any way connected with the schools. In view of the novel method proposed to settle a question of this kind and of the prominence of the principals in educational circles throughout the state, the exact wording of the challenge will be of general interest. It should be stated that the challenger was trained for his profession in a state normal school, while the challenged is a graduate of Lafayette. Appended is the challenge:

"A certain man is said to have once prayed: 'O Lord save me from my Perhaps Professor Bryden should offer the same prayer. I have no ill feeling against the gentleman but his friends have had so much to say recently about my abilities that no fair minded man can blame me for the nction which I now take. "I hereby challenge W. D. Bryden to a competitive examination upon all the branches taught in the Carbondale public school. In order that this examination shall be fair and open it must be public and oral, I suggest the One or following method: branches of study shall be taken up at each meeting. These subjects shall be discussed by topic and the other be privileged to ask questions upon that topic. Then the other shall discuss a tople and his opponent ask questions. This shall be continued until the subjects shall have been exhausted or we are both satisfied.

"This will allow the public to form a fair estimate of how much we know about the subjects taught in our If Mr. Bryden enters this examination and passes it better than I do, I pledge myself to vote for him as principal of our high school and to do all that I can to secure his elec-

"If Mr. Bryden declines, and he dara not do otherwise, then I offer him the privilege of substituting for himself any friend whom he may have, who is connected in any official canacity with the schools of Carbondale, all the other conditions of the examination to remain the same. 'Surely if Mr. Bryden is so cultured and so up to date he will welcome this opportunity to prove his superiority before our citizens. I have asked only what is fair. Let him toe the mark or call off the pack which is yelping H. J. Hockenberry.

A UNION STATION?

A rumor was going the rounds yesterday to the effect that the Delaware and Hudson and Eric companies will erect a Union station at the westerly end of Salem avenue and that the present city station will be converted into a freight house. The desirability of having a more centrally located but the expense of the city station makes the plan seem improbable. Superintendent Manville is absent from the city and the story could not be

It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the markets, yet as a preventive of suffer ing we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. THE DIME NOVEL.

Has Been Subjected to Much Undeserved Census. Ellis, in a Letter to the New

It did me good to read the jovial letter of your Utica correspondent, and still more good to read your genial editorial "The Novels of Mr. Beadle." You will understand the cause of this city hospital, on Tuesday afternoon, pleasure on my part when I state that The Hunter's Cabin," and a whole lot of Beadle's dime novels, the names of which at this day I cannot recall. Ou: of that revelry of pen and imagination, I have but a solitary memento-"Seth the receipt of letters from boys and Jones," which a Brooklyn friend presented to me some time since,

It seems a good while ago, when I was in my teens, that I timidly sent the MS. of "Seth Jones" to the pubcheck and the invitation to sign a contract, which I did with boyish eagerness, after which, for several years, you couldn't hold me. The first dime novel was written by Ann S. Stephens, now composed of eighty first-class J. H. Duganne, Mrs. Mary A. Denison, aptain Mayne Reid and a well-known Episcopal clergyman who wrote under a nom de plume. Bret Harte, some time later, made a partial agreement to reader the idea does not occur that to join this corps, but accepted an offer from another publisher. So I believed I youths to engage in rash or reckless An interesting open air meeting was adventure. In my own case, I know I held at the corner of Union and Pond was always conscientious, and more adventure. In my own case, I know I than once Mr. Victor, the accomplished editor, told me I put too much religion and morality in my stories. This may sound incredible, but Mr. tor, the only surviving member of the old house of '98 William street,' will confirm it. I saw "Seth Jones" translated into several languages, and myself claimed as a native of other lands, while the sale went into the hundred thousands. 1 have written a good many juveniles since but they are bound in cloth, sell for $1.25 a volume, are admitted to have the right kind of a moral tone, may be found in hundreds of Sunday school libraries, and yet they are no better in the respect named than the old-time dime novel. The disrepute into which the dime ovel fell, however, had its cause. One day Mr. Beadle pointed out an employe to whom he was paying $16 a reek. "He is from Nova Scotia," he said, "and the best thing about him is that he is absolutely satisfied with his situation. He will never ask for an advance in wages, nor seek any other situation." Six weeks from that day this employe quietly threw up his job, and in conjunction with Ir win P. Beadle began publishing the "Ten Cent Novels." Then this former employe, George L. Munroe quietly got rid of Mr. Beadle and began his career as a publisher which made him a millionaire several times over. Those cheap novels were the stepping stone to his fortune, and if there was ever inmitigated trash, they belonged to that class. But they had a prodigious sale, and Mr. Beadle, against my protest, began lowering the tone of his publications to the same plane and I quit. Thus, with some justice, the "dime novel" became synonym for trash, sensationalism and nearly all that is degrading in literature. I grew to detest the name, and was glad when they passed out of existence.

Perhaps I may be pardoned in a note | A. W. BERTHOLF, ATTORNEY, MEARS BLDG, so personal as this to refer to the pleasure that is mine in meeting editors and persons in far more exalted situations than myself, who have nothing but kind words for me; and in girls in every part of the country, from England, India, Australia and the uttermost parts of the earth. One of my last was from a husky youth in the interior of New Zealand, who among other things wrote that if any person dared to deny the unapproachable merits (!) of my juveniles "he would feel the weight of a colonial fist right between the eyes."

Finally, although the dime novel ame and went a long time ago. I don't wish any one to consider me as in the ranks of old men. That limit is still good way off. Among the hundreds of cadets here at the Military academy there isn't one who feels younger than I, and my love of boyhood, true manliness, honest enjoyment and exuberant spirits and all that is for the true welfare of the rising generation is as deep,
