

ANOTHER OF THE SPECIAL REWARDS

A Full Year's Course in the Scranton Conservatory of Music.

THE LEADING CONTESTANTS

- Charles Rodriguez, 428 Webster avenue. Oliver Callahan, 415 Vine street. David V. Birtley, 331 Evans Court street. David C. Spencer, Bloomsburg. Harry Reese, 331 Evans court. Arthur Kemmerer, Factoryville. Edward Murray, 516 Hamm court. Sidney W. Hayes, 922 Olive street. Miss Grace Simrell, Carbondale.

Several of the contestants in the Tribune's Educational Contest brought in subscribers yesterday and were duly credited with points, but the standing this morning is not changed from that published yesterday, except that the name of Miss Grace Simrell, of Carbondale, is added to the list of leaders.

Scranton Conservatory of Music. The Tribune is proud to have among its special rewards a full year's scholarship in one of the leading educational institutions of Scranton—the Scranton Conservatory of Music.

taught in its entirety in the conservatory. The Faelten Piano Method. The Faelten method was evolved from the brains of Carl Faelten and his brother, Rheinhold Faelten. Carl Faelten is a noted German pianist, who was for many years head of the pianoforte department of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, and later became the director of that great institution.

on to the distinction of having the largest number of students of the piano of any institution in this country. Counting as it does its students by the hundreds, there must be vital elements in the Faelten method strangely endowed with magnetic drawing power. The method begins with the youngest children, and from the beginning grade to the graduating grade the student is developed in an entirely original manner, which produces the cultured musician and pianist to a degree which no other method does.

As Viewed by a Visitor. Let the reader consider himself a visitor at one of the fundamental or general training class lessons. As the hour strikes eight pupils file into the room and each seats himself at a piano. Then, in the time indicated by a metronome, and according to the state of progress of the pupil, there follows a drill in some of the following subjects: The touch, intervals and arpeggios in all the major and minor keys, technical exercises in varied forms, transcription, sight playing, keyboard harmony, etc., all of which is extremely interesting alike to witnesser and participants. Every student is stoutly bent upon his task. There is no flagging of attention. To make a mistake in a private lesson is a matter of small importance; but to make one here is another matter entirely. What others will think and say is as much to be regarded in this lesson as it is in the big world outside. And, then, the exhilaration that comes from so many interested in the same thing and doing the same thing in perfect time!

The Subjects Studied. Many of the subjects treated at great length in these lessons are never touched upon in private lessons. Among the books written and prepared by Mr. Faelten for use in these fundamental and general training classes are the following: "Fundamental Training," "Fundamental Reader," "Transposition Reader," "Exercises for Intermediate Grades," "Preparatory Exercises," "Keyboard Harmony," "Exercises and Scales," "Staff Reader" (course in sight reading), "Exercises for Advanced Grades," and others.

In the Scranton Conservatory the prices of tuition are reckoned by the school year, as they are in academies, colleges and universities. In the piano department the student has the choice among seven different courses in the Faelten method, comprising from two to six lessons per week, the tuition for which ranges from $30 to $120 per year. Private lessons may be had if desired. The course given as a special reward by the Tribune is a five course, known as course D, which includes three lessons per week.

The studios of the conservatory are unusually light, cheerful rooms. There are, in all, fourteen pianos and a pipe organ in the institution. The Faculty. The faculty in the pianoforte department of the conservatory will consist this coming year, beginning Sept. 13, of Professor J. Alfred Pennington and Miss M. A. French. Miss French is a graduate of the Faelten Pianoforte School, Boston, and has had the high distinction of being a teacher in this famous school during the past two years. It was on the special recommendation of Mr. Faelten that she was engaged by Mr. Pennington for next year.

Professor Pennington's first studies in piano and pipe organ with a musician of high attainments were with Bruno Oscar Klein, of New York city. A troublesome tramp did the DeLafayette act in getting into ten hours per day on Tuesday as a penalty for his misbehavior on the previous evening. Congressman Amos J. Cummings, of New York, is putting in his hours for catching big bass from the Susquehanna river near Columbia Grove, six miles north of Susquehanna. Amos has fished in nearly every stream in the country from the Pacific to the Indian river, in Florida.

On account of the illness of Miss Strong, of Starrosco, the Benson family reunion is postponed without date. There will be a great fruit crop this year in Susquehanna county. A meeting of the "Veteran Organization of Susquehanna County" will be held at the Mitchell House, in Hallettsville, on Saturday next for the purpose of electing a general commanding officer to succeed James Buckley, of Lancaster, who declines to accept of the position, and to name dates for holding the next annual encampment. The Baptist Sunday school at Brushville today joined the Susquehanna Baptist Sunday school at a picnic at the Cascade.

W. L. Lewin and daughter, Miss Jennie, have returned from a trip to Liverpool and the Paris Exposition. During the months of August and September all dogs found running loose in this borough unbraced will be shot. Thus saith a new borough warden. Mrs. Mary A. Reed, late of Windsor, N. Y., died on Tuesday morning at the residence of her son, Adolbert, in Oakland, in her seventy-third year. She is survived by her adult children. The funeral will take place from the Methodist church, in Windsor, on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Mr. McDonald officiating. The remains will be interred in the Windsor cemetery. Dr. J. A. Boyle left on Tuesday evening to visit relatives in Ottawa, Illinois. The French family reunion will be held at the home of George H. French, in North Jackson, Aug. 15.

NEW MILFORD

THE MARKETS.

- Wall Street Review. New York, Aug. 1.—Except for the declines in a handful of stocks the list of stock exchange securities was a sanguinary list. Most of the dealings entirely and transactions in option, prominent among them, were for the purchase of Sugar, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and Brooklyn Rapid Transit made the market. The market was generally strong and active, but there was some selling in the afternoon. The closing was a little irregular. Total sales, 196,000 shares.
