CONFERENCE ON FIRE ORDINANCE. There Was a Good Deal of Discussion, but No Definite Result Was Reached—Will Meet Tonight.

The fire committee of select council and the special committee of that body, appointed to consider some plan for the reorganization of the fire department, met last night in Select Councilman Chittenden's drug store, on Lackawanna Avenue, for the purpose of talking over the question and agreeing on some sort of a compromise measure. They didn't agree, however.

THE OTHERS HAD VARIOUS OBJECTIONS to offer. Mr. Flinn's principal one being that he didn't believe in disbanding the volunteer fire department, which he considered to be the best in the state. "Oh, no, it isn't," put in Mr. Chittenden. "For it isn't as good as our own. We've got to disband it one day. Everybody says that, and when we get it disbanded there will be no engineers going around the day after a fire and boasting of the number of lengths of new hose they succeeded in bursting. Every chief of the department is in favor of my ordinance except Mr. Walker."

BROKE GROUND FOR THE NEW ARMORY. CEREMONY ATTENDED WITH PLEASANT FORMALITIES. Parade, Speeches and Music Mark the Turning of the First Sod for the Big and Handsome New Home of the Thirtieth—Many Veterans of the Regiment Assist in the Exercises—Colonel Boies, Colonel Rippe and Colonel Coursen Extend Congratulations and Compliments.

Ground was broken for the new armory for the Thirtieth regiment, last night, with appropriate exercises, in which the trustees of the Scranton City guard, former officers of the regiment and the local companies participated. It was an impromptu, hurriedly arranged affair, but it is safe to say it will not be hurriedly forgotten by the several thousand who witnessed it.

THE EXERCISES. A stand had been erected near the southwest corner of the site and was illuminated with lines of incandescent lights. The occupants of the carriages took seats on the platform, the soldiers were drawn up in battalion formation in front, and the spectators, afoot and in carriages massed on the outside.

REVELLE WAS SOUNDLED, the regiment was called to "parade rest," the band played "America," the soldiers stood "at ease" and the exercises were then formally opened by Colonel Boies, as chairman, calling on Rev. Dr. Logan to make the invocation. This concluded, Colonel Boies spoke as follows: Colonel Watres, men of the Thirtieth Regiment, N. G. P., and fellow citizens: Twenty-three years ago this May the peaceful and beautiful streets of this city were the scene of that terrible tumult and bloody rioting which caused the organization of the Scranton City Guard.

IN THE OLD DAYS. Probably very few who are present tonight know very much of those days of excitement, disorder, anarchy and terror which preceded the organization of the Scranton City Guard. The frequent undisciplined murders of coal operators, and mine foremen, by the daily Maguire; the burning of coal breakers; the destruction of property; the riotous parades through our streets of men armed with clubs, dorying the law, and driving men who desired to work from the mines and their shops; highway robberies by gamblers and others; unrestrained drunkenness and bloody fights had given the coal regions a reputation that caused the city to be called Life was insecure, property in peril, real estate unmarketable, public improvements halted, and it seemed that every business enterprise must abandon the locality and leave the city to come, when the coal should be exhausted, a deserted mine town, a habitation of bats and owls.

What a marvelous transformation has occurred since that time, fellow citizens. Domestic peace, order, security and prosperity have attended the historic annals of this regiment, of which Scranton is so justly proud. Our city has more than doubled in population and trebled in wealth. Its public and private buildings, its well-paved streets, its pleasant homes, create the admiration of every visitor. Capital no longer hesitates to start the wheels of profitable industry in our midst, labor flows to us from every nation under the sun. The products of the soil, the future blooms with hope. This Scranton City Guard has not only a

Shoo! Three Dollars Worth For $1.50 Saturday at Jonas Long's Sons.

ITS INSPIRED THE GUARD. His patience under discipline, his devotion to duty, his patriotic sacrifice of time and convenience, the earnest, hard work of its officers, not only gradually promoted it to the first place among the organizations of our commonwealth, but the inspiration and stimulus of its example very largely made the National Guard of Pennsylvania to be acknowledged the finest body of citizen soldiery in the United States, and the world. When the president called for volunteers to defend the nation, Colonel Coursen took it into camp with full ranks, and there it as his duty and responsibility discharged the supreme duties of patriotism which it had been tested in the field of battle, for which it was ever ready.

THREE CHEERS AND TIGER. When he had ended he was loudly applauded and at a call from Colonel Watres, the regiment gave three rousing cheers and a tiger for Colonel Boies and the trustees. Colonel Boies bowed his acknowledgments, and after expressing regret that Colonel F. L. Hitchcock, the second commander of the Thirtieth, had gotten out of town before the exercises, called on the trustees, calling on Colonel Rippe for an address. Colonel Rippe said the ground had been so thoroughly covered by Colonel Boies that there was little left for him to say. He would, however, take the occasion to publicly acknowledge the debt we owe to Colonel Rippe, to whom, more than anyone else, is due the credit for what the Thirtieth is and has been.

CONGRATULATING THE REGIMENT on the fulfillment of the fond hope it had nourished for so many years. Colonel H. A. Coursen was then introduced by Colonel Boies as "the hero of two wars." Colonel Coursen spoke feelingly of his associations with the regiment and how he had longingly looked forward to the time when the city would have an armory "big enough and grand enough to house this great regiment, a regiment which has honored itself, its city and its state."

PRESENTED HIS BOND. Mr. Schroeder said he would do his best to fulfill the contract and then presented his bond for a faithful performance of the work. "It is hardly necessary," said Colonel Boies, "but as a formality, I will take it." Then Foreman Frank Schroeder appeared with a new shovel and escorted the officers to the spot where the corner stone will rest, each in turn dug up a shovel full of earth, Colonel Boies leading and then following in the order named, Colonel Rippe, Colonel Coursen, Colonel Watres, Dr. Logan, Major Miller, Major Robbins, Captain Stokes and Capt. Moir. "Tap!" Miles and the exercises were at an end.

NARUSZYS CHARGED WITH MISKUS MURDER. ANDREW MILLER SWORE OUT THE WARRANT.

Because of the Statement Made by Miller and Published in Yesterday's Tribune, He Was Assaulted by Naruszys Last Evening—His Arrest Followed Shortly Afterward and He Was Lodged in the North Scranton Police Station—County Detective Leyshon Believes Miskus Was Murdered.

Impatient at the delay of the authorities in acting definitely upon the information furnished by an alleged eyewitness of the killing of John Miskus, Andrew Miller yesterday proceeded on his own account to prosecute the accused slayer, and last night Miskus Naruszys was locked up in the North Scranton station house, charged with the crime.

HE WAS MURDERED. That Miskus was not killed by a railroad train, but foully murdered, County Detective Leyshon firmly believes. He believed it from the first and has had his belief strengthened in many ways since, but he has grave doubts of ever being able to bring the guilty parties to justice.

ONE NECESSARY. The evidence of one of these is absolutely necessary, the county detective says, to complete the chain of evidence. Lozowski did not see the killing. He was sent out after beer, and when he returned Miskus was lying on the floor, with a fractured skull, while one of the party stood over him with a blood-stained bottle in his hand.
