WOOLLEY WILL BE IN CITY.

Intends to Spend the Night of Aug. 20 in Scranton.
Hon. John G. Woolley, prohibition candidate for president, will speak at Ararat camp meeting, Susquehanna county, on Monday, August 20. The Women's Christian Temperance union of Thompson will give him a reception upon his arrival at the camp grounds. He will arrive in this city at 11:25 on the night of the same day. On the morning of August 21 he will take the 9:10 special train for Mount Pleasant Park, where he will spend the day at the annual temperance reunion and deliver an address. Mrs. Annal M. Holvey, of West Pittston, will also deliver an address, entitled "Facts and Fallacies."

Musie will be furnished by the West Pittston Male choir, consisting of W. H. Holvey, Richard Dando, William Wicks, John Monte, Walter Schofield, Christopher M. Taggart, William Laidler, John Bantfield, the organist being Mrs. William Wicks. This choir will give a song service of popular selections. The Misses Hughes, of West Pittston, will also sing one or more duets.

SHE IS A LOVER OF DUMB ANIMALS

Care Mrs. William Bowers Takes of Her Pets—Advertised for Good Homes for Little Kittens.

Have you ever noticed a young woman in West Scranton who is always accompanied by two large hand-some dogs, one a Shepherd Scotch Collie and the other a Newfoundland? She is Mrs. William Bowers, of 1011 Washington street. Very seldom she stops to talk with any one, and all her leisure time is devoted to the care of her dogs, cats and birds.

Her mission is that of a humanitarian among animals, and while she is not identified with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, she is nevertheless a member of the Animal Protective league, of New York, and is a personal friend and advisor of Virginia Pope, whose reputation among lovers of animals is known all over the world. She also knows the pedigree of many of the most famous animals living, and can talk interestingly about all of them. The woman mourns its loss as much as many people do a child. During the cat's illness a veterinary surgeon made regular calls and treated the animal, but despite such care pussy succumbed to the inevitable.

Instead of digging a grave in the back yard for the dead pet or throwing its lifeless body over the back fence, Mrs. Bowers made a coffin, trimmed it with a silk lining and perfumed the casket with flowers. She then carried it to the Round Woods, where a suitable grave was dug and the remains interred. Only one mourner was at the grave, but she showed signs of the truest grief.
An instance of the woman's thoughtfulness and kindness was illustrated recently when she was passing a stable where a horse had his head poked through a window. Only one familiar noise which indicates that a horse is thirsty. Mrs. Bowers personally carried all the water to the horse that he could drink, and after patting him gently on the head, went her way.
Recently she inserted this ad. in the Tribune: "I would like to find good homes for seven very pretty, clean little kitten. Will give only as pets." She found good homes for them. Some of the applications she received came from people as far distant as Binghamton and Buffalo.

TELL THE TRUTH.

$4.50—Ocean Grove—$4.50.
Asbury Park and Long Branch, Sunday, August 11th.
An article in last night's Times states the only excursion to the seashore August 11th, is by D. L. and W. R. R. That is NO TRUTH. The Central Railroad of New Jersey will be on hand with their seashore excursion. The only line running through trains to and from the seashore. Mr. P. H. Durkin will do the catering. Special train will leave Scranton at 8:15 a. m.
The article also states that the Trunk Line association announces their excursion to the only one to the seashore from Scranton, etc. The Trunk Line association has NOT MADE any such announcement. A copy of the minutes of the last meeting of the Trunk Line association can be seen at district passenger agent's office, 692 West Lackawanna avenue, and any person calling can see them. Do not be deceived by unscrupulous advertisements about excursions to other points, as they do not go within one hundred miles of Ocean Grove, Asbury Park and Long Branch. It is the height of the season at these popular resorts. This will unquestionably be the largest seashore excursion out of Scranton this season. The Jersey Central will run another excursion to seashore later in the season. There are not six trains or five trains on any line or lines between the seashore and Scranton. There are three fair connections and one very poor one. Ocean Grove tickets are good to return on any regular train within ten days and no change of cars. Gentlemen, your next card."

REYNOLDS ALLEGES CHEATING WAS DONE

SENSATIONAL EQUITY SUIT GROWS OUT OF COAL DEAL.

H. B. Reynolds Makes Claim That Former Fellow-Directors in the People's Coal Company Got Possession of His Stock by a Ruse and Then Refused to Give It Back as Per Agreement—Defendants Say He is Accompanying—Syrian Priest Sued for Damages.

Judge H. M. Edwards, yesterday, entered upon the hearing of the sensational equity suit of H. B. Reynolds, complainant, and W. P. Boland, C. G. Boland, John A. Mears and the People's Coal company, defendants. It is a suit to compel the defendants to re-assign certain shares of stock in the People's Coal company which the complainant alleges he turned over to W. P. Boland with an understanding that they should be re-assigned after a time.

Under a written instrument of Dec. 10, 1898, S. N. Stettler, George S. Horn, C. G. Boland, W. P. Boland and H. B. Reynolds, according to Mr. Reynolds' statement, agreed to organize the People's Coal company to work several tracts on the West Side controlled by Mr. Stettler. The capital stock was fixed at $5,000, divided into fifty shares of $100 each.

Mr. Stettler, it was agreed, should have 26 shares and each of the others six shares, which would give Mr. Stettler a controlling interest. The profits, however, were to be so divided that Stettler was to have 28 per cent, and each of the others 18 per cent. The complainant paid in $125 as his share of the 10 per cent assessment, and later, when the capital stock was increased to $100,000, he paid his pro rata share of the increase. Stettler and C. G. Boland, it is alleged by Reynolds, had their stock subscribed by Ira L. Rowland and W. J. Lewis.

After the charter had been secured C. G. Boland and George S. Horn assigned their stock jointly to Reynolds and W. P. Boland. When the plaintiff acquired an additional 18 per cent of the capital stock.

OBJECTED TO REYNOLDS.

It appears Mr. Stettler objected to Mr. Reynolds having an interest in the company and on June 3, 1899, W. P. Boland requested Mr. Reynolds to assign to him all his interest in the coal company and its leases, agreeing in writing, to re-assign these interests, after the company had been organized, when the objections of Stettler could be safely ignored. Reynolds made the assignment and took from W. P. Boland a signed statement setting forth the purpose of the transfer and the agreement to re-assign.

About the time of the transfer, Mr. Reynolds goes on to relate, John A. Mears became interested in the company, and did so with full knowledge of the plaintiff's interests and the purpose of the transfer. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Mears and C. G. Boland became stockholders, but the plaintiff does not know how they procured their stock or how much of it they procured, but believes the interests which he held and which were being carried in trust for him by W. P. Boland, were transferred to Mears and C. G. Boland.

The plaintiff made demands upon W. P. Boland for the stock, but his demand was ignored and denial was made by W. P. Boland of any agreement to re-assign. Mr. Reynolds closes by reciting that C. G. Boland and W. P. Boland are brothers, and that A. Mears is a close friend of both, and that in his belief the three have combined to cheat him out of his interests in the company.

DEFENDANTS MAKE DENIAL.

The defendants deny that any such agreement as Reynolds speaks of was ever delivered by W. P. Boland to Reynolds, and claim that the transfer was the result of an unconditional sale, in proof of which they exhibit a written agreement, containing Reynolds' alleged signature, in which it is set forth that the transfer was an outright sale on consideration of $10,000. They also make specific denial of the allegations that the stock originally held by Stettler and C. G. Boland was subscribed for them by Rowland and Lewis, or that Mears had any knowledge of the alleged agreement to make a re-assignment to Reynolds of the stock he transferred to Boland.

They also deny that there was any cheating or attempted cheating, and aver that Reynolds has no standing whatever in the company.

The hearing was opened yesterday by the plaintiff calling W. P. Boland up for cross-examination and George S. Horn for direct examination. The matters gone over were mostly of a preliminary nature.

E. C. Newcomb represents the plaintiff. The defendants' attorneys are Joseph O'Brien, Herman Osthaus and John T. Lenahan, of Wilkes-Barre.

Priest Stopped the Marriage.

For having been instrumental in preventing the marriage of Naship Etulee and the girl he loves, Rev. Joseph Simon, the Assyrian priest of West Scranton, yesterday, made defendant in a $5,000 trespass suit.
The plaintiff says he was engaged to marry Sadie Millard and went with her to the clerk of the courts' office last Monday to procure a license. While the license was being prepared, Rev. Father Simon, it is alleged, came on the scene and made the declaration that Etulee was already married, having wed his father Simon's sister, Mary Simon, January 1, 1900. The ceremony, he said was performed at a South Side church and he was the officiating clergyman. This statement Millard refused to marry Etulee and hence the suit.
Etulee declares that Father Simon's statement is false and malicious and further makes the allegation that Father Simon on Tuesday last agreed to withdraw his opposition if Etulee would pay $100 to Mary Simon.

A capias was issued for the defendant and he will come in this morning to enter $1,000 bail for his appearance at court. C. H. Soper is the plaintiff's attorney.

Rev. Joseph Simon utterly denies Etulee's version of the case and says that eight months ago he joined in wedlock Etulee and Mary Gargory, otherwise known as Simon, and that two months ago Etulee deserted his wife. Father Simon says that he can produce several witnesses who were present at the wedding, among whom is Father Walker. He also claims that on various occasions Etulee has made threats on his life.

MANY EVIDENCES OF ESTEEM AND REGARD

Services Over the Remains of Thomas P. Wendover Conducted in the Penn Avenue Church.

About four hundred persons attended the funeral services of the late Thomas P. Wendover, last night, at the home, 313 Madison avenue, the members of the Knights of Maccabees, Knights of Malta, Red Men and Foresters, of which organizations he was a prominent member, attending in a body.

Following the services the remains were removed to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western station, and at 11:35 o'clock left for Union City, Erie county, Pa., where they will begin interment. They were accompanied by D. B. Williams, representing the funeral home, and G. S. Ridgeway, proved Order of Red Men; James Hudson, of the Knights of Maccabees, and I. O. Ives, of the Knights of Malta.

Services were held at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. Fielding of the Penn Avenue Baptist church, preached the funeral sermon, after several selections had been rendered by a selected quartette. Rev. Fielding spoke touchingly of the deceased and his noble, upright character, and paid an eloquent tribute to his entire life.

The members of the commandery of the Knights of Maccabees also had a very large representation present to mourn the loss of their grand deputy commander, Scranton, Hyde Park and Electric City lodges sent about a hundred and fifty members to the services, and these, together with a large number of the ladies of Scranton live, Ladies of the Maccabees, were in charge of Past Commander P. J. O'Hara, Pocono tribe, No. 220, improved Order of Red Men, was represented by about seventy members, led by David Williams and the Foresters also sent a delegation.

Sir Knight Commander Frank B. Reese, of Anthracite commandery, No. 211, Knights of Malta, and the prelate of the commandery, C. O. Swartz, were in charge of the ceremony, and conducted the Malta ritual service, after which the remains were taken to the station.

The active pallbearers were: James Hudson, John J. Collins and Ernest E. York, of the Maccabees; E. F. Altmeyer, of the Knights of Malta; T. H. Jackson, of the Foresters, and Marshall Thomson, of the Red Men. The pallbearers were: A. D. Van Buskirk and C. L. Teeter, of the Maccabees, and G. C. Richter and Thos. Barber, of the Knights of Malta.

Floral tributes were many, there being a wealth of beautiful flowers, and a large number of the best-known in which the deceased was held. The lodge of Odd Fellows, of which Mr. Wendover was a member, sent a handsome floral sword, the Knights of Maccabees, pedestal of roses; the Knights of Malta, an anchor; the Grand Lodge of the Grand Lodge, in whose employ Mr. Wendover was, a broken shaft of roses, and there were many other beautiful tokens from relatives and friends.

THAT HIGH SCHOOL BERTH.

Prospective Candidates for Place in the Faculty.

Considerable comment is being indulged in as to who is slated to secure the vacant berth in the High School, caused by the resignation of Miss Mattie Gregg, chief instructor in mathematics, and the promotion to her place of Professor William Schimpff.

Professor Kemmerling, of No. 25 school, seems to be one of the most available candidates for the position but there are also several other Richmonds in the field. In case Professor Kemmerling secures the place, there will be a rush for his berth.

Among those mentioned as a prospective candidate is Professor Thomas, of Keaton's Academy.

WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

An Easy Problem in Economics.
The piano pupils of the Conservatory of Music can, if they desire, have half-hour private lessons for $1 or $1.50 per lesson. They may, also, have whole hour lessons, with every minute fully utilized, for half or less than half the money under the Faesten system. The conservatory faculty, composed of teachers of mode than ordinary training and experience, affirm and are prepared to prove, that pupils under the Faesten system will make twice the progress. Which method do you suppose the seventy new pupils have chosen? Which would you choose?

CASE OF MRS. NEWELL REVIVED BY BROTHER

EXPLAINS THE POSITION OF HER FAMILY.

While They Did Not Approve of Her Espousal of the Dowry Faith There Was No Severance of Friendly Relations in Consequence—Mr. Newell Did Everything a Loving, Devoted Husband Could Have Done Under the Circumstances—Why Father Agreed to the Inquest.

The appended letter has been received by The Tribune with a request that it be printed. It is from Francis W. Hanawalt, of the department of mathematics and astronomy of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

Mr. Hanawalt is a brother of Mrs. Charles F. Newell, a believer in the Divine faith, who died several months ago at Throop under circumstances that led to an investigation by Coroner J. J. Roberts, it being alleged that she did not receive proper treatment. The letter is as follows:
To the Public, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, July 31, 1900.
It is now over three months since the sad death of my sister, Mrs. Charles F. Newell, and I feel that there are yet some things which should be in the interest of truth which will relieve the public mind of certain wrong impressions. It is due the memory of her who is departed, to the identity of the three-stricken husband, and to the memory of the many friends and relatives. It shall not be my purpose to criticize or impugn the motives of any, but that the press contained many erroneous statements very cleverly concocted.

Sister Lydia was born May 1, 1870, in Monticello, Ind., the youngest child of Abram and Catherine Hanawalt. Mother died in a little less than two years, leaving a family of six, myself being the eldest and but thirteen. One brother has since died. We grew up without a mother. Sister Flora, Mrs. L. M. Campbell, living now at Keosauqua, Ind., was my next sister, and the only mother she ever knew. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church when fifteen and graduated from the Monticello High school at the age of nineteen. During the year 1888-'89 she attended Mr. Morris college (Ill.), living in my home. Had her father permitted she expected to enter Mrs. Lucy Rider Meyer's singing school at Chicago. Being a great fond of music, she naturally entered upon the labors of a singing evangelist, doing some work in Indiana, Iowa and Ohio before going to Pennsylvania.

CAME TO SCRANTON.

Through the influence of one of the home young men, now a Presbyterian pastor in Logansport, Ind., she accepted a position in the "mission" at Scranton. This was in the spring of 1896, just after her visit at Geese Camp, Ind., where Sister Flora and myself were then living. This work she continued for six months. Until her marriage in October, 1897, she worked on her own responsibility, singing, lecturing and general evangelistic work. After her marriage to Rev. Charles F. Newell they labored together in the same field.
It has been said that she was alienated from her family; that the members often "sighed for the absence of Lydia," etc., and "that she did not remain in communication with her folks as indicated clearly by the letters of her father." The facts are that she wrote very frequently to each of us whenever we were separated. I have been away from her most of the time since 1898. But all of this period I have regularly received and answered her letters. She wrote to Sister Flora still often; to Brother Alvin, living beside the old home in Monticello, she wrote at Chambers, Ind., near Monticello.
Father never wrote to any of us very often, being busy at his trade, and depending on some of the others to do so. I never saw or heard from him. During the summer of 1897 father visited her in Scranton and met Mr. Newell. There was no alienation, we always knew her plans. When she saw to it to keep the home with her, she told us. Of course, we do not understand why and never thought she would carry it to such an extreme end. But it is hardly kind or true to call this action "disobedient mentality," nor is it to say her mind was of the "dramatically impressionable sort" because she believed in a religious life as her calling and other stranger statements which I will not repeat. The facts do not warrant such statements. She was enthusiastic in her singing, in her talking and in her thinking, but not more. She never visited any "boarding school" where singing evangelists are or were regularly stationed.

A GREAT INJUSTICE!

It was stated that "all went well until the relatives in some manner learned of her death." Greater injustice could hardly be done to a faithful husband, who immediately telegraphed to the family. There was some delay in Sister Flora and myself getting the news, but in no way was it his fault. Another false statement which I cannot repeat was made regarding the preparation for burial. How such wholly false sensational could find its way into print is hard to see. Every point here hinted at can be clearly proven.

The greatest error of statement, perhaps, was that the "civics" insisted on a post-mortem examination." This is totally incorrect. It will not be possible for those on the outside to thoroughly understand the situation. I will try, however, to give a few facts to make myself clear. We all knew something of the dangers through which Sister Lydia was passing. Before and after hearing of the birth of the little girl several letters were written to her, and she was in the best care and medical attention. Mr. Newell had provided this if she had only been willing to receive it. Her death came suddenly. It was supposed she would soon recover, but a great shock to all of us when the death news came. Nothing since mother's death so distressed me, notwithstanding I knew something of the peculiar circumstances which were the cause of the particulars. It seemed as though we could hardly endure to wait for the mail. After answering the telegram by a telegram and letter, and before Mr. Newell had had time to arrive, my sister in Indiana wrote a letter to a third party, being only anxious to secure information from any source.

The connections with the Dowry faith did cause some misgivings on our part. Had all that has since happened been known, of course, this letter would never have been written. From this came the letters and telegram from Scranton to father which have never been published, and should be for your own clear understanding of the case.

A careful reading of my father's letter, which he wrote in answer, however, shows where the first suggestion originated as to the post-mortem examination. It was not from any of us. The body had been properly embalmed and buried in accordance with the certificate from the coroner, who himself said that when he allowed a burial he was through with it. By the public print he was made a leader in the investigation, but the facts are otherwise. Such statements as those referred to above, of course, clearly leave an impression that the relatives are arrayed against our brother.

ENTIRE CONFIDENCE IN HIM.

Such is not the case. We have through all the trying circumstances, including the recent death of Baby Lydia, had entire confidence in him. He has never been in any of our delusions as the Dowry faith. There is no word against him in father's letter, and no supposition on our part has ever been lodged against him. The only thing that has been put in the evidence before them, which, by the way, was not published, bring in a verdict that he had neglected his wife during her illness, and that the neglect was culpable, when the facts are that he did everything he could do under the peculiar circumstances? The relatives never acted through any one for an investigation. True, father consented to one, but did not favor it until false representations were made to him and then only to furnish evidence against the Dowry delusion. The representation to him was that the public had been misled, and that an investigation would follow whether he gave his consent or not. My sister's inquiry was no reason for making anything public and injuring our brother and reflecting upon the relatives. As stated at the first, it is not the object of this letter to judge motives or to locate responsibility, even on those who have blindly followed the faith cure idea, but to correct some of the errors which have been left in the public mind.

THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

State Body Will Assemble at Harrisburg, Aug. 21.

The assembling of the state body of the Knights of Pythias in Harrisburg on Tuesday, August 21, and the sessions which will be held during that week will be of unusual interest. There has been an effort made by the members of the order in the western part of the state to have the grand officers remove their headquarters from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, and the eastern lodges are opposing it. This will attract many interested knights outside of the regular delegates, and the session will be well attended at which this matter will be settled. The lodges are pretty evenly divided on the question, and the east and west will be drawn up on either side.

There will be 500 representatives in attendance at the meeting of the Grand Lodge, and in addition to these there will be about 2,000 visiting members of the order. The Harrisburg lodges are preparing to give the visitors an adequate reception.

Troublesome to the Army. During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor, of Wirt Ridge, Greene county, Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such quick relief. It is for sale by all druggists, Matthew Brothers, wholesale and retail agents.
