

HARD TASK TO SECURE CANDIDATES

Judge John P. Kelly, in the following speech:

KELLY NOMINATED.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Convention—It may be said that our choice of candidates for additional law judges has been determined by recent events and that we are controlled by the governor's appointment. Well, casual vacancy on the bench by an appointment from his own party is a less desirable method of filling the office than the election of a man by the people.

Some one had the good sense to suggest that an expression of the members of the bar be taken as to their choice in the matter. The suggestion met with such favor that it was adopted promptly, and with great enthusiasm, without distinction of party in the choice of one of our foremost members, and that member was a Democrat, Governor Stone, a lawyer himself, had the wisdom to defer to this action on the part of the bar and to appoint the man of its choice.

It is to be remembered that in the whole community there is no person of elevated position having so much at stake in the matter, as it is of such vital importance that the judiciary be of the highest caliber for learning, ability and impartiality, so that when they sit in the seat of justice they will be able to give to the people a fair and impartial trial. It is in the interest of the public that the highest quality of the judiciary be secured.

Yet, if the governor in making the appointment had ignored the expressed wish of the bar, it would have given me great pleasure to stand here today and yet in nomination for the office of additional law judge. I now do so in the nomination of Judge John P. Kelly.

In the district in which he has been elected, he is a native of this county and a product of her institutions. Born just beyond the village of Scranton, in the borough of Olyphant, he received his education in the public schools of this city, where he grew up with the advantages of our public schools, graduating from the high school in 1887. In his vocation he is a lawyer, and he has been practicing law for many years.

Standing now at the prime of his manhood, having attained the full maturity of his powers, blessed with an abundance of good health, and with the promise of many years of usefulness before him, enjoying in the highest degree the confidence of the community, and with the bar of this county, which is the highest honor bestowed, standing sponsor for him, may I not say without extravagance of speech that in his person we offer to the public a man of the highest caliber, and one who is well qualified to fill the office of additional law judge.

The name of Judge Kelly was greeted by a hearty outburst of applause and it was renewed when the nominating speech was concluded. Judge Kelly was nominated by acclamation and the convention then proceeded to the nomination of a congressman.

Attorney W. M. Bunnell, by courtesy of the convention, was given the privilege of the floor, and placed Attorney M. F. Conry in nomination. In a speech in which he referred to the rise of Mr. Conry from a lowly worker in a coal breaker to the proud position of a prominent member of the Lackawanna county bar, Mr. Bunnell dwelt upon the importance of the coming election and the necessity of having men in congress to promote the cause of government advanced by the Democratic party.

When Mr. Conry was placed in nomination, his name was greeted by one of the heartiest outbursts of applause of the convention. The nomination was seconded by Joseph O'Brien, who also moved that the nomination be made by acclamation, and this was done.

to fill in the gap in the ticket. He had no idea that Law would accept when he nominated him. Attorney M. J. Walsh nominated Fred W. Warnke for recorder of deeds, and he was accorded the honor by acclamation.

The first contest of the convention came when the office of register of wills was reached. Attorney Douglas Ward nominated William Koch, Jr., the present register, and Charles Dougherty of North Scranton, nominated John E. Regan, of the Sixth ward. The vote was as follows:

Koch 52
Regan 62 1/2

REGAN WAS DEFEATED. Koch was declared the nominee and the work of nominating candidates for jury commissioner was taken up. P. F. Honan handed the following paper to the chairman of the Democratic County Convention:

Dear Sir: We hereby withdraw our names as candidates for jury commissioner and respectfully request our friends in the convention to vote their votes and influence in favor of Daniel J. Campbell for that office. We want to see harmony in the convention and the ticket elected, and this act of ours is for the purpose of promoting both. Yours respectfully, M. J. O'Malley.

Then set in the tornado of eloquence which accompanied the nomination of candidates for jury commissioner. The withdrawal of candidates O'Malley and Kane and the pressing forward of D. J. Campbell caused the heat of the other candidates and their supporters to arise rapidly and their feelings cropped out in the course of the nominating speeches.

Mr. Beers, of Jefferson township, named J. J. Carden, of Carbondale; P. J. White, of Scranton; and John E. Flynn, of Archbald, and pleaded for a recognition of that borough on the ticket. Dan Battle, former common councilman of the Twentieth ward, made a red hot speech in placing Thomas F. McCann, of South Scranton, in nomination. The name of D. J. Campbell was presented by M. A. McGlinchey, and the nomination was seconded by E. C. Newcomb, who spoke of the importance of the office of jury commissioner at this time and said in this emergency it was a favor to the party that a man of Mr. Campbell's recognized integrity and position in this community should offer himself as a candidate for an office that offers almost nothing in the way of emolument.

Mr. Conry, in the doorway leading into his rear enclosure, was given a good reception and mounted the judge's bench, addressed the assemblage: "I sincerely appreciate this magnificent demonstration of your devotion to the Democratic party," said Mr. Conry, "and it is my unalterable determination to show my appreciation of this nomination by a fearless and determined fight for the success of Democracy in Lackawanna county this fall."

He then spoke of the rights and privileges of men, the constitution of the United States, our glorious form of government and his desire to see the "sublimity of a free government transmitted to the remotest posterity. He unqualifiedly endorsed the Democratic national platform, which he thought the greatest declaration of human rights ever written. Had he it in his power to change the platform he would not alter the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t." He denounced imperialism, the Porto Rican tariff, the Cuban postoffice frauds and many other things. He said the country would be redeemed by the election of William Jennings Bryan.

The Archbald delegates were much incensed over the result of the fight for jury commissioner. Their favorite, John E. Flynn, has been looking for that nomination for a number of years and has always been stood aside. His friends and the Archbald delegation in general were in a very ugly frame of mind after the convention and said some things that were very tart.

PRICE WAS NOT HIGH ENOUGH. There was much complaint among some of the delegates over the fact that the amount allowed delegates for "expenses" was far too low, according to their view of the matter.

So angry were some of the delegates that they refused to accept anything. William Kane, who withdrew from the fight for jury commissioner yesterday afternoon and made the nomination of D. J. Campbell possible, had a large number of delegates pledged to him and would have made a great showing had his name gone before the convention. He made a systematic canvass of the county and proved that as a campaigner he had no superior among the candidates before yesterday's convention.

INDUSTRIAL NOTINGS.

Test of the Hauling Powers of D. L. & W. and O. & W. Engines—Board for Today. The officials of the Lackawanna and Ontario and Western railroads, who are interested in the comparative hauling powers of the Cook and Brooks types of locomotives, made an actual test of the comparative strength of Engine No. 201, of the Ontario and Western railroad, and No. 853, of the Lackawanna, in a tonnage test between Scranton and Lehigh yesterday.

The same number of cars were used, and each engine pulled the trip over the grade in a little over two hours. The test was eminently satisfactory to the Lackawanna officials, and proved that their "bug" engines can do the work if the engineers do theirs. The officials who went over the grade were Superintendent of Motive Power West, Division Superintendent Williams and Traveling Engineer O'Neill, of the Ontario and Western railroad, Division Superintendent Salsburg, Superintendent of Transportation Day, Traveling Engineer Brown and Chief Draughtsman Mellon, of the Lackawanna railroad.

The party took dinner at Hanley's at 3 o'clock, when they returned from the first trip, and the second test was made late in the afternoon, the train leaving the Lackawanna yards shortly before 4 o'clock.
