SEVENTH ANNUAL CLAM BAKE
Locomotive Engineers Will Entertain at Lake Poyntelle.
The chief topic of conversation during the past few weeks among all railroad men, as well as their friends, who have been so fortunate in the past as to have attended the annual clam bake of the George W. West division, No. 468, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in this year's clam bake, which is to be held at Lake Poyntelle tomorrow.
Few people who have not heretofore attended these affairs can realize what a real clam bake consists of. The engineers have always had the name of having the finest bake ever given in this part of the state, and this year intend to surpass every effort heretofore made by them. They have accordingly secured the services of Ward Edwards, of New York city, to take charge of the affair. As the New York state and New Jersey brothers intend sending delegations, arrangements have been made for special train service for them.
An idea of the bake can be gleaned from the fact that an order for 1,000 pounds of chicken, one hundred thousand and twenty barrels of sweet potatoes, and 1,000 blue fish was recently placed for the occasion, a special refrigerator car being used to transport the order to the lake.
The special train bearing the excursionists from the city and surrounding towns will leave the New York, Ontario and Western station at 8 a. m. Another train will leave Scranton at 10:40 a. m.

BRUTALLY BEAT HIS WIFE.
She Was in the Hospital and He Is in Jail.
As the result of beating his wife with a stove raker, late last night, John Dempsey, of 17 Capouse avenue, spent the night in the Central Police station, and will be given a hearing in police court this morning, and Mrs. Dempsey had her injuries, which consisted of several cuts on the head, and bruises about the back and shoulders treated at the Lackawanna hospital.
Dempsey has been arrested on several previous occasions, for inhumanly beating his wife. Last night he drank more than was good for him and about 11:30 o'clock began to abuse his wife. He began by swearing at her, and calling her vile epithets, and then proceeded to beat her.
He used an iron stove raker, and Mrs. Dempsey screamed loud in pain. Her cries of agony woke up several of the neighbors. They rose, dressed hurriedly and went to her assistance, only to find the door of the house closed. In answer to their cries to open, all that could be heard was the dull thud of blows, and the groans and cries of Mrs. Dempsey, mingled with the oaths and curses of her husband.
Patrolman McColligan was informed by one of the neighbors of the state of affairs at the Dempsey home, and accompanied by Patrolman Potter, who lives on Mulberry street, and happened to be near at hand, visited the scene. The door was still locked, and Dempsey, with an oath refused to open it. "Break it open," cried out Mrs. Dempsey, and the two officers put their sturdy shoulders against the door, and the next moment were in the room and had Dempsey under arrest. The blood was streaming from the wounds in her head, and her face was covered with a crimson flood.
She was taken to the Lackawanna hospital, where her injuries were attended to, bandages being applied, and the smart of the wounds softened.
Dempsey was taken to the Central Police station by the two patrolmen. He is about 45 years of age.

CLAIMS BURGLARS DID IT.
West Side Fire That Has Some Odd Features.
Fire broke out about 11:30 o'clock last night in the dry goods and notion store of A. W. Bunnell, at 114 South Main avenue. The blaze originated under a carrier near the money drawer on the main floor, and its cause is a complete mystery. The West Scranton companies all responded to the alarm and extinguished the fire by the use of chemicals.
The entire loss of merchandise will come to about $500, which is covered by insurance.
The proprietor of the store believes that the fire was caused by burglars, but the police do not accept this theory. Mr. Bunnell bases his belief upon the fact that the bolts were found to be removed from the back door and the lock tampered with. The money drawer was out of its accustomed place and was found in the rear of the store with a postcard box full of cheap jewelry.
Patrolman Jones, however, declares that he made his rounds at 11 o'clock and on trying all the doors found everything fast.
Two years ago there was a fire at this same store, during which burglars entered and made a haul of about $175.
The flames were kept from spreading and did not communicate to the second floor. The tenants of the apartments above the store are Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis.

PRINCE'S PRESENT A MYSTERY.
Why Did Wales Give Lady Randolph a Jeweled Pig?
London, Aug. 21.—London society has a mystery, which presents the question: Why did the Prince of Wales give Mrs. George Cornwallis West (Lady Randolph Churchill) that jeweled pig as a wedding present when she married her young husband? Some meaning, it is presumed, was attached to the gift.
The Prince of Wales and Lady Randolph Churchill were always the best of friends, and the pig is always the reminder of some probability, incident known only to them.
Owing to the objection of the family of the Prince to the marriage, the Prince of Wales did not officially recognize the wedding, either by his presence or by presenting him. He sent Mrs. Cornwallis West the pig as proof of his good wishes.
The pig is set with diamonds, and is a work of the jeweler's art.

CLAD IN A SHEROUD, HE SAT UP.
Unconscious Contractor Started Friends by Postponing Death.
Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—Henry Gansert, a contractor, 76 years old, was struck upon the head by a forty-pound hammer at the Richmond locomotive works early last week. He was still unconscious last Friday, when the doctors pronounced him dead. His brother, who lives in the north, was telegraphed to come to Richmond.
Friends went to work to prepare the body for burial, and the coffin was ordered. While they were engaged in the work of shrouding the supposed corpse signs of life were discovered, and very soon Gansert was able to sit up, in a semi-conscious condition, but could give no account of the expense he had suffered.
He lived until this morning, but did not regain consciousness.

WYOMING AVENUE IS SOON TO BE OPENED

VIEWERS' REPORT NOW READY TO BE FILED.
Men Appointed to Assess Cost of Grading and Opening the Street Have Finished Their Work but Court Cannot Confirm It Until September 30—On Account of Delay the Colliery Engineer Printing Plant Will Not Be Built Till Spring—Will Make Extensive Improvements.
The viewers appointed by court to assess the benefits and also any damages which will accrue to the property owners on both sides of that portion of Wyoming avenue between Pine and Phelps street, which is about to be opened by the city, have now completed their report that will be filed in court on September 1, so that the actual work of opening up the thoroughfare may be commenced in a very short time.
It will require thirty days, according to law, before a confirmation of the report of the viewers and not until then can City Clerk Lavelle advertise for bids. The actual work of grading can, however, be finished in a few weeks time, when once commenced, so that it is safe to assume that the winter sets in the avenue will be opened.

The viewers have allowed, it is understood very little damages and have assessed all properties fronting on the street at approximately 70 cents per linear foot according to the amount. The total cost of opening the street will not exceed $2,000, it is thought.
The joint public buildings committee of council has succeeded in disposing of nearly all the buildings on the portion of the avenue to be opened and these have in nearly all instances been removed. The other buildings can easily be sold before the work of opening the street is begun.
It can be further stated that the Colliery Engineer company has decided to postpone the erection of its mammoth printing plant until next spring. This plant, as is well known, is to be built on that part of the avenue beyond the Phelps street crossing and it was principally because the company refused to build until assured that the street would be opened that council took up the matter and unanimously adopted the ordinance providing for its opening.
The company officials were determined long ago that not until they saw the street actually opened would they commence to build and as this will not be done now until well into the fall they have decided to defer building operations till the spring.

MORE SPEAKEASY ARRESTS
Proprietors of Two Tippling Houses Before Alderman Millar—One Is Fined $50.
Now that Mayor Molr is back in the city again, the war on the tippling houses has broken out afresh.
Two more unlicensed dealers were arrested last night and arraigned before Alderman Millar. They were Donald McMoran, of South Washington avenue, who was fined $25, and Owen E. Moran, of West Market street, who entered bail in the sum of $50 for his appearance at a hearing Friday, August 31.
Franklin Moran was arrested about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and taken before Alderman Millar at 7:30 o'clock last night. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and Alderman Millar imposed a $50 fine.
Owen E. Moran, however, asked a hearing and will be granted one.
Mayor Molr last night remarked, "There will be more arrests made today, and the men tried by me personally. There will be arrests all this week, as plenty of evidence has now been accumulated."

ACCUSED OF AN OUTRAGE.
Two Bellevue Men to Answer for a Serious Crime.
Michael Judge and E. L. Finnelly, of Bellevue, were last night arraigned before Justice of the Peace Griffiths, of Taylor, charged with assault and battery and attempt at criminal assault on Mrs. Mary Derpsko, of Taylor. Finnelly was held in $1,000 bail and Judge was committed to the county jail.
At the hearing very sensational evidence was given. It seems that on the night of August 2, Mrs. Dempko and her husband were walking along the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western tracks, near Taylor, and had reached a dark and lonely spot, when suddenly they were confronted by two men, who roughly thrust Dempko out of the way and seized his wife. The husband rushed to her assistance, but his two assailants drew revolvers and threatening to shoot, made Dempko leave the spot.
Mrs. Dempko was in a very delicate condition at the time, but this did not prevent her two captors from brutally assaulting her. Afterwards, it is claimed, they threw their victim down the railroad embankment, where she lay stunned and unconscious. Her assailants left her lying there and some time later she was found by her husband.
A warrant was immediately issued for the arrest of the two men, but they had vanished from sight, and search was in vain until yesterday morning, when they were captured by the Taylor police. Judge, who was committed to the county jail, is a breaker home by occupation. At the jail he said he lived on Court street, North Scranton, but it was found that he is a resident of Bellevue.
Finnelly is the man who was arrested by Officer Stephen Dyer two years ago and made his escape by swimming across the Lackawanna.
Both deny the accusation and claim it is a case of mistaken identity.

There will be a banquet at 6 o'clock followed by a camp fire at 7:30 o'clock, in the Council building, to which all veterans and allied junior organizations of Scranton will be invited. The

ROBINSON DEMANDS $50,000 DAMAGES
LEG WAS BURNED IN A VAT OF BOILING LYE.
While Passing Along the Side of the Delaware & Hudson Shops in Carbondale, on His Way from the Train to His Home, the Cover of the Vat, Which was in His Path, Broke Beneath Him—Frank Longo Released on Bail.
Action for $50,000 damages was instituted against the Delaware and Hudson Canal company in the United States Circuit court yesterday by William Robinson, of Carbondale, represented by Attorneys H. D. Carey and J. Burns.
Mr. Robinson had his right leg burned and permanently crippled by stepping into a vat of boiling lye at the defendant company's machine shops in Carbondale, January 3 last. He works in Mayfield and lives on Belmont street, Carbondale. In the northern part of the city. He rides each day on the company's trains. After the Dundaff street station was done away with, the company arranged to run the evening train up to the end of the yard, where the station was, that the workmen and others living in the upper part of the city might be saved the walk from Seventh street, where the new station is located.
It was the custom of Mr. Robinson and others to cross through the yard and then along the side of the machine shops to reach a foot bridge crossing the river to Belmont street. The path led across a vat in which lye was kept boiling, and on the day in question while passing over the vat, the cover gave way under Mr. Robinson and one of his legs sank into the boiling lye, burning the flesh in a frightful manner.
He contends that the company was guilty of negligence in not keeping the vat safely covered, and that he can not be held to have been a trespasser, because the company invited him and its other Belmont street passengers to make use of this route across the yards and machine shop site. In law this route, it is contended, is known as a "necessary way," and the owner of such way is responsible for any accident that may occur as a result of the way being in bad repair.

THE FIRST "T" RAIL.
A Section of the Relic Presented to Andrew Carnegie.
From the Philadelphia Record.
To enable the Stevens Institute of Technology to erect suitable new buildings Andrew Carnegie gave $65,000 and as a token of appreciation it was decided to present him with a section of the original thirty-six pound "T" rail from the Camden and Amboy railroad, inclosed in a handsome casket.
The casket also contains fac-similes of letters, specifications and bills connected with the history of the first "T" rails. On the top of the solid silver casket are figures in relief, showing the rolling of the rail through a typical early mill. On opposite sides are shown the first train of the Camden and Amboy railroad, preceded by an outrider to keep people off the track, and a view of the proposed Carnegie laboratory. The ends contain medallion portraits of Robert L. Stevens and Mr. Carnegie. At the four corners are figures embodying the Stevens Institute's conception of the ideal modern engineer—a primitive iron worker, a mediaval armorer, an old-fashioned blacksmith and one of its own graduates.
The piece of "T" rail sent Mr. Carnegie was furnished by the president of the institute, Dr. Henry Morton. The rails for the Camden and Amboy track, between South Amboy and Bordentown, were rolled in 1831, President Morton says, and were the first "T" rails designed or made, although the Vignoles rail, produced in France several years later, have generally been credited with being the earliest. The former was designed by Robert L. Stevens, who was sent to England to carry them made, there being in this country no mill capable of doing the work.
Arrived in England, he called for bids from various iron works, but at first none of them dared to take the work. After a while he persuaded John Guest, owner of a Welsh mill, to attempt it; not, however, before guarantees had been given against any damage to the machinery in performing the then mighty task of rolling a section of rail. Mr. Stevens personally directed the work. When the first rails came through they were crooked and twisted, the workmen halted it as proof that the attempt was futile. Mr. Stevens told them to take their hammers while the iron was hot and straighten them out. Finally the rails were satis-
