He is now sending about eight hundred of these, four hundred o persons in the city and four hun-

He will be ready to do so, however, in a few days and from that time on the prophesies may be ex-pected to be more reliable, he having first class opportunity to study local onditions.

STORY OF KILLING OF OFFICER GOLDEN

TOLD LAST NIGHT AT THE CORO-NER'S REQUEST.

John Flack Describes How the Shooting Occurred and Positively Asserts that Frank Longo Furnished to His Brother, Tony, the Revolver with Which the Deed was Done-Jury Finds That the Deceased Came

Acting Coroner Paine last night confucted an inquest in the case of Patrolman James Golden, of the Dun-more police, who died last Wednesday from wounds received Tuesday, August 14, and it was decided that his death was due to shots fired by

The most important witness in the ase was John Flack, a young man iving in Dunmore. He testified that Local Preachers' association, provided while he was taking a bicycle ride he met Golden about 9.45 o'clock on the night in which the shooting occurred. He stopped for a while and chatted with the officer, who made the remark that he expected trouble at Dominco's saloon.

A short while later Flack heard the ounds of quarreling in the saloon, and, on entering, found two men named Gerrity and Loughney, engaged in a scuffle. As he entered, Loughney arose and remarked with an oath that he was not afraid of any Italian in the place. Tony Longo seized him, and a free-for-all fight seemed imminent, but it was prevented by "Long John." a brother of the proprietor of the place, ejecting the belligerents.

Patrolman Golden then crossed the street, according to the witness, and laid his haid on Tony's shoulder. Frank Longo, the latter's brother, then interfered and tried to pull his brother away.

BOUGHT A REVOLVER. Officer Golden kept fast hold of Tony, who tried to break away and began beating him over the head. Then Frank went into his barber shop, which was nearby and came out an instant later with a revolver in his hand, which he gave to Tony. Tony straightened up and fired a shot at Golden's head, and then Flack jumped on his back and bore him down. He fired two more shots then from half prostrate position, both bullets lodging in Golden's body. Then he broke loose and with the revolver in his hand, dared the crowd to follow him and disappeared from sight.

Another important witness was Thomas Cullen, also a young Dunmore man. About 10 o'clock Tuesday night he was walking up the street from the Young Men's Institute rooms, when he heard a noise coming from Domine's saloon, and stopped to listen. He saw the door open and two men ejected, and then the crowd fol-

Patrolman Golden crossed the street break away from his grasp. One of assistance and the witness then saw den then began clubbing Tony Longo on the head with his stick and the next that tile witness heard were three shots, Tony then ran up Willow street.

WITNESSED THE SHOOTING.

"Did you see the shots fired?" asked one of the jurors at this point, "Yes, sir," answered the witness, "Who fired them?"

Longo," replied Cullen promptly.

On being asked whether he saw Frank Longo hand his brother the pistol with which the shooting was done, the witness replied in the nega-

James Golden, brother of the deceased officer, testified that he visited his brother at the Lackawanna hospital Wednesday morning and asked him how the shooting happened, and received reply as follows: "Frank Longo came out of the barber shop and gave Tony the revolver, and then was shot.

The patrolman asked his brother whether Tony Longo had yet been arrested, and that was the substance of the conversation between them. John Loughney, who had the quarrel with Longo in the saloon, testifled to seeing the scuffle in the road, and to hearing three shots fired, but was unable to remember anything

James Coolican was put on the stand and testified to finding a revolver in a field about seventy feet from the saloon on the day following the shooting. It was lying deep in the weeds which were trampled and broken where Longo had rushed over them during the night. When he found the revolver there were two cartridges in it and thre shells. He took the weapon home, but was compelled to discharge the remaining two shots, as his wife would not allow him to bring it into the house otherwise.

COOLICAN OBSTINATE.

For some inexplicable reason Coolican refused to surrender the revolver to County Detective Leyshon, Chief of Police Healey and several other parties who tried to secure it from him, and several times last night declared that he would not give it up until the proper time arrived.

Mr. Leyshon reminded him that Monday afternoon Judge Edwards instructed him to hand the revolver over to either himself of the chief of police of Dunmore, but Coolican remained stubborn. "It is safe in my possesion," he re narked several times.

Have you it in your possession here

onight?" 'Dr. Paine asked him. Whereat Coolican smiled broadly and provoked loud laughter by archly emarking, "I object to that question." He then added: "But now I will give back the pistol and suited the action to the word by drawing from his coat to His Death at the Hands of Tony | a 32-callbre revolver, which Chief Healey took possession of.

"That's the calibre," remarked Dr. Paine as he looked at the shells in the revolver and compared them metally with the bullet he removed from Gotden's body.

He then stated to the jury that he performed an autopsy upon the policeman's remains and found that two shots took effect, both entering the left side. The one took a downward course and lodged in the fleshy part of the left thigh. The other took an inward course and entered the intestines, where it made eight wounds. It was found about two inches to the left of the meridian line. "There is no doubt in my mind," said Dr. Paine, "that that shot was responsible for Golden's death."

The jury, after a short deliberation, prought in the following verdict: "We, the undersigned jurors, find that he said James Golden, a police officer of the borough of Dunmore, came to his death from the effects of pistol shots fired by one Tony Longo, who was resisting arrest on the night of Aug. 14, 1900. (Signed) B. G. Beddoe, M. D., P. J. Ward, Patrick McHugh, W. J. McCarty, John T. O'Neil, Elias E. Evans."

Tony Longo is still at Liberty.

COMEDIAN MARRIES A BUFFALO GIRL

Burt Wesner, Now Playing at the Academy, Was United Sunday to a Standard Oil Company Official's Daughter.

Burt Wesner, comedian of the Braunig Dramatic company, took a flying trip to Buffalo, N. Y., leaving Wilkes-Barre Saturday at midnight and returned to Scranton Monday morning, benedict. The bride is the daughter of Eugene V. Chamberlain, of the Standard Oil company, at Buffalo, A quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride, 79 Elmwood avenue, Buffalo, Dr. George Ballard, of St. John's Episcopal church, officiating.

Wesner will travel with her husband. The above announcement will be read with especial interest by many Scrantonians of the upper set, because of their close acquaintance with various nembers of the bride's family. Her father is local manager of the Standard Oil company in Buffalo, and her uncle, Horace B. Chamberlain, is the company's general manager. On several occasions the younger memand seized Tony Longo, who tried to bers of the family have been entertained in Scranton homes, or been in the crowd of men came to Golden's attendance at some of the swell social events. In her 'teens, The meeting. of the young actor and his aristocratic bride, as may be believed, were attended with many romantic features. They met while she was at a "finishing school" in New York, and from the first it was a case of the most ardent love on both sides. The fear of objections from the girl's parents made necessary a clandestine courtship, but when they finally decided they could not live without each other longer, and made known their determination to marry, they were rejoiced to find themselves able to overcome parental objections. The excellent standing of the young man's family, his very evident culture and good breeding, and the added fact that he is on the Frohman waiting list with good prospects of a contract at an early date, satisfied the Chamberlains that while the youth then knocking at their carefully guarded family oor might be "only an actor," he was honorable and talented and above all their daughter's choice. The private wedding, while forced in a measure by convenience, was the wish of both young people and especially by the emocratic bride.. Mrs. Wesner watched her husband's work from the wings last night and njoyed, no doubt, quite as much as he did, the laughter and applause that ie provoked.

AN INTERESTING QUESTION.

Does H. E. Paine Succeed His Predecessor on Committees.

H. E. Paine, the new common counilman from the Ninth ward, yesterday sent word to Clerk Lynott to call together the sewers and drains committee of that branch for the purpose of considering sewer bids, and his action in so doing raises an interesting question.

Mr. Paine succeeded E. M. Tewksbury as the representative from the Ninth ward. Mr. Tewksbury was chairman of the sewers and drains committee. The question raised is this-does Mr. Paine therefore sucseed him as chairman of this important committee. He evidently believes he does, as he has arrogated the powers of the chairman to himself without being appointed by Chairman Grif-
