Nicholas Burke presided and introduced the speakers. Messys. Hayes and Dempsey spoke mainly along the lines of the benefits to be derived from organization, and Mr. Dilcher's gemarks were directed against the Lackawanna union and the newspapers which have reported the meetings held by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western men.

Referring to the meeting called for next Monday at Hazleton, Mr. Dilcher stated that the miners are not worrying as to whether or not the that the employes have the weapon within their power to compel recogni-

"If there is a strike," he said, "the corporations need not fear any violence from the men, but instead can look to them for protection to property without resorting to state, county or governmental protection." MYSTERIOUS ROBBERY

Omaha Bank Cashier Found Unconscious in His Berth on Train. Other Passengers Robbed.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24.-Edward E. Balch, cashier of the Omaha National bank, was brutally assaulted and robbed on the Chicago and Northwestern through train last night, while on his way home from Chicago, with his family. He is still unconscious and the police have no clue to the mysterious affair. His wife, who occupied an opposite berth, was not aroused during the night, nor was any other passenger in the car.

Mrs. Edward Balch awoke about daylight and found her husband in a terrible condition. His head had been beaten with some blunt instrument and the section he occupied was covered with blood. He was unconscious and has not yet recovered. As large valise which he carried, and which is said to have contained a sum of money and securities, is missing. supposed to have been the object of the attack, though several other passengers were quietly robbed also. The story current here is that Balch had been to Chicago as the special messenger of his bank, the Omaha National, to bring back a sum of money. Just what the amount was is not made public. The bank officials say it was only a few dollars, but it is unlikely that they would be using a special mesesnger to carry a small sum. In view of the many train robberies of late and the loss last Saturday of a package containing $20,000 which was being sent from Chicago to Burlington, the rates have advanced very much recently on these shipments. This is supposed to have in fluenced the bank to send a special messenger. In any event, Balch had a package of some value with him, gerous condition. The trainmen say the doors to the deeper were locked from the moment of leaving Chicago, except when it was opened to take pasesngers aboard at the Mississippi river crossing at midnight. Every berth was occupied and the porter was up all night. He says he did not see any one in the car that did not belong there, nor did he bear any particular noise.

The detectives believe that the robbery and assault is the work of one, or possibly two, dangerous thugs, who followed Balch from Chicago and probably occupied berths as passengers in the same car. They figure that after the thieves had secured the booty they quietly returned to their
