A TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

Three Engagements Were Announced Sunday.

What was wittily termed by one of the guests present as "a triple alliance" was announced Sunday night at a dinner given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eisner, of Hickory street.

Three engagements were announced, the trio of happy young men being Scrantonians, while two of the young ladies were visitors in the city during the summer. Isadore Eisner will wed Miss Lena Feldman, of Nashville, Tenn. Samuel Miller will lead to the altar Miss Rose Eisner.

ENLIVENED THINGS.

School Controllers Become Irascible and Exchange Some Rather Uncomplimentary Remarks.

A discussion at last night's meeting of the school board over the action of the building committee in giving an order for window shades without the consent of the board itself led up to what seemed at first might result in a personal encounter.

It was started by Chairman Evans, of the supply committee, who moved that the secretary advertise for bids for the furnishing of window shades for the three new school buildings. Mr. Evans said he was prompted to make the motion because he understood that the building committee had already taken matters into its own hands and ordered the shades.

He asked the secretary if this was so and was told that it was. Then he said: "I want to know by what right this was done. Who gave you the right?" he said, turning to Chairman Roche, of the building committee.

"When we get those shades up," replied that gentleman, "I'll take Mr. Evans around and show him that they will be all right."

"I don't want you to show me those shades at all," responded Mr. Evans; "I want to know right now, this minute, what right you had to order them. I don't want to be held responsible," said Mr. Roche; "I didn't make the motion to order the shades. I was in the chair at the time."

At this point Mr. Evans asked Secretary Fellows to read the minutes of the building committee meeting when the shades were ordered, and this was done, showing that the price was 16 1/2 cents per square foot and that an order was given for shades for the three buildings at an average cost of $500 per building.

Mr. Evans contended then that this was three times the cost heretofore paid for shades, whereupon Mr. Walsh suggested that they be placed only on the sunny side of the buildings.

"It's a good idea," said Captain May, "we've got the shady side here." Mr. Evans also contended that the building committee had ordered thirty-two teachers' desks without the authority of the board and persisted in criticizing the committee for what he termed "their gross violation of the established rules of the board."

This aroused Mr. Gibbons, who is a member of the committee, but who had announced at the beginning of the argument that he remembered the transaction at the time and didn't think then it was right. He said: "I'm not thinking of stopping the course of the gentleman from the Fifteenth, but I do object to him coming in here and charging the building committee with doing what he has done in his own ward. He's had $1,500 worth of work done there on his own hook. If that is an act of crookedness he's got dirty hands himself and he's got no right to accuse other people."

Mr. Evans was on his feet in a moment despite the rat-tat-tat of President Jayne's gavel and his words of warning.

"I brand that as a falsehood," he shouted, "and I'll make you prove every word you say!" "You know very well," responded Mr. Gibbons, who also arose in his seat, which is next to Mr. Evans, as he stood looking him in the face, "that you had a cellar wall torn down in No. 18."

But Mr. Evans interrupted with a remark that brought every member to his feet and for a time it looked as if a row might have to be spilled in order to calm the irascibility of the two principals to this personal discussion. But Chairman Jayne rapped vigorously for order, other members intervened and the incident was finally brought to a close without the need of an ambulance. It was a case of "cutting the throat" and regretted and is not likely to recur.

A motion to lay Mr. Evans' motion on the table was offered by Mr. Shires when the excitement had subsided, but was lost by the following vote: Ayes—Francis, H. J. O'Malley, Eynon, Phillips, Golden, Dr. O'Malley, May, Jennings, Barker, Schwass, Leonard, Jayne—12.

Mr. Evans' motion was then put and adopted almost unanimously.

COURT LIBERAL IN LICENSE MATTERS

Opera Cafe and Globe Hotel Licensed and the Bunn Hotel License Transferred.

Judge Edwards yesterday granted license to the Opera Cafe, 310 Spruce street, and the Globe hotel, 227 Wyoming avenue. At the midsummer day session, August 13 last, the licenses for these places, held respectively by P. T. Moran and Thomas P. Clark, were revoked, on complaint of the Men's union.

T. J. Roche, common councilman of the Eight ward, succeeds to the proprietorship of Moran's place, and the Globe's new licensee is ex-Common Councilman John J. Flanagan.

Thomas J. Flannery, formerly proprietor of the Arlington, was granted a license for the remainder of the year for the restaurant at 245 Penn street. His former proprietor, John Cavanaugh, was granted a license at the regular session of license court, but failed to take it out. He proceeded to conduct the place without a license and is now doing these months in the county jail, and incidentally working up a healthy respect for the sincerity and aggressiveness of the Men's union. Judge Kelly granted the Flannery license.

Judge Edwards approved the petition of A. J. and J. B. Phalen to have transferred to them the license for the hotel at 401 Chestnut street, formerly kept by M. L. Bunn.

JURY EXONERATES ACCUSED WOMAN

WITNESSES SAY RUSNOCK SCALDED HIMSELF.

Inquest in the Case of the Marshwood Man Who Died from Scalds Brings Out the Story That It Was While Attempting to Scald His Boarding Mistress That Rusnock Received the Injury Which Caused His Death—County Detective Is Not Satisfied.

The jury empaneled by Coroner J. J. Roberts to inquire into the cause of the death of Michael Rusnock, the Marshwood miner, who died at the Lackawanna hospital Sunday morning of scalds, which were said to have been inflicted by Mrs. John Rusnock, his boarding mistress, decided last night that Mrs. Rusnock is in no way culpable.

The six good men and true, Michael Dosak, Llewellyn Davis, James Oskins, P. H. Gibbons, John J. Murray and Anton Ginsky, further decided that Rusnock himself was the only one accountable for his death, and that it was while making an effort to attack the boarding mistress, with a caldron of boiling water, that the heated liquid splashed out and inflicted the terrible burns which killed him.

The testimony of several disinterested witnesses was heard, and they all told the same connected story, which was in effect that Rusnock unaided over his board bill; that he was very much intoxicated, and finally struck Mrs. Rusnock with an ash shovel, following this up by picking the kettle of boiling water off the kitchen stove, and swinging it about. The kettle lid was detached at the time, and as a result the water splashed out.

At the conclusion of the inquest Mrs. Rusnock was a sullen, sputtering woman, and given a hearing on the charge of manslaughter, preferred by County Detective Thomas Leshon. "Squire Cummings heard the evidence, and discharged the case."

There was a general feeling of sympathy for Mrs. Rusnock yesterday when she was arrested, and the room in Prokopovits' hotel at Olyphant, when the inquest was held last night, was crowded with her friends, who evidenced their good will in a hearty fashion when the favorable verdict was rendered.

At the inquest the commonwealth was represented by Assistant District Attorney W. Gaylord Thomas and County Detective Leshon. Mrs. Rusnock's side of the case was looked after by Attorney James J. O'Malley.

LESHON NOT CONVINCED.

County Detective Leshon was much chagrined at the verdict, and even after the inquest declared that he was not satisfied of Mrs. Rusnock's innocence.

Mike Drabik, Jr., the first witness called, testified that he was present at John Rusnock's death on Friday night, Aug. 17, and heard the quarrel between Mrs. Rusnock and Michael Rusnock. Michael, he said, was intoxicated, and quarrel with the boarding mistress about his bill. There were angry words between the two, and then Michael seized a small shovel, lying nearby, which was used for putting coal on the fire, and struck Mrs. Rusnock on the head with it.

He followed this up by running to the stove and seizing the kettle, which was full of boiling water. He swung this blindly behind his back and the water splashed out, the kettle lid being detached, and inflicted several scalds on him. He then staggered out of the house and went to the home of a neighbor and spent the night there.

The witness was a young boy, and he told his story in a frank, straightforward manner, which had a very convincing air of truthfulness about it. He stoutly persisted in his statement that he saw the man who was charged with the murder of the woman, and that he saw the man who was charged with the murder of the woman, and that he saw the man who was charged with the murder of the woman.

Dr. Nelson Newbury was then sworn and testified that he was acquainted with the Rusnock family, having at times treated various of the men boarding the house. During his absence from home Aug. 17, Dr. C. W. Wunder, of the Lackawanna hospital staff, who was attending to his practice, was called to see to Rusnock's injuries and recommended that he be taken to the Lackawanna hospital.

John Reginsky, of Moosic, the next witness examined, was at John Rusnock's home on the night of the scalding. He was upstairs the time the quarrel started, but came down when the tumult became very noticeable. On arriving at the foot of the stairs he saw Rusnock strike the woman on the head with a shovel, and then seize the caldron of water. He swung it in the air and the caldron splashed over himself.

SIGNIFICANT STORY.

Mrs. Peter Dubee, of Moosic, swore that she knew Mr. and Mrs. John Rusnock and Michael Rusnock, the boarder. The last time she saw Michael alive was on Aug. 17, when he came to her house scalded, late at night, crying for help. Mrs. John Rusnock called on him the next day and reproached him for attempting to scald her. Michael did not tell the witness how he was scalded, but that he had been scalded the day before the previous night.

Martin Drable, a former boarder at Rusnock's, then gave his testimony. On the night of Aug. 17 he was the witness of a quarrel between Michael Rusnock and the boarding mistress, who evidenced her telling him that he must leave the house if he continued drinking. Michael seized her by the throat and he and Drable separated them. Later in the night he saw Mrs. Rusnock after the scalding took place and she told him that Michael had scalded himself in an effort to injure her.

John Rusnock, cousin of the dead man, in whose house the scalding occurred, was then put on the stand. He testified that on the night in question his cousin abused his wife's mother, at which she told him that he must leave the house inside a week, and added that she no longer intended to keep boarders. Later on Michael attacked the witness and struck him twice over the head with a beer bottle, at which he sought refuge in another room. Michael then turned his attention to Mrs. Rusnock, with the result that he himself was scalded. This concluded the evidence and the jury soon returned a verdict.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

Ordinance for the Viaduct Is to Be Presented at Once for Consideration of Councils.

The prospects for commencing the work of constructing a viaduct over the West Lackawanna avenue crossing of the Lackawanna railroad before the snow flies are exceedingly bright. It should consist of a viaduct extending through as quickly as possible, and, if there is no serious legal tangles, there is no earthly reason why there should be any delay in constructing the long-needed and long-talked-of improvement.

The proposition of the two companies to construct the viaduct is to be sent in writing to the streets and bridges committee of common council, in whose hands the viaduct ordinance introduced early this year by Mr. Gedahl still remains.

This committee will bring in the amendments which it will be necessary to add to the ordinance. These amendments have been prepared by City Solicitor Vosburg and are now in the hands of the officials of both companies for their consideration.

The principal one provides that the contractor shall look to the companies for his pay, though he will enter into a contract with the city. This is to relieve the municipalities from any direct liability. Other amendments permit the Scranton Railway company to construct its tracks on the viaduct and to use Seventh and Linden streets temporarily while the structure is being built.

There may be a few kickers in both branches who will object to erecting a viaduct in the center of the street, but they will be few and far between. It is thought, and there is every reason to believe that the ordinance will be passed, and quickly, too. They will receive the mayor's signature as accepted as certain.

The point raised by Judge Knapp that as the only money the city will have to pay will be the damages to property owners, there will be no need for a special election, the debt thus contracted being not such a debt as was contemplated when a debt limit was fixed, has caused a deal of discussion among the lawyers, but the opinion seems to prevail that the point raised is a good one.

A prominent attorney in conversation yesterday afternoon with a Tribune man said that damages caused by erecting the viaduct could be charged up against the city without the consent of the taxpayers, just as damages caused by the overflow of a street are. "If this ordinance passes," he said, "I see no reason why it will work erecting the viaduct should not go on at once."

City Engineer Phillips believes that he will succeed in having inserted in the plans and specifications a provision for the paving of the viaduct with asphalt.

TEXT BOOK REPORT CAUSED NO COMMENT

SCHOOL BOARD WILL BUY SHELDON'S SERIES.

Recommendations of the Special Teachers' Committee Approved Without Argument—A Big Order of Music Books Also Made, After a Little Discussion—Board Decided Upon Superintendent Howell's Recommendation Not to Open Schools Until Sept. 10.

The board of control, by an unanimous vote and without argument, decided last night to adopt Sheldon's language series, in two books, as the standard grammar for the coming three years, in place of Tarbell's language book, which latter did not meet Superintendent Howell's approval.

The report of the text book committee was merely an endorsement of the report of the special teachers' committee appointed to decide upon the book. This committee met in the morning and afternoon and listened to short addresses on the merits of each particular book under consideration from the glib-tongued agents selling each.

This teachers' committee was composed of the following teachers, all of whom signed the report: H. Kemmerling, D. W. Phillips, Miss Cora Griffin, Miss Anna C. Malla, Miss Kate A. Smith, Miss Jessie Kern and Miss Josephine D. Lees. It was rumored that there would be violent opposition to the committee's report, but everything passed off very smoothly.

A report of the same committee recommending the purchase of $1,738.15 worth of music books and charts for the intermediate grades did not fare so well, however. Mr. Jennings contended that there were now 3,200 music books purchased last year for the primary grades, lying unused in the supply room, because it had been found that the children did not need books during the first years and that all they required was charts. He opposed the purchase of the new books for these reasons.

Superintendent Howell was given the floor and explained that the 3,200 music books spoken of by Mr. Jennings would be all in use this year, and that the intermediate children could start in with books without the necessity of a preliminary instruction by means of the chart.

THOUGHT IT VERY LOW.

He stated that when it was first proposed to introduce music into the schools he thought it could not be done for less than $30,000, but that from present conditions $6,000 would cover all. He thought this a very low figure, and in response to an inquiry from Captain May, said that he would consider it a drawback and a setback if the study of music was discontinued in the schools.

The recommendations of the committee were finally adopted. Chairman Roche, of the building committee, read a communication from Superintendent Howell, in which the latter recommended that for various reasons the schools be not opened until September 10, instead of September 4. Mr. Roche moved that the recommendation of the superintendent be adopted.

Mr. Gibbons was the first to oppose the motion and he did so vigorously. He said: "Superintendent Howell doesn't want the schools opened on September 10 any more than I do. He wants to be boss, that's all. No. 38 is finished and No. 9 is nearly ready, and I think it for the best interests of the children that we open the schools on September 4, as originally planned. There may be a few children out of town, but the masses are here and ready to go to school. Let the superintendent mind his own business and we'll mind ours."

Mr. Jennings spoke along the same lines, and contended that the schools should be open two hundred days every year. The motion was finally put and carried almost unanimously, so that the school children now have an extra week's vacation.

The following report of the teachers' committee was adopted: THE TEACHERS TRANSFERRED. The teachers committee made the following recommendations: That Miss Julia Martin be transferred from Intermediate C grade, No. 27, to Intermediate grade, No. 23, and that Mrs. Teresa Battle be transferred from Intermediate B grade, No. 23, to Intermediate C grade, No. 27; that D. W. Phillips, principal of No. 27, be granted a leave of absence for eight months on account of ill health; that H. L. Morgan be temporarily transferred from No. 32 to No. 14 to fill position vacant during said leave of absence of Mr. Phillips; that W. J. Edwards be temporarily transferred from No. 17 to No. 32, and that William Jameson be temporarily appointed to the principalship of No. 17.

The report of the kindergarten committee, which reads as follows, was also adopted: To the President and Members of the Scranton Board of Control. Gentlemen: The kindergarten committee beg leave to submit the following report. In accordance with instructions of the board of July 9, the chairman of the committee has made arrangements for the renting of buildings in Providence and Green Bldgs., occupied by the board for kindergarten schools during the past year. Rent to be paid Mrs. A. L. Meade, to be the same as last year, $20 per month from Sept. 1, with an increase of $6 per year in the water rate from the first of October.

The rent for Mr. Reagan's building is to be the same as last year, $20 per month from the first of September, but this is to include cost of heating the building, which the board had to pay last year.

We recommend the appointment of the following teachers for the coming school year, in accordance with recommendation of Miss Underwood: Miss Belle J. Manahan, at Green Bldg.; Miss Elizabeth P. Rice, at No. 71; Miss Clara E. Gregory, at Providence.

The resignation of Miss Nettie Nye, as teacher in English in the high school, was presented by Chairman Francois, of the high and training committee, and was referred back to the board.

The board decided to inspect the new No. 38 school next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
