NEW HOSPITAL WARD.

Lackawanna Will Need an Additional Physician and More Nurses.

Several changes will be necessitated in the resident staff of the Lackawanna hospital when the new children's ward is completed. The number of nurses will have to be increased and another house surgeon may be required.

A good deal of extra work will be caused by this addition to the hospital and the board of directors has already decided to secure five new nurses, and if this number is not sufficient, to later secure more. This will raise the present staff from eighteen to twenty-three nurses.

No action has been taken as yet regarding the securing of a new surgeon, but it seems that there will be need of another physician. Arrangements are made in the new ward for cots for fifteen children and room is also made for contagious cases in the isolated ward on the third floor.

Admitted patients suffering from contagious diseases will be an entirely new departure, as hitherto there have been no facilities whatsoever at the hospital for these unfortunate, and the need of a separate ward has been generally felt.

The new wards will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks, by which time all arrangements will be completed for the staff which will be in charge of it.

IF YOU SEE IT IN THE TRIBUNE IT'S SO

Taxpayers Caused Much Worryment and Annoyance by Untrue Announcement of Contemporary.

Taxpayers throughout the city were caused worryment and anxiety yesterday morning because the Republican announced that council had failed to pass the resolution extending the time for collecting taxes without a penalty until October 15 and that accordingly a three per cent. penalty would be added today.

The Tribune announced the facts as they really stood, namely, that select council had passed the resolution and that Mayor Mole would sign it. The municipal building was thronged with an anxious crowd of taxpayers yesterday morning, inquiring which announcement was correct and receiving the reply that what the Tribune said was true and that the extension had been granted. If you see it in "The Tribune" it's so.

A few mornings ago our esteemed contemporary indulged in another dream on the same question, when it printed a display head story announcing that Mayor Mole would refuse to sign the resolution granting the extension of time. As a matter of fact, the mayor never had the idea of vetoing the resolution in his mind for a second, and as proof of this it might be mentioned that he signed it yesterday morning before he had his hat off, after entering his office.

As anticipated in "The Tribune" yesterday morning, the Lackawanna company came to the rescue yesterday and paid its taxes, amounting to $26,000, in full. Last night when the treasurer's office closed, it was estimated that there was nearly $40,000 in the treasury.

Controller Howell will accordingly counterclaim this morning the $30,000 worth of warrants now in his possession and city officials and others can get their money as soon as possible.

LIGHTBODY ASSAULTED YATES.

Latter Now Seeks to Obtain $5,000 Damages.

John Yates yesterday began an action against John Lightbody to recover $5,000 damages for personal injuries. Attorney H. D. Carey represents the plaintiff.

Yates alleges in his declaration that on June 11 last, Lightbody entered upon his (Yates') farm at Benton. The plaintiff directed Lightbody to leave, whereupon he alleges the latter struck and knocked him down and inflicted such severe injuries that he was confined to his bed two weeks.

He desires the court to compel Lightbody to recompense him for the anguish and pain he suffered.

HON. T. V. POWDERLY.

Father of Labor Day to Deliver the Address at Lake Lodge.

Hon. T. V. Powderly, Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, will discuss the question of the next Monday afternoon, Labor Day, at Lake Lodge. Mr. Powderly is the most entertaining and the greatest authority on labor in all the breathing world's extent, and every body ought to hear him on this occasion. This is the most delightful season to see the beautiful Lake Lodge and to enjoy its manifold natural and other attractions before and after the great oration. Trains will leave the D & H depot, Scranton, at 6:20, 8:15, 1:13 a. m., and 1 and 2:25 p. m. Greatly reduced excursion rates from all stations.

SCRANTON BUSINESS COLLEGE.

The Attendance Will Be Very Large.

Office open day and evening all next week. Many requests for the new catalogue. "The finest I have seen," "excellent," "handsome," are some of the expressions concerning it.

The attendance will be very large, as students are enrolling rapidly. Those who desire choice seats should enroll early.

The night school, always the largest in the country, will be unusually large this year. Brokers, lawyers, merchants, mechanics, mine and shop workers, bookkeepers and stenographers, in fact, people from all walks of life, are in yearly attendance.

There are not enough good bookkeepers and stenographers. The demand was never so great as now and the salaries are good. Recently unable to fill position with railroad companies, manufacturers and merchants. Increase your earning ability by taking through business course.

LAI TO REST WITH SOLEMN SERVICES

FUNERAL OF REV. D. J. MACGOLDRICK.

St. Peter's Cathedral Crowded with Persons Who Came to Assist at the Requiem Mass Which Was Celebrated by Very Rev. Eugene A. Garvey—Large Number of Priests of the Diocese Were Present—Interment Made in the Priests' Plot in Cathedral Cemetery.

The last ceremonies over the late Rev. D. J. MacGouldrick took place yesterday morning in St. Peter's cathedral in the presence of an assemblage which for magnitude has seldom been gathered in that edifice. Those who met together to pay the sorrowful duty to the dead were not of one sect or belief, but represented numberless creeds and classes of society.

To many who were present, the imposing services, so dignified in character, was strange and perhaps incomprehensible, except that it seemed fitting that the most solemn rites of the church he had loved should thus be performed over one whose life had been a tender, consecrated sacrifice.

The scene was most impressive. Far into the central aisle extended the high catafalque, heavily draped, and above which, at an incline, was lifted the casket. There were no flowers, and no hint of anything but the simplicity that had characterized the deceased in life.

From an early hour, up and down the steps passed the throngs of people to look upon the face of the dead, while the Knights of Columbus stood near as a loving guard.

DRAPED IN MORNING.

Black draperies, with the purple of mourning, were hung at every point about the altar. At either side of the casket stood three tall candles, above black pedestals, from which depended streamers of purple ribbon. The morning sun sent a shaft of light through the purple robes of a window-saint, and it fell in a violet flame across the brow of the dead priest.

The body of the church was occupied by the members of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Historical Society and Newman Magazine club, while at the right a large section of the nave was reserved for the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart, who sat, a throng of immovable figures, their black robes adding solemnity to the picture.

Within the altar rail were the members of the clergy in white chasubles. The celebrants of the mass were the full vestments of black and silver. Nothing more deeply impressive than the chanting of the office for the dead by the great assemblage of priests can be imagined, succeeded as it was by the solemn high mass of requiem. At the conclusion of the mass the Vory Rev. Eugene A. Garvey spoke briefly, as follows:

NO EULOGY NEEDED.

"There will be no sermon today. Father MacGouldrick will be buried according to the rites of his own religious order to which he devoted the best years of his life and to which he was still attached. He does not need the praise of men. His whole life was his best eulogy. He did not hide his light under a bushel, but gave the gifts and talents which God gave him in performance of his spiritual duties, and it was in his arduous labor, unceasing activity in these duties that he lost his health. Where is the need of praise of a man like him?"

"He never sought the approbation or eulogy of men, except their respect and love. The presence of the large congregation this morning shows that he had that respect and love. He died with all the consolations of his church, and it was when death came, he was surrounded by the members of the Jesuit Order, with whom he studied, and with whom he associated in his chosen work, some of whom he had known since boyhood. I read the prayer over him, and when the end of that prayer was reached his soul took its flight. May God give him eternal rest. Pray for him, preserve his memory in prayer that he may rest in peace."

FINAL ABSOLUTION.

Silently then began the final absolution of the dead as the celebrant stood about the coffin and the faint odor of incense rose on the air. Pathetically touching was the slow procession as all the priests took their last fearful look at their co-worker. Then six of their number carried him forth to the outer door, and in the priests' plot in the Cathedral cemetery he was laid away, while the priests sang the benediction.

Those who bore the body to the hearse were Revs. J. V. Moylan, Frank P. Walsh, Thomas O'Malley, J. J. Curran, William O'Hara and D. J. Bustin. The pall-bearers were selected from the Knights of Columbus. They were Messrs. Timothy Burke, H. J. Collins, M. F. Sando, esq., M. J. Moran, John Brown, John J. Murphy, esq., and John Colligan.

The ushers, also members of the Knights, were Dr. F. L. McGraw, F. J. McLaughlin, Dr. C. E. Thompson, Dr. John McGrath, Frank J. Conroy, Walter Reedy, John Gunster, Richard M. O'Brien, James Mahon and M. J. McAndrew.

In the recital of the office of the dead, Rev. Peter Christ and Rev. J. V. Moylan were the antiphonarians, and the responses were made by the other priests.

The following were the officers of the mass: Rev. Eugene A. Garvey, Vicar general of Pittston, celebrant; Rev. N. J. McManus, of North Scranton, deacon; Rev. J. J. Loughran, of cathedral, sub-deacon; Rev. J. J. Feibel, of Nicholson, master of ceremonies.

SUPT. E. G. RUSSELL HAS RESIGNED

THOMAS E. CLARKE NAMED AS HIS SUCCESSOR.

He Will Today Succeed Mr. Russell as the General Superintendent of the D. L. & W. Railroad—Mr. Clark Came Here Recently to Accept the Position of Division Superintendent Under Mr. Russell with Whom He Has Long Been Associated in Railroad Work.

The retirement of E. G. Russell, as general superintendent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, which has been expected for several months, was officially announced yesterday in this city, when President W. H. Truesdale notified the local officials in a short order stating that Thomas E. Clarke, the present division superintendent, would succeed to the general superintendency today. The resignation is not entirely voluntary, but has been hastened by a private business matter which Mr. Russell has had in view for some time.

A few days ago the general superintendent was called to New York in consultation with President Truesdale and has since been in New York. On Thursday Superintendent Clarke was also called to New York, and when he returned to his office yesterday confirmed the story. In conversation with a Tribune man, Mr. Clarke stated that Mr. Russell's retirement is due to several reasons, but did not care to state them, preferring that Mr. Russell furnish the information himself. Continuing, he said:

"I have known Mr. Russell about twenty years. During a good portion of this time we were business associates and enjoyed a very warm personal friendship, which was also participated in by our families. I resigned an important railroad position in Iowa the last of July, partly in consequence of the road which I was merging into another system, when Mr. Russell promptly offered me a place with him, which, after taking two weeks' vacation, I accepted and fully expected to remain in my new position indefinitely.

"Shortly after coming here Mr. Russell informed me that he was contemplating a change of base to occur probably in September, but I did not understand it was to come so soon, and I think he may have hastened it for some private business reasons. We are the very best of friends and always will be, and I am glad to know that he will continue his residence in Scranton for some time."

From 1881 to 1885 W. H. Truesdale was president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, and during that time Mr. E. Clarke was superintendent, principally on roads in the northwest, and which latter he resigned on August 1 in consequence of the property being acquired by another company.

Mr. Clarke has been prominently connected with the American Railway association, having served on the first committee on car service and afterward for several years on the committee of train rules and with the joint committee on safety appliances, signals and interlocking. He came to the Lackawanna upon the solicitation of his old friend and former associate, Mr. Russell, whom he now succeeds.

When asked concerning his successor as division superintendent, Mr. Clarke stated that in all probability he will look after the work himself for the present.

CONCERNING SUPERINTENDENT OF MOTIVE

Power T. S. Lloyd, it can be officially stated that there is no truth in the rumor of his contemplated retirement, and as far as the return of Superintendent Salisbury is concerned Mr. Clarke says he knows nothing of it.
