HOW TO AVOID INSANITY.

Practical Hints from a Doctor of Divinity and Law.

Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, in the Century. Anxiety should be systematically ntagonized by philosophy, religion or change of subjects of thought. The effect of worry and suspense in driving men wild, directly and by contrast, for bankruptcy is often followed by comparative mental repose, Hence authorities affirm that uncertainty and anxiety are far more liable to lead to mental derangement than he assurance of disaster.

As anxiety is a foe to clear thinking, it is better for one approaching a crisis to resort to indirect methods of | + hospital this morning. The remains years is again back. He is staying will be brought here for interment.

quently changed. Neither fanaticism nor insanity from mental causes will he liable to develop when the mind is not constantly held upon one problem, probability, possibility or perplex-

Surroundings lose their power to withdraw the mind from care and fear so from time to time the scene should changed. Those who postpone travel for several years often find that they have lost the capacity of enjoyment; care is their courier, and they return unrefreshed. A frequent vaca tion of two or three days in a month would in many cases be more beneficial she will purchase a supply of fall milthan thirty-six days of leisure or change consecutively each year.

The observance of one day in seven a complete change in subjects of thought, and the suspension of modes of activity required for six days, would be philosophical even though it had no basis in religion. In the first French revolution the attempt made to have a holiday once in five days, and again once in ten. The intervals were too frequent under the first plan and did not recur often enough under the second. Hence those who recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. J. hated the system which enforced the Sabbath were fain to return to it. The superintendent of one of the largest hospitals for the insane declares that nincteen out of twenty of the business and professional men who come under his care have been in

Caesar aut nihil is usually nihil, and if Caesar, it is often only another form of nihil. In great emergencies men are often not content to wait. Because they know not what to do, they do they know not what. Many become insane for want of occupation; they inherit wealth, and with it a straight jacket of conventionalities in which they are compelled to spend their lives. This is especially the case with women, who generally, unlike men similarly situoted, cannot travel by sea or land, employ their energies in hunting, fishing, or athletics. Men who retire from business voluntarily or because of advancing years, without modes of mental occupation, are prone to melancholy. Some fear poverty while in the midst of riches; others are out of joint with the times; others develop strange eccentricities, illustrating the proverb, "Give an old mill nothing else to grind and it will grind flint." A habit of reading, an interest in science, active connection with some systematical philanthropy, a profound and practical sympathy with some "religious cuit," will postpone the date of the advent of senility.

HOW THE LEADERS STAND

Charles Rodriguez, Oliver Callahan and Arthur Kemmerer Increase Their Points-An Opportunity Still Open to Hustling Young Persons to Gain One of The Tribune's Special Rewards.

No change is recorded this morning in the position of the contestants in The Tribune's Educational Contest, although several of the leaders have materially advanced their number of points.

As previously noted, those who would like to enter the contest, but have not yet done so, should not lose the opportunity that yet is open to them. There are only two and a half weeks remaining of this competition, and a failure to take advantage of its great chances for future development in an educational way will very likely be deplored when it is too late. The idea of this Educational Contest was conceived with a desire to help the young men and women of this section while its rules were drawn up with the intent of making the contest fair and open to all ambitious young persons. There is still room for others who have a desire to advance their own interests and The Tribune will be glad to welcome any accessions to its roll of contestants. Read the list of special rewards offered and see if they don't appeal to you or some one of your friends. This list and the rules of the contest will be found in full in today's Tribune, on the fourth page.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Sept. 13.-The few stocks in which by appreciable movement occurred today were ealt in to so small an extent as to detract from is in to so sinil an extent as to detract roin he significance of the changes. The coalers showed some sharp declines, Lackawanna losing 5 points, while Reading first preferred and New Jersey Central wert down at onetime a point, but partly recovered. The declaration of a strike derived Central wert down at one-time a point, but partly recovered. The declaration of a strike in the Pennsylvania anthracite region probably had a depressing effect on the general market as the contest inaugurated is left to be traught with vast possibilities of harm. Some depression was reflected from foreign exchanges, London showing uneasiness over the likelihood of a railroad strike. The London money market was apparently undistorbed by the stock exchange settlement and the 25 per cent, installment falling due tomorrow on subscriptions to the British exchequer bond issue. This leaves half of the subscription to be met. The general admission that a German loan to the extent of $125,00,000 is to be placed in New York gives additional interest to the effect of the remaining instillments to be paid by American subscribers to the British loan. It is a safe assumption that a liberal proportion of the German loan will have to he met by gold experts, the need of gold being the evident motive of the German government in seeking to place the loan in Nw York.
