

STATE LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN CLUBS HARMONIOUS CONCLUDING SESSION AT PHILADELPHIA.

Chairman Babcock, of the Congressional Campaign Committee, Warns Voters of the Danger That the Democrats May Capture Congress, Platform and New Officers.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—Men prominent in national politics were present at the second day's session of the annual convention of the State League of Republican Clubs, Congressmen J. W. Babcock, of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, and J. W. Babcock, of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, and J. W. Babcock, of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Mr. Babcock, in his address, stressed the election of Bryan would insure a Democratic house of representatives, but that McKinley's election would not necessarily guarantee a Republican majority in the house. "If we organize the next house," he concluded, "Babcock, 'the voters of New York and Pennsylvania must do their duty.'"

The platform adopted congratulates the Republican party upon the nomination of McKinley and Roosevelt, and endorses the platform adopted at the Philadelphia convention; endorses President McKinley's Philippine policy, as announced in his letter of acceptance; expresses the opinion that Pennsylvania should be represented in Congress by a solid Republican majority.

"We regret exceedingly the strike recently inaugurated in the anthracite coal region," he said, "and sincerely trust that all differences between operators and employes may be speedily adjusted by arbitration and that thereby a long and continued struggle, which can bring nothing but sorrow to the miners, may be avoided, thus allowing the miners to continue in the prosperity which they have enjoyed since the inauguration of the present administration."

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Pennsylvania State League of Republican Clubs that all positions under the federal administration paying $500 per annum or less, be removed from the classified list of positions to be filled by competitive examination.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to President McKinley and Chairman Hanna, of the Republican National Committee, with a request that they exercise their influence to see that they are complied with.

The old officers were re-elected, as follows: President, J. Hampton Moore, Philadelphia; Milton W. Shreve, Erie; Hon. W. J. Diehl, Pittsburg; John C. Henry, Scranton; William I. Munn, Philadelphia; Howard Lyon, Williamsport; John W. Durham, Philadelphia; recording secretary, George Llewellyn, Wilkes-Barre; treasurer, Mahlon D. Young, Philadelphia.

Secretary Griest Wants Court to Enlighten Him on This Point. Harrisburg, Sept. 18.—Judge Weiss issued a mandamus today on Secretary of the Commonwealth Griest to show cause why he should file the nomination paper of Albert W. Johnson, candidate for representative from Union county, under the name of "Honest Ballot party."

Secretary Griest filed an answer today to the mandamus proceedings instituted by counsel for the candidate for senator and members of the Chester county Fusion party to show cause why he should not file their certificate. The secretary says that inasmuch as the matter has been called to the attention of the court he refused to file the certificate, and asks the court to determine whether or not it is his province to ascertain if a Fusion political party, such as is contemplated by the ballot law, actually exists.

Result of the Compilation of the Recent Primary Returns. Stroudsburg, Sept. 18.—The Republican primary election returns were computed this afternoon in the court house. The successful ones were: For representative, Dr. A. A. Wertman, of Tamnerville; for associate judge, Moses E. Miller, of Stroudsburg; for jury commissioner, Layton E. Teeter, of East Stroudsburg; Lawyer W. A. Erdman was chosen county chairman. Committees were elected from the following districts: Coolbaugh, J. W. McCormick; Chestnut Hill, Charles T. Tidd; Delaware Water Gap, Charles Edinger; East Stroudsburg, A. R. Brittain, esq., and Dr. F. Smith; Jackson, Jonas Dull; Pocono, Dr. A. A. Wertman; Stroudsburg, Dr. F. C. Walton and George A. Reinhart.

The votes from the North district in Hamilton were not counted, as the returns had not been certified. The Middle Smithfield returns were mailed, but were not received in time to be counted. The returns were computed by John S. Schooner, William D. Walton and James K. Walton.

FUSION IN HUNTINGDON. Chisholm Named for Assemblyman Through Deal with Democrats. Huntingdon, Sept. 18.—The fusion ticket in this county, which is aimed principally at the regular Republican legislative nominees, was completed

DOCTORS DISCUSS DISEASE AND DINE STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETS IN WILKES-BARRE.

Papers Read by Drs. Bateson and O'Brien of This City—President Guthrie's Annual Address—Other Features of an Instructive Convention.

Wilkes-Barre, Sept. 18.—The fifth annual state convention of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania is now in session in this city. The first session was called to order at 9:30 this morning.

Dr. G. W. Guthrie, of this city, the state president, presided. Rev. Dr. C. E. Mogg, of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, offered prayer. Dr. Nicholas welcomed the visiting delegates to the city. In the course of his remarks the mayor said there should be a national health department represented in the president's cabinet, vested with power to guard the public health of the nation against the epidemics, born at home and in foreign lands.

The mayor was followed by an address of welcome by Dr. H. N. Neale, of Upper Lehigh, president of the Luzerne County Medical Society. He paid a tribute to the medical colleges of Pennsylvania, whose graduates, he said, were known the world over as some of the most proficient in the profession. The reading of reports followed.

At this afternoon's session the following papers were read: "Address on Medicine," Thomas Turnbull, Jr., Allegheny; "The Inter-Relationship Between Cardiac and Renal Diseases, with Particular Reference to Treatment," Aloysius J. Kelly, Philadelphia; "Some Notes on Treatment of Rheumatism," Alfred Stenger, Philadelphia; "Diagnosis and Treatment of Early Stages of Typhoid Fever," W. A. Hartzell, Allentown; "Lecturing Not Teaching," T. D. Davis, Pittsburg; "Heat Stroke and Heat Exhaustion," C. C. Herman, Pittsburg; "Human Temperaments and Their Application in Medicine," J. C. Bateson, Scranton; "Analogies Between Nervous and Electric Mechanisms," J. Emmett O'Brien, Scranton.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

After the business session a reception was held at the Hotel Sterling for the visiting doctors and their ladies. The prominent families of Wilkes-Barre were present and it was a brilliant social event.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

DOCTORS DISCUSS DISEASE AND DINE STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETS IN WILKES-BARRE.

Papers Read by Drs. Bateson and O'Brien of This City—President Guthrie's Annual Address—Other Features of an Instructive Convention.

Wilkes-Barre, Sept. 18.—The fifth annual state convention of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania is now in session in this city. The first session was called to order at 9:30 this morning.

Dr. G. W. Guthrie, of this city, the state president, presided. Rev. Dr. C. E. Mogg, of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, offered prayer. Dr. Nicholas welcomed the visiting delegates to the city. In the course of his remarks the mayor said there should be a national health department represented in the president's cabinet, vested with power to guard the public health of the nation against the epidemics, born at home and in foreign lands.

The mayor was followed by an address of welcome by Dr. H. N. Neale, of Upper Lehigh, president of the Luzerne County Medical Society. He paid a tribute to the medical colleges of Pennsylvania, whose graduates, he said, were known the world over as some of the most proficient in the profession. The reading of reports followed.

At this afternoon's session the following papers were read: "Address on Medicine," Thomas Turnbull, Jr., Allegheny; "The Inter-Relationship Between Cardiac and Renal Diseases, with Particular Reference to Treatment," Aloysius J. Kelly, Philadelphia; "Some Notes on Treatment of Rheumatism," Alfred Stenger, Philadelphia; "Diagnosis and Treatment of Early Stages of Typhoid Fever," W. A. Hartzell, Allentown; "Lecturing Not Teaching," T. D. Davis, Pittsburg; "Heat Stroke and Heat Exhaustion," C. C. Herman, Pittsburg; "Human Temperaments and Their Application in Medicine," J. C. Bateson, Scranton; "Analogies Between Nervous and Electric Mechanisms," J. Emmett O'Brien, Scranton.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

After the business session a reception was held at the Hotel Sterling for the visiting doctors and their ladies. The prominent families of Wilkes-Barre were present and it was a brilliant social event.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

IRON MILLS REOPENED. Business Again in Plants of American Steel and Wire Company.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—Oliver's south side plant of the American Steel and Wire company has resumed operations, and orders have been issued to start the Anderson plant and the Reed mill at the same concern within a week. The Anderson plant closed since Mr. Gates' order last April.

The resumption is caused by the return of confidence in the iron and steel trade and the heavy demand for wire and nails. Employment will be given several thousand men in this district.

At this afternoon's session the following papers were read: "Address on Medicine," Thomas Turnbull, Jr., Allegheny; "The Inter-Relationship Between Cardiac and Renal Diseases, with Particular Reference to Treatment," Aloysius J. Kelly, Philadelphia; "Some Notes on Treatment of Rheumatism," Alfred Stenger, Philadelphia; "Diagnosis and Treatment of Early Stages of Typhoid Fever," W. A. Hartzell, Allentown; "Lecturing Not Teaching," T. D. Davis, Pittsburg; "Heat Stroke and Heat Exhaustion," C. C. Herman, Pittsburg; "Human Temperaments and Their Application in Medicine," J. C. Bateson, Scranton; "Analogies Between Nervous and Electric Mechanisms," J. Emmett O'Brien, Scranton.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

After the business session a reception was held at the Hotel Sterling for the visiting doctors and their ladies. The prominent families of Wilkes-Barre were present and it was a brilliant social event.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

AT PITTTSTON. By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press.

Pittston, Sept. 18.—The striking miners of Pittston held a big demonstration tonight. They gave a parade in which 2,000 men and boys participated. After the parade there was a mass meeting, which was addressed by organizer Dilcher, of Scranton, and others.

At this afternoon's session the following papers were read: "Address on Medicine," Thomas Turnbull, Jr., Allegheny; "The Inter-Relationship Between Cardiac and Renal Diseases, with Particular Reference to Treatment," Aloysius J. Kelly, Philadelphia; "Some Notes on Treatment of Rheumatism," Alfred Stenger, Philadelphia; "Diagnosis and Treatment of Early Stages of Typhoid Fever," W. A. Hartzell, Allentown; "Lecturing Not Teaching," T. D. Davis, Pittsburg; "Heat Stroke and Heat Exhaustion," C. C. Herman, Pittsburg; "Human Temperaments and Their Application in Medicine," J. C. Bateson, Scranton; "Analogies Between Nervous and Electric Mechanisms," J. Emmett O'Brien, Scranton.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

After the business session a reception was held at the Hotel Sterling for the visiting doctors and their ladies. The prominent families of Wilkes-Barre were present and it was a brilliant social event.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

At this evening's session the president, Dr. G. W. Guthrie, delivered his annual address. He pleaded for unity in the legitimate medical profession and scored quackery, which, he said, despite all our enlightenment, still has many followers in the world. And its followers are not confined to the unlettered, either. Intelligent men and women are often the patrons of the illegitimate and the quack, he said, and he urged the medical profession to make a doctor, especially if he is young, feel discouraged and disgusted with his fellow men.

YESTERDAY WAS ANOTHER BANNER DAY

The Tribune's Educational Contest Nearing Its Close.

They Were Even More Numerous Than Usual—Miss Jennie Myers, David Birtley and Charles Rodriguez All Made Big Returns—Enthusiasm Running High All Along the Line—Only Ten More Days Left.

Yesterday was another "banner day" in the Tribune's Educational Contest. It surpassed the previous "high water mark" by a greater margin, and the number of points turned in by the contestants was very large. Miss Jennie Myers, of Lake Ariel, alone contributed 27 points and David Birtley, of Providence, was a close second with 24, followed by Charles Rodriguez with 22. Besides the splendid showing made by these three, there were five other contestants who showed that they had begun to feel the enthusiasm connected with an approach upon the contest. They were striving with "might and main" to be well in front when they come sweeping up under the wire. Only ten more days remain to get ready for the closing days of the contest. The closing days are the most important, and the points must be sought for and obtained in as great numbers as possible in a way into the ranks of the successful. There will be no time to relax efforts from now on, and the ones who win cannot count on anything but hard work to pull them through. This is not a chance to demonstrate your luck or your popularity—only personal perseverance and constant effort will avail. One point may make a huge difference in the value of the special prizes, and a little extra effort could get that point and doesn't, why, then, who will be to blame?

The changes made in the standing list becoming official this morning, these days: David W. Birtley started in upon his third century and is now not far from Rodriguez for first place. He is 85 tallies away from Callahan in third position, but the latter is endeavoring to recover his lost ground and the three leaders will make a very pretty fight for fifth place. Arthur Kemmerer, of Factoryville, in fourth place, may be the dark horse in the race, for he is coming along steadily day by day and has his eye on a higher position. David C. Spencer, who has held fifth place since Labor Day, is this morning compelled to surrender it to Miss Jennie Myers, of Lake Ariel, who came up with a rush from eleventh place Monday to sixth and who now takes the fifth place. Only two points behind Mr. Kemmerer, Mr. Spencer drops back into sixth place, but informs The Tribune that he expects to be back in his old position in the morning. Eugene Boland and Harry Reese are close behind, however, and it is a very pretty race between them. Miss Fannie E. Williams supplants Miss Grace Simrell in ninth place, the latter dropping back to tenth. For eleventh place, Sidney W. Hayes goes ahead of Miss Mary Yeager of Moscow, who takes his old position in twelfth. The rest of the contestants remain unchanged. Below we publish the complete standing of the sixteen active contestants.

Standing of Contestants. 1. Charles Rodriguez, 428 Webster ave., Scranton 277 2. David W. Birtley, 103 West Market street, Providence, R. I. 203 3. Oliver Callahan, 415 Vine street, Scranton, 118 4. Arthur Kemmerer, Factoryville 92 5. Miss Jennie Myers, Lake Ariel 90 6. David C. Spencer, Bloomsburg 70 7. Eugene Boland, 235 Walnut street, Dunmore 62 8. Harry Reese, 331 Evans court, Hyde Park 61 9. Miss Fannie E. Williams, Peckville 55 10. Miss Grace Simrell, Carbondale 53 11. Sidney W. Hayes, 922 Olive street, Scranton, 47 12. Miss Mary Yeager, Moscow 46 13. Richard Roberts, 1313 Hampton street, Hyde Park 11 14. John P. Smith, 2532 Boulevard ave., Providence 8 15. Edward Murray, 6 Ham court, South Scranton 0 16. Robert Campbell, 1532 Monsey ave., Providence 4

Obnoxious Orders Were Rescinded by Their Employers. Bloomsburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—The striking puddlers at the American Car and Foundry company at Berwick returned to work today, after a lengthy interview with the company's officials, in which they were granted their demands. They absolutely refused to work unless a new order of the company making it compulsory for the men to produce a physician's certificate every time they are absent on sick leave and