The Electric City Wheelmen not only set the pace in Northeastern Pennsylvania among the pedal pushers on the cinder path, but they are in a class by themselves when it comes to entertaining their friends. They have a club house, fully equipped with all modern facilities, and therein is the best dancing floor in the city. Last night the boys inaugurated their winter social season with the first "shirt-waist" dance ever given in Pennsylvania, and the second conducted in the United States. The affair was a complete success, and may be repeated in the near fu-Nearly all of the gentlemen discarded their coats, vests and suspenders, and appeared on the floor nattily attired in the latest patterns of shirt designs.
