

CARBONDALE DEPARTMENT.

The Scranton Tribune has opened a Branch Office in Carbondale and will print a daily edition devoted to the interests of the city, the aim being to supply Carbondale with a daily morning paper, containing all the news of the Pioneer City. Communications of a news nature, personals and all items for publication may be left at the new offices in the Burke Building, or may be sent by mail or phone. E. L. Hatfield, manager of the Carbondale edition, will be pleased to receive callers seeking information or desirous of imparting it.

A BEAUTIFUL CHURCH.

The Reconstruction of the Church of St. Rose de Lima Is Nearly Completed.

The Roman Catholic church of St. Rose de Lima, which has been in process of reconstruction in its interior for more than a year, is rapidly nearing completion. The new auditorium will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000, and when finished will be one of the handsomest churches in the state. If not in the entire country. The body of the church, which is very large, has been entirely remodeled and new pews of oak, finished in its natural color, are now being installed.

There are four aisles separating the rows of pews, each being wide and the center aisle is ten feet across. The walls of the church, inside are finished in white enamel and gold, giving life and color to the interior. There are eighteen beautiful stained-glass windows and between the windows are panels painted in delicate tints representing the saints' work. Above the windows, on each side of the rounded ceiling, are large medallion paintings of the saints and apostles.

On the chancel will be two small marble altars on each side and in the center of the high gold and white arch the altar of carved marble, costing $5,000, will be erected. There is a group of paintings surrounding the arch of great value, the one above the altar costing $800. The chancel is ornamented with the white enamel and gold frieze work of the body of the church, with the addition of four altars of onyx, two square and two round. An inlaid mosaic of Mexican onyx and Italian marble spans the highest point of the ceiling on each side, with a space of white and gold. The altar railing is imported from Switzerland and is of carved marble and the finest specimen of its kind in any Catholic church in America.

There are four confessional boxes, two at the entrance and one on each side of the altar. These are of handsome oak of elaborate design. The church organ, in a gallery opposite the altar, is ornate and its cost is $5,000.

The Rev. Father Thomas Coffey, rector of St. Rose, is personally superintending the reconstruction and has taken charge of every detail. It is expected that the church will be ready for services in about two months.

A CHANGE AT THE HOSPITAL.

A Permanent Surgical Staff Appointed—The Institution's Modern Facilities.

At the last regular meeting of the board of directors of the Carbondale Hospital association the members resolved upon making a change in the medical and surgical staff. Hereafter the staff will be made up of twelve physicians and surgeons, and a specialist, and with monthly assignments. This method of the caretaking of patients has not proven satisfactory, and for this reason the change was decided upon.

Under the new order Dr. Alexander F. Gillis has been appointed chief of general surgery, Dr. John S. Niles chief of general surgery, Dr. David L. Bailey chief of medical staff, and Dr. W. W. Fletcher specialist in diseases of the ear, eye and throat. These gentlemen are all Carbondale physicians and are authorized to appoint two or more physicians as their associates.

This change will enable all physicians in the locality to place their private patients in the hospital upon the same terms and with the same privileges that have heretofore been accorded a limited number of practitioners. There is also a certainty that the change will result in securing the best results possible in the treatment and care of patients.

The hospital is thoroughly equipped, the location is beautiful, and under the direction of Miss Wright, the superintendent, and a corps of trained nurses there is every reason to believe that the surgical work done at this institution can be made to compare favorably with that of any other hospital of like capacity. The hospital has accommodations and conveniences for fifty patients in its three large wards and eight private rooms. The operating room has recently been remodelled and furnished with all the newest devices and appliances, including an operating table of plate glass.

Each day, between the hours of 11 and 12 in the forenoon, the staff will be at the hospital. Of course, the individual members will be in attendance at all hours, but at that regular time all the physicians named can be found there. Tuesday and Friday are the days set apart for visitors, when relatives and friends of the patients can see them. All persons who are interested in hospital work will be welcomed by Miss Wright and her assistants, who will be pleased to show them the workings of the institution.

Much good has been accomplished by this hospital, and the board of directors are confident that in the new departure it will prove a still greater boon to the unfortunate and the afflicted who require hospital treatment and caretaking.

A Sticky Occasion.

Miss Ethel Clark, of Terrace street, gave a candy pull Tuesday evening to a large number of her friends. Games and recitations were the other helps to an enjoyable occasion. Those present included Miss Ruth Clark, Florence Bishop, Mary Brennan, Lucy Robinson, Edith Williams, Florence Moon, Sadie Lee, Beatrice Dennis, Katie Stephens, Messrs. Van Allen, Harold Case, Raymond Hughes and Francis Kiefer.

TUESDAY'S GREAT CROWDS.

The Ovation Given to President John Mitchell, the Wonder of the City.

This city is still talking of the splendid demonstration given to President John Mitchell by the United Mine Workers and other bodies of organized labor on Tuesday evening. There was no question of its being the greatest and most enthusiastic ovation ever given to any man in this part of the state. For over three hours, in a misty, windy atmosphere, with frequent heavy downpours of rain, the long lines of paraders either marched through the streets or stood in patient waiting for their honored guest to review them and speak to them.

The 7,000 paraders were but a small portion of the throng, for the sidewalks were full and an overflow into the streets stood three or four deep all along the route of the line of march. There at the people came from the question that every one is discussing today. The rain did not deter them from standing or walking around until after President Mitchell had said his last word.

Until midnight the sounds of band music floated across the busy bridges, as enterprising saloon men captured the widders of the brazen instruments and inveigled them inside, where their loud melody enticed crowds of men of all ages and sizes. Fireworks were set off as an Independence day, the mine workers having struck a bargain in them, whereby they secured an ample stock at ten cents on the dollar. During Mr. Mitchell's review of the parade from the balcony of the Harrison house he was in imminent danger of having his clothes set on fire or being severely burned, as some of his admirers, with more enthusiasm than discretion, set off Roman candles, sky-rockets and other spouting fireworks from a balcony directly above where he stood hatless, and most of the time he was in a frame of mind of falling sparks, to his evident discomfort, but he bravely stuck it out, occasionally brushing a bright and glowing spark from his coat collar.

The Republicans wisely refrained from carrying out their preconceived Littlefield of overhauling the Congressional committee from the depot to the opera house by a parade of their members. It would have been impossible for a parade to get through the main streets without disrupting the other and larger parades. In order not to do this the Republican club wisely gave up their own plans.

A TERRIBLE FALL.

An Old Gentleman Meets with a Bad Accident.

Michael Duffy, of the West Side, came to the central city on Tuesday night to witness the labor demonstration. While on his way to the city, he was struck by a horse and fell from his horse on Scott street, intending to get out of the wet as soon as possible. With this object in view, he used for a homeward route the Ontario and Western tracks. They were led him over the bridge that spans the Fall Brook creek. As he was crossing the bridge he missed his footing, slipped on the wet planks, and went over the side of the bridge falling a distance of about 200 feet. He was injured in about twenty-six feet.

Mr. Duffy, who is an aged gentleman, cried out for assistance when he was able to regain his faculties, but the rain and the noise of the wind added to the fact that this cry is deserted at night, conspired to render his efforts futile, and he was compelled to remain where he was until daybreak this morning, when Mr. Thomas H. Killen, a neighbor, who was on his way to work, saw Mr. Duffy. He tried to rescue him from his perilous position, but was unable to do so. Mr. Killen then ran back and notified some neighbors, and with their assistance Mr. Duffy was conveyed to his home.

Mr. Gillis was summoned and found that his patient's right leg had been broken in two places above the knee and that his nose was broken and lacerated. The fractures were reduced and Mr. Duffy was made as much as ease as possible. He is now conscious and composed.

The distance Mr. Duffy fell is just twenty-six feet, and his descent was broken by rocks. He stands a fair chance of recovery, however, if pneumonia is not induced by his long exposure of over eight hours in the dreaching rain and the creek water, as he is well advanced in years, his friends are not sanguine of his recovery to health.

A Halloween Party.

The school friends of Miss Blanche Colvin, of cemetery street, gave her a delightful surprise last evening by assembling at her home in a body for Halloween party. A number of enjoyable hours were spent there in games, some of which were decidedly "spooky," music and other pleasurable amusements. The evening a charming collation was participated in.

Celebrated His Nineteenth Year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Connaughton, of South Main street, gave a reception Tuesday evening in honor of the nineteenth birthday of their son John Connaughton, who is being celebrated in the event, among them being a large number from Scranton. After supper, which was served early, dancing, music and games were indulged in until a late hour. Among the features of the evening's enjoyment was a graphophone entertainment, contributed by one of the Scranton guests.

Young America Celebrates.

Last night was Halloween in Carbondale, as well as in all other places, but nowhere were there more pranks cut up in proportion to the size of the town. Staid and respectable elderly citizens were invited to the factious small boy and his little sister, for a long black coat makes a lovely repository for a wide, white chalk mark, and many a man will mutter to himself this morning when he sees what have done to his immaculate attire, brought to his immaculate attire. The streets of this city were filled with precocious youngsters as soon as it grew dark and gates mysteriously disappeared, signs changed owners and establishments, and trailing streets suddenly a line of thought and the thinker. Citizens who had settled down to a quiet evening in the bosom of their family were stirred to sudden activity by a ring at the door and a presumable visit, and after donning coat and collar, they were called to the door to hear the scamp of lively feet and a snicker of glee. A number of masqueraders paraded up and down the streets and a handful of hayseed was often deposited in the hair of a passerby.

Some of the pranks were of a more malicious nature than the occasion warranted, considerable damage being wrought by some older boys and young men, who entered into the spirit of the evening with more vim than discretion.

A Halloween Surprise Party.

Miss Mary Nichol was surprised last evening by a party of friends who suddenly appeared and took possession of her home, turning it into a scene of gayety in short order. Her South Main street residence was a merry place for the rest of the evening. Halloween games, music and other festivities were the order of the evening, allied with a sumptuous collation.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Oct. 31.—The stock market became still further involved in apathy and indifference today. Business was dull and the volume of professional traders and they did not push their transactions in a very energetic manner. The city which developed a restive and impatient sympathy with the sudden upward movement in Southern Pacific retained some force this morning with the evidence of continued buying in that stock. The opening level of prices was higher than last night and there was some further advance, but when it became evident that the buying orders in Southern Pacific had been filled, the market fell into a sort of lethargy. The resulting tendency to sag developed very gradually until near the close, when the professional dealers, who had been steadily established before meeting any demand, as a result the earlier gains were completely wiped out and the market closed at a level about 1/4 point around. The weakness was most marked in the high priced industrial, the local traction stocks and the steel stocks. The decline in the Pacific was conspicuous on the decline, Northern Pacific falling almost a point, Southern Pacific, while in Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific the decline at the best was a point with the latter stock continued quiet and easy but it is not improbable that future prospects have a depressive tendency upon speculation.
