Michael Langan and John Mulligan Engaged in an Argument and It Wound Up in a Mix-Up in Which a Knife Was Used-Eisteddfod at Taylor on Christmas Day-Social Events, Political Meetings, Funeral Announcements, News Notes and Personal Mention.

Michael W. Langan, of 1022 West Linden street, a conductor on the Lackawanna railroad, was severely slashed with a knife last night while engaged in an altereation with John Mulligan, another railroader, who boards at the corner of Ninth street and West Lackawanna avenue.

From what could be learned of the effair, the men met on the West Lackawanna avenue hill, between Ninth and Chestnut streets, about 19 o'clock, and Mulligan accused Langan mark and a scuttle followed.

Mulligan asserts that in defending himself he received a slight cut on the left thumb, but from the cuts on Langan's neck it would appear that Mulligan did the slashing. The latter was placed under arrest by Lieutenant Williams and Patrolman Lowry and is now locked up in the station house to await the extent of Langan's injuries. The latter was assisted to the office of Dr. McKeage on North Main avemue, where his injuries were dressed and later he was removed to his home and put to bed. The extent of his injuries are not fully known. Mulligan recently retired from the United States service, having been a member of the Eleventh infantry and served with credit in Cuba and Puerto Rice. He is a stalwart, good-looking fellow, well-proportioned and well dressed. He was slightly intoxicated

Langan is a well known resident of West Scranton and has always borne an excellent reputation both as a citizen and railroad man.

OPENING ROOMS OF THE REPUB-LICAN CLUB.

Portion of the Address Delivered by T. J. Reynolds, the Republican Candidate for the Legislature—Resolutions Adopted by the North End Glee Society-Fire Alarm Sent in from Box 73 at Bull's Head-Only a Small Amount of Damage Done. Shorter Paragraphs.

At the exercises in connection with the opening of the rooms of the North End Republican club Thursday night, n the Auditorium, an address, of which the following is a part, was made by T. J. Reynolds, the Republi-can candidate for legislature in the First district:

The hand that holds Aladdin's lamp must be the hand of toil. This nation rests on the shoulders of the laboring man. Therefore, let us feel that this is our country and that the shield of protection must be placed over our labor. Let us be loyal one to another; then the rich cannot oppress the poor, for the poor are in the majority. The laboring mea, those of us who in some way work for our living, can elect every senator, every congressman, every legislature and every judge. We can make the laws and we can interpret the laws so if capital oppresses labor in these United States, and it does, we, the laboring element, are simply our-selves to blame. For, dear friends, the ballot is the throne of the laboring man; the ballot box is the ark of the covenant.

Unless we see to it that every man who has vote votes, and unless we see to it that every ionest vote is counted, the days of our re mblic are numbered.

I am not only in favor of free specels, but I am also in favor of an absolutely managed lot. There is one king in this country, one lot. There is one king in the legally expressed supreme ezar, and this is the legally expressed will of the people.

when I say reasonable labor is a source of joy.
To work for wife and child, to tell for those we love, is happiness; prvided, however, we are paid enough to make them happy. But to work like a slave, to see your dear wife and little children poorly clad, to sit at a table where food is coarse and scarce, to rise at four or five in the morning, to work all day and throw your tired hours may be a superior blad, to shad a state of the second sec your tired bones upon a miserable bed at night, to live without leisure, without making those to live without leisure, without making those you love comfortable and happy, this is not living, gentlemen; it is dying a slow, lingering crucifixion. The hours of labor should be shortened. With the vast and wonderful improvements of the nineteenth century there should not only be the necessaries of life for those who toil, but comforts and luxuries as well. What is reasonable price for labor? I answer, such a price that will enable him to answer, such a price that will enable him to live as he ought to live. To have the comforts of life, to be able to lay by something for his declining years, to own his own home, his fire side, so that he can preserve the feeling of a man. Gentlemen, from my early youth to the present day I have been very closely identified with the son of toil, having entered the preparatory school known to you and I as the breaker, graduated from the breaker to enter the colege of the Sloan and Central mines; therefore deeply sympathize with every honest effect made by the children of labor to improve their conditions.

In conclusion, I wish to say to you, should you elect me as your representative to the leg-islature, I am the sole proprietor of myself; no orporations, no clique of men have a deed o trust on what little brain I have, and as long as I can get my part of the common air I am going to exercise my honest convictions.
