CLOSE OF DEER SEASON.

Snowfall in Adirondacks Has Led to Great Destruction of Deer. Utica, N. Y., Nov. 16.—The deer season closed in the Adirondacks yesterday. This is fortunate, if it is desired to keep alive any considerable portion of the animals in the woods, as the snowfall during the past week has led hundreds of hunters to seek the woods and the slaughter of deer has been enormous.

DEFICIENCY LIST IS A VERY LONG ONE

To Date Heads of Departments Have Expended $5,158.71 More Than the Appropriations for Year.

An examination of Controller Howell's ledgers yesterday by a Tribune man revealed the fact that deficiencies amounting to $5,158.71 have been created by the heads of various departments so far this year.

This is an especially large amount, inasmuch as the fiscal year is only a little more than half expired. The deficiencies are divided among the several departments, as follows: Fire department, $2,822.41; city clerk's department, $224.19; city treasurer's department, $196.21; street commissioner's department, $554.83; board of health, $56.23; parks department, $5.21; total, $5,158.71.

The controller, in discussing the matter yesterday, said that, although he was opposed to the creation of deficiencies, he could not see where any of the present deficiency bills had been needlessly contracted. Especially was this true of the fire department, he said, where the chief had been obliged to contract these obligations, possessed as he was with the knowledge that in contracting them he was creating deficiencies.

"A LONG CHASE AND A HARD CHASE"

Andrew McGuerrin Rifled Radin's Window and Gave a Good Run to His Captors—Now in Jail.

Andrew McGuerrin, of Market street, a young man about twenty years of age, was last night arrested by Patrolman Boland, Special Officer John Tierney and Robert Simpson, of North Washington avenue, and taken to the Center street police station, on the charge of breaking a window in S. Radin's pawn shop, at 123 Penn avenue, and taking three revolvers.

McGuerrin was a particularly bold marauder, as it was only 10:30 o'clock when he kicked in the big glass front and entered the three pistols. The crash of the falling glass was heard by Special Officer Tierney and Mr. Simpson, who were nearby, and they started for the offender. He saw them coming and straightway took to his heels. He was chased for some time, but he did not even move as he dashed to Lackawanna avenue and then started on his course towards the West Lackawanna avenue bridge.

SCRANTON IS A BONANZA

MANY GULLIBLE PERSONS IN THE CITY.

Kent Lord, erstwhile tragedian and physician, finds this city a veritable Golconda for the practice of Palmistry and Clairvoyance—His Apartments Are Daily Thronged by People Who Could Find a Better Use for Their Money Than Buying His Alleged Information.

The mystic art of clairvoyance is again represented by an exponent in Scranton, and every day the apartments of Kent Lord, palmist and fortune-teller, at 313 Mulberry street, are thronged with persons, who, after depositing sums varying all the way from fifty cents and one dollar up to a future in which the height of success, beautiful, fair women and mysterious drink men are mixed.

The palmist himself is a really remarkable man; that is, if one is willing to believe all that he says.

A native of the Emerald Isle, he is a graduate of the Trinity College of Medicine at Dublin. Besides being a practitioner, he was once in "the legit" and played heavy losses in the support of Edward Booth, Dion Boucicault, and other great actors. His clairvoyance is an acquired art, but it would be unjust to Dr. Lord's histrionic powers to say that while in his senses he does not prove himself a very apt pupil of his famous masters.

Although ushered into the apartments at an early hour, he found himself preceded by three women and a man. The male part of this assembly was a rather seely-looking individual, who came with his money to better use than peering into the future. The women were ordinarily dressed and they, too, did not seem to be enjoying any excess of funds. The number of visitors swelled every moment, and inside of about three-quarters of an hour there were fourteen persons in the room. Several of these were young girls, apparently domestics in private homes.

One woman, as she emerged from her interview, had a rather dubious, puzzled look upon her face, and when asked by a friend whether the seance was satisfactory, gave an affirmative reply.

"And did he tell you your name?" was asked eagerly.

"Oh, no," replied the woman, who was well on in years, and had a face streaked with lines of care and a foreboding lined by deep frowns. "Oh, no, he didn't tell me my name, but he said I'd had lots of trouble, and the Lord knows that's true."

The woman seemed much surprised that the clairvoyant had struck the nail so beautifully.

Others who came out were not so satisfied. One angry man, who Lord was an impostor. At last it was the Tribune man's turn. He entered the private room, took a seat, and Dr. Lord, who is a stout, complacent-looking man with Svernal-like eyes, handed the seer a card, and directed him to write down his name, and questions he desired answered, and incidentally sign his name and affix the exact date on which he was born. While this was being done, the palmist walked stealthily about the room, and it is just possible that he may have cast a lightning glance at the card.

When the questions were written the card was turned over, and the palmist bade his visitor place his hand upon his own and make some wish. While the seer was thus within himself whether he would rather succeed President McKinley or be at the head of the free trade, Dr. Lord placed the card in an envelope and carefully sealed it, thus disposing of any supposition that he saw the inscription.

He then took The Tribune man's hand and said: "Ah, you are of an artistic temperament. You would make a good lawyer, doctor, dentist, hypnotist, medium, anything which requires the exercise of brain." The visitor felt his head growing, and reflected that he was undoubtedly getting satisfaction for the $1 bill paid the palmist to pull open the gates of the future.

After a careful study of the hand, the clairvoyant started. "Ah," he said, "you were born under the worst sign of the Zodiac, February, near the twentieth day."

"Wonderful!" murmured the seer.

"And now," continued the seer, as he discovered a peculiar line, "who is a Louis, and he smiled triumphantly, as much as to say, "I've got your name now, my lad." It may here be mentioned that the little card was filled with the name of the writer might have been written a little illegibly. "Louis," replied the seer, "is a dear friend."

"Ah, yes, quite true," said the doctor, who then proceeded to give a little dissertation about Louis, and then took another shy at the name, this time getting it right. "And now," he continued, "I see a form near you." He here
