WEST SCRANTON

COLUMBIAS' HOUSE UNSAFE

ENTIRE BUILDING IN NEED OF IMMEDIATE REPAIR.

Main Floor Is Decidedly Unsafe and the Foundation Walls Are Cracked in Several Places-Electric City Wheelmen's Monthly Dance. Course of Entertinments Proposed - Police and Aldermanic Cases-Funeral of Miles Gibbons. Shorter News Notes.

The failure of councils to provide the necessary funds for repairing the Columbia Hose and Chemical company's quarters on Division street is being severely criticized by members of the company, and unless the repairs ore made soon the company's usefulness will be greatly impaired.

A Tribune man was in the house last evening when taps were sounded and his attention was called to the condition of the main floor while the four horses were standing thereon. With their combined weight and that of the heavy apparatus bearing down on the planks, it is surprising if the whole outfit is not soon dropped into th: cellar, so weak is the flooring.

several places there are holes in the floor large enough to insert a man's foot, and on the east side it is necessary to place two chairs over the boards to prevent the horse from stepping into them on that side. At the base of the sliding pole the flooring is also rotted away, and at this point one of the members had his leg fractured a few days ago when he slid down the pole and had his foot caught in the broken flooring.

The floor is decidedly unsafe and should be repaired without delay. The stalls are also in an unsanitary condition, owing to improper drainage facilities, and an extension and opening is badly needed in the rear of the building to enable the permanent men to perform their stable work properly.

In the basement the water runs al over the floor from the stalls and the odor arising is unbearable. The building has been settling of late, owing to the cavings in that vicinity, and unless attention is given to it immediately it is liable to collapse at any moment. There are several large cracks in the foundation walls and the cross beams are out of place in consequence.

Instead of having the proper drainage system in the cellar, the company men have had to cut a trench in the cement floor to carry off the water, but this does not wholly abate the nulsance, and at times there is several inches of water in the cellar. The building began settling a year ago, and has continued until it is decidedly unsafe at the present time. The woodwork on the main floor is separating, the windows are stuck fast and the sliding pole is practically useless, as the men are compelled to run the length of the building twice in order to reach the horses' heads in responding to a night alarm. It should be placed in the front of the building, where it can be reached from the sleeping apartments.

In the reading room the plaster on the walls is cracked in several places and the window casings are separated from their proper places, and the same condition of affairs exists in the bunk room and parlor. When the building was erected only one horse was used, but now there are four horses stalled there and more room is needed in con-

JAKE" STAEHEBER CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

He Is Accused of Stealing P. J. Mann's Pocketbook-Marriage of George Rottenkolber and Miss Elizabeth Koch Celebrated in St. Mary's Church-Miss Mame Coyne Entertained Last Night-Louis Zimmer and James Boyle Injured. Other News Notes.

"Jake" Stahlaber, erstwhile bootblack, fisheran and hunter, a wellknown character of South Scranton, is, figuratively speaking, "up against it." Some time ago, while crossing the Meadows, near Moltke avenue, he claims he was held up and robbed of $3. But that adventure is thrown in the shade by the one that happened him yesterday, and it will be his chief topic of discussion for many moons to

On Monday morning, Jake, with his usual alertness, wandered aimlessly into W. F. Foley's saloon on Cedar avenue, with the intention of doing some odd jobs and probably picking up quarter. He picked up considerably more, it is alleged, when he saw lying on the floor P. J. Maun's pocketbook. .Maun is Foley's bartender, and his pocketbook had fallen out of his coat pocket.

Jake didn't wait to get pald, as was his usual custom, so the story goes, and said he had business over town. Sometime after, Maun, upon looking for his purse, found that it was gone, and knew immediately why Jake had business over town. But what of Jake during this period? Well, Jake was having a gloriously good time, as the pocketbook contained $22. He felt like a coal baron, and spent money like a prince. Eight o'clock saw him on Elm street in a rather topsy-turvy condi-

Officer Gscheidle took the erstwhile fisherman, bootblack, etc., in charge, and he spent Tuesday night in the Alder street police station. Upon examination yesterday morning he had but $1.35 left of the $22, which it is claimed he took. Alderman Donovan tried the case, and Jake is now languishing in the county jail and wishing he was fishing at Mountain lake.

Koch-Rottenkolber.

One of the most fashionable and argest weddings of the year took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, in St. Mary's church, River street, when Miss Elizabeth Koch, niece of Victor Koch, of the Scranton house, was united in marriage to George Rottenkolber, of the Lackawanna Brewing company.

The bridal procession entered the hurch to the swelling tones of Menlelssohn's wedding march, played by Prof. Akermann, and was met at the altar by the groom, the bride being given away by her uncle. She was attended by Miss Emma Luxemburger, Miss Regina Koch and Lillian Koch. all dressed in white silk. The groomsmen were Julius Koch, Sidney Bliss and George Koch. us, I'm sure. Well, it began to be a point of honor with both of us. I would try to dash out so quickly that the man couldn't possibly heat me, but he must have had gimlet eyes and rubber legs, because he could always see me before I came in sight and could spring to the carriage door in half a second

"But one day-how it happened never could tell-I reached the carriage door first, and swung it open, panting but triumphant. The man was right after me-almost on top of me-and a look of keenest chagrin came over his face as his eyes met my triumphant glance. But his confusion was only momentary, for in ar instant he recovered himself and, with a look of serenest impudence, saluted and then held out his hand for a tip,
