"The Honest Blacksmith." Bob Fitzsimmons, actor, puglist and black-smith, was the star of the company which last night presented "The Honest Blacksmith" at the Lyceum. It is his business in the playto thwart villainy, right wrongs, succor the dis seed and give good advice and he does it all and more. As an actor Hob is a few chips shy of the product of the Sargeant and Wheatcroft schools, but what he lacks in polish and attention to the niceties of detail which mark the finished actor, he makes up for in part by the things he does that a Wheateroft student would not attempt. In the first act Bob makes a horsehoe on the stage and puts it on the foot of a norse. In the second he does some hag pamehing that was sufficiently vigorous to tear the bag from its fastenings and send it out into the orchestra chairs to the alarm of several ladies who yelled loud and vigorousty. Then Bob did three rounds with his sparring partner, Ed Dunkhorst, known to his friends as the "human freight car." He possesses all the grace and charm of that useful article coupled with agility and playfulness of an elephant. It was joy to Bob to punch the freight car's 200 nominds of all too solid flesh about the stage. He winds up this act by throwing the villain through the window to the great satisfaction of the audience. In the third act Bab again foils the villain everal times and pulls an elevator up the shaft The villain has sought to rid himself of the good young man, who loves and is loved by the seroine, by letting the elevator in which he is leaving the villain's apartments drop six stories. Some time later the elevator is needed and Bot promptlyfi converts himself into an engine and up comes the elevator. He throws the villain into it and it again drops the six stories to give the villain a taste of his own to give the villain a taste of his own medicine. It's all to no purpose for the villain is again on deck in the last act slightly the worst for wear and Bob has to foil him again. This time the villain seeks the life of the heroine man freight car," are Fitzsimmons' wife and their little son. Mrs. Fitzsimmons is a portly lady who acts with the easy naturalness characteristic of her distinguished husband. One of her lines ought to be cut out, however. It's too much to ask her to say "I'm just a bunch of nerves" and at the same time look as if she meant it. Ruth Royal was the heroine, Jessie Ralph, a soubrette, who didn't soubrette, Frank Holland was the good young man and Harry Clifton the villain.

There is no doubt of Fitzsimmons' popularity with a Scranton audience. He was given a great ovation last night when he appeared on the stage. The contrast between his reception and that accorded Jeffries when he was here was Attractive Vaudeville.

It is a difficult matter sometimes to inform cultured play-goers of the true character of an entertainment that is new, and which, to the uninitiated, seems closely allied to crude and vulgar performances. The manager of the Vaudeville Festival company, who will inaugurate the opening of a series of weekly events at the Lyceum on tomorrow afternoon and evening, calizes the difficulties attending the enterprise and which involves the satisfying of exacting people that only high-class artists and sketches

Manager Burke, however, promises that the same artistic quality of entertainments that delight the cultured play-goers of New York. Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and other noted towns, with nearly the same people, will be presented to Scrantonians at each week ly performance. He also desires to especially impress upon all, the fact, that while the title Burke's Vaudeville Festival will continue, an entire change of performances and artists will be given each week, thus adding to the attractiveness and pleasure. It is well understood that within the past two years many of the distinguished players have gone into vaudeville. sually they appear in twenty or thirty minute sketches, written especially for them and with a view of bringing out their best work.

The singers are of the best, both in voice and culture, while the dancers are drawn from those who have carned the highest favor of critical audiences. Mr. Burke says the proof of the punding lies in the taste and he, therefore, desires that the Lyceum audiences tomorrow even-ing on the occasion of his opening vaudeville performances, shall be made up of those who appreciate high-class art and clean, up-to-date and amusing interpretations.

Sapho Burlesquers. The "Sapho Burlesquers," who appear at the Gaiety theater for three days commencing next Thursday, are having an extremely difficult task in advertising their performance. THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review. New York, Nov. 20 .- It is not often that ent in the stock market attains the voltime and the price movement of that of today in the Northern Pacific stocks. Today's sales of Northern Pacific foot up 201,800 shares for the common stock and 75,000 shares for the preferred stock, a total of 277,100 shares. The common stock rose an extreme 6% and the preferred 616. Various causes doubtless served to congest the speculation in these stocks. For one reason, there was but languid interest in the general market and the eager army of operaors and speculators who are watching for available openings failed to find any until the movement in Northern Pacific developed. The volume ment in Northern Pacific developed. The volume and character of the dealings in the stocks, however, precluded the idea of a purely speculative operation. No authentic news was disclosed to explain the movement, such tumors as were heard being prompted rather by the effort to explain by guess work. It was alleged that it had been determined to retire the preferred stock at par as the company has the right to do under the terms of its issue. The favorite theory, however, was that the buying of the Northern Pacific represents a process of transfusion of interests between the different trans-continental railroad lines or more immediately the northern and northwestern routes. Such a process is on the lines of what has already been accomplished on a large scale in the castern trunk line field and is in accordance with the best accepted theory of a solution of competitive problems in railreading. That some important development will be forthcoming is indubitable. The movement in Northern Pacific had a dominant influence on the whole market and pulled it up effectually from the reactionary tendency which had overborne it during the early part of the day. This was due to the continued heavy profit taking and to the very large selling for London account, after a light buying movement for that account in the early dealings. It is believed that very large shipments of stocks, expecially of Northern Pacific, which have been sold for foreign account since the election, are now on the ocean. This would create a temporary shortage in the supply available for borrowing purposes, and would add materially to the embarrassments of a short interest. The profit taking continued to a degree even after the general tendency had become strongly upward, and some of the prominent stocks practically in the continued to several statics. and character of the dealings in the stocks, howembarrassments of a short interest. The profit taking continued to a degree even after the general tendency had become strongly upward, and some of the prominent stocks practically failed to respond at all. The movement in the iron and steel stocks was exceedingly irregular and a number of other specialties, which have had recent notable advances hung back today. As a consequence the day's net changes were exceedingly uneven and not a few declines were mixed in with the notable gains. The conspicuously strong stocks, besides the Northern Pacifics, were the Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, the Atchisons, Missouri Pacific, the Denver and Rio Grande and the Baltimore and Chio. Among the industrials and specialties the Steel and Wire stocks, Federal Steel and Tobaccos, People's Gas, Sugar, North American and International Power were conspicuous. After a sharp reaction on profit taking, the Northern Pacifics rallied, carrying the whole market with them and the closing was very animated and broyant at about the top level. Total sales, 1, 325,100 shares. Profit taking was in evidence in the bond market and prices are generally lower. Total sales, par value, $3,025,000. United States 3s coupon declined ½ and the new 4s ½. The old 4s advanced ¼ per cent, on the last call.

Carpets Greatly Reduced

WE OFFER TOMORROW and while they last some unusual values in Carpets. The assortment of patterns is somewhat broken but the remaining styles are good, containing pretty and attractive colorings. Because of the broken assortment, we offer them at unusually little prices to make room for new goods. Choose from the following, while they last:

50c the Yard:

Best grade of strictly all-wool, extra super Ingrains, yard wide, and many desirable patterns in the lot. Splendid value.

48c the Yard: A small lot of Pro-Brussels Carpets-a decidedly new weave, considered the heaviest carpet made. Great value at the price.

49c the Yard:

Good quality of Tapestry Brussels, in parlor, hall and dining room designs. Many rich and attractive designs
