STORM AT LOCK HAVEN.

Building Blown Down—An Employee Injured. By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press. Lock Haven, Pa., Nov. 21.—A violent wind storm passed over this county today. The building now under construction for the Pennsylvania Fire Brick company, at Beech Creek, was blown down, and Thomas Stahl, an employee, had his leg severely injured.

TRAM CARS RUN AWAY.

Two Men Crushed to Death in a Mine. By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press. Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 21.—A string of empty tram cars broke loose and ran away in the Sloss ore mines of the Sloss, Sheffield Steel and Iron company, near Bessemer, this morning. Nape Thompson, the superintendent, was run over and instantly killed. Charles Kelly and Andrew Hart, who were working nearby, were struck by two cars, which jumped the track and crushed them to death against the wall of the mine.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

A new evening class in cooking is just being formed. This is a good time to enter. Those who wish to learn to make Christmas candy should talk with Miss Smith about the formation of a class. Those who need systematic physical exercise should visit the gymnasium. The aim of the work is to produce strength and grace. Mothers with little children are invited to visit the Saturday morning classes, from 9 to 11 A. M. The association offers a girls' room right to fifteen a waitress course on Friday afternoons. The course will include table setting and serving. There will be no charge other than the junior membership fee.

VIADUCT TO BE ATTACKED

LUTHER KELLER PROPOSES TO ENJOIN THE CITY.

Papers in Injunction Proceedings Were Drawn Yesterday by Attorney L. H. Burns and H. M. Streeter. Validity of the Ordinance Attacked on Various Grounds, but More Particularly Because It Fails to Secure Property Holders in the Collection of Damages.

Papers were drawn yesterday by L. H. Burns and H. M. Streeter, counsel for Luther Keller, in injunction proceedings to prevent the building of the West Lackawanna avenue viaduct under the ordinance signed by Mayor Moir last Saturday.

Mr. Keller attacks the validity of the ordinance on various grounds, but more particularly protests against the proposed improvement because no provision is made to secure him and the other abutting property holders against the injury that will result to their properties.

Appended is the full text of the bill of complaint that will be filed in the court, probably today:

To the Honorable the judges of the court of Common Pleas for the county of Lackawanna, sitting in equity: Your orator, the plaintiff in the above entitled case, complains and says:

First—I am a citizen and resident of the city of Scranton and of legal age and of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, and for the appointment of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, and for the appointment of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, and for the appointment of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company.

ORDINANCE WILL BE ALLOWED TO DIE

No Further Action Will Be Taken with the Far-Famed License Tax Measure.

It is not likely that any further action will be taken on the present ordinance which would levy a license tax on the various acts of assembly governing second-class cities provide for many different features than does the act governing third-class cities.

CLAIMS COSTS ARE EXCESSIVE.

Richard H. Holgate again rises to object. This time his protest comes in the shape of an exception to the bill of costs filed by the plaintiff in the case of Harry A. Depony against Mrs. Jennie E. Depony.

DAMAGES FOR BABE'S DEATH

SUIT OF A. BOCIANSKY AGAINST THE TROLLEY COMPANY.

Alleges That His Child Was Killed Through the Negligence of the Motorman—Tragedy of North Washington Avenue Hill Recalled. A Coal Screen That No One Claims. Binding Instructions Against the Electric City Land Improvement Company—Other Court Matters.

In Judge Kelly's court yesterday was begun the suit of A. Bociansky against the Scranton Railway company, other than the $10,000 damage suits growing out of the accident on North Washington avenue hill, May 18, 1897, when the plaintiff's 3-year-old son, John, and a neighbor's 5-year-old boy, Joe Zamveda, were killed by a trolley car while coasting down the hill in a toy express wagon.

Yosburg & Dawson represent the plaintiff, and Major Everett Warren and Hon. Charles P. O'Malley, of Willard, Warren & Knapp, appeared for the company.

A number of children were playing on the street at that point about 5:30 o'clock in the evening. The Bociansky and Zamveda boys were in an express wagon and started to coast down the hill about the same time that a Green Ridge trolley car was passing the place.

The wagon went faster than the car, it appears, and when quarter way down the hill, passed it out. Suddenly, the front wheels of the little wagon struck a stone, which caused it to swerve towards the track, and the next instant one of the wheels sank into a broken place in the asphalt and overturning the wagon, threw the children directly in front of the car. They were killed by being rolled along by the pilot board.

COULD NOT STOP IN TIME. The motorman says he saw the wagon when it was abreast of the front platform of the car and that a man who was standing beside him called to him to look out that he did not run over the children. He was applying the brake when the wagon suddenly swerved in towards the track and overturned and threw the children under the fender. It was impossible for him to stop the car in time to prevent the accident.

The plaintiff claims that the motorman would have had time to stop the car if he had been attending to his business, instead of chatting with a passenger, as it is alleged, he was doing. The company's claim that the parents were guilty of contributory negligence in allowing such youthful children to be playing on the street where there is a car-track, was met by the counter charge that the parents entrusted the children to an 11-year-old daughter of the Bociansky, and that in the eyes of the law, she is a culpable care-taker.

The case of the Exeter Machine company against the Pine Hill Coal company is on trial before Judge Arebald. The plaintiff sues for $700 for the cost of a Parsons' shaking screen for the defendant's colliery at Minersville, Schuylkill county.

IT DID NOT FIT.

The screen did not fit the timbers that were made to receive it, although the timbers were put together after plans sent on by the plaintiff company. Furthermore, it did not come up to requirements and had to be supplanted by another style of screen. The screen in dispute is now lying alongside the railroad track, awaiting a claimant. The coal company will not have it and the machine company refuses to take it back.

CLAIMS COSTS ARE EXCESSIVE.

Richard H. Holgate again rises to object. This time his protest comes in the shape of an exception to the bill of costs filed by the plaintiff in the case of Harry A. Depony against Mrs. Jennie E. Depony.

BACK TO THE REFORMATORY.

Philip McManus Taken to Elmira Yesterday. An officer from the Elmira reformatory arrived in this city yesterday with requisition papers for Philip McManus, the institution some few months ago. The papers were presented to Judge Kelly, who committed McManus into the charge of the officer. Both left on the 1:55 train for the west.
