PERSONAL.

Dr. John W. Hunter, of the Lackawanna hospital resident staff, leaves for Philadelphia this morning.

Will McAllister, well known in this city, is in town looking after the interests of "The Spoons," of which organization Mr. McAllister is the manager.

Assistant City Solicitor David J. Davis, of South Hyde Park avenue, and Mayor's Clerk Harry Hutton, of North Scranton, returned yesterday from New Haven, Conn., where they witnessed the Yale-Harvard football game on Sunday.

Rev. Manley S. Hard, D. D., has been a resident of Kingston for eight or nine years. At the meeting of the board of church extension in Philadelphia last Wednesday he was directed to make his residence in or near the vicinity of Chicago. He was recently unanimously re-elected for the position of assistant corresponding secretary of the board of church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church. The board has its office in Philadelphia. His operations have now reached such proportions that the bishops deem that a representative should be located in the West, and Rev. Hard was chosen as the man.—Wilkes-Barre Record.

A KNOTTY PROBLEM.

Question as to Whether Y. M. C. A. Property Can Be Exempted.

The board of revision of taxes and appeals encountered a knotty problem yesterday, and they have been obliged to apply to City Solicitor Forsberg for relief. It appears that this year the property at the corner of North Washington avenue and Mulberry street, formerly owned by the Blair estate but now owned by the Young Men's Christian association, was assessed for $10,800.

The directors of the association appealed yesterday to the board to have this assessment stricken off, contending that the building to be erected upon the land will be used partly as a place of worship and would therefore come under the provisions of the act exempting charitable institutions and places of worship from taxation.

The members of the board were not willing to extend the property, inasmuch as they believed they had no right to do so until the building was actually erected and used as a place of worship. They accordingly referred the matter to the city solicitor for an opinion as to whether the board had any legal right to exempt the property.

MOTORMAN'S ACCIDENT.

Ernest T. Norton Fell from Roof of Car.

Ernest T. Horton, of Dettie street, North Scranton, a motorman in the employ of the Scranton Railway company, suffered a serious fall late Sunday night, and was fortunate that he escaped with several bruises and did not have any limbs broken.

Horton is a motorman on the Dunmore Suburban line, and was preparing for the last trip of the night, at 12 o'clock, when his car was to be run on the Laurel Hill line. He was standing on the roof of his car, at the corner of Lackawanna and Franklin avenues, changing his sign, when he suddenly had a fit of dizziness and fell to the pavement.

He was momentarily stunned, and when picked up by Chief Dispatcher John Hunden, was in a dazed and very badly bruised state. He was fully recovered yesterday, however, and able to attend to his duties.

DUGGAN WAS THE REFEREE.

But the Case Was so Plain It Needed No Refereeing.

Once upon a time, not many days ago, Farmer Stewart and Farmer McLane, whose holdings adjoin in that bushy neck of woods, 'twixt the Notch and Chinchilla, were each expecting to have a battle to distribute to the neighborhood. And it came to pass that each had the aforesaid delicacy with which to gladden the aforesaid neighbors, but by a singularly remarkable coincidence, the which whereof all this was coincidental was not at hand. In other words, the calves could not be found.

Both men and their households set forth to scour the bush, and after half a day's search a Stewart found a live calf and the McLane a dead one. Both laid claim to the live one, and both had arguments galore to support their claims.

It had the markings and all the other family characteristics of the Stewart cow, the Stewarts claimed, while the McLane pointed out that a man with half an eye could see the calf was an Alderney like their cow, and possessed not the faintest resemblance to the cross-Holstein of the Stewarts.

Not wishing to have any falling out about a little thing like a calf, after the two families had lived together in peace and quiet for over a decade, it was mutually agreed to leave the dispute to be settled by some one learned in the law.

Saturday last, while discussing the question of referee in the road, just in front of Stewart's barn, who happened along but Patrolman John Duggan, bent on a jaunt to Chinchilla to look at some game roosters he heard were for sale up that way.

What man could better decide the question? John Duggan, who was the law itself for all the Notch for years and years, could not be beat for settling just the sort of thing that was bothering the Stewarts and McLanes. John was called, and the case laid before him in all its details. "Well, I hope you're not puzzled over that," said John, with an air that betokened the next thing to disgust. But they were puzzled, despite John's disgust, and they would have him solve their difficulty.

"Where's the calf," inquired John.

"She's here in the barn," answered Stewart.

"When was she fed?" John asked, with an emphasis on the word "when," to indicate that the question was all-important.

"Not since the morning," was Stewart's answer.

"Good," quoth John.

Then, at the prior of the blue-coated sage, the cows were brought, headed in different directions, and the calf let loose at a point equidistant from the rival mamma cows.

The way the calf scampered over to the McLane cow, and the way the McLane cow followed her, was the way the Stewart cow didn't show a bit of interest in this truly interesting proceeding made it unnecessary for the wise John to voice his decision.

"I guess she's yours, Mac," said Stewart, pushing the brim of his hat down over his eyes and scratching the back of his head. McLane was sure it was then, if he wasn't before, and so excited was he at winning out that it was not until Officer Duggan was on his way back that he thought to ask him if he would take a jug of cider along home.

MINE WORKERS TO CONFER.

National and District Officers to Meet Here Today.

An important conference of national and district officers of the United Mine Workers will be held at the local headquarters, 215 Lackawanna avenue, today.

National Organizer Fred Diller, of Nelsonville, O.; District Presidents T. D. Nichols, John Fahey and Thomas Duffy, of Nanticoke, Hazleton and Scranton, respectively; John T. Dempsey, secretary of District No. 1; Organizer Robert Courtwright, of Scranton, and other local officers, are to attend, and all of them excepting President Fahey are on the ground. He will come today, "Mother" Jones stopped over for a time on her way to Hazleton from Duryea, where she addressed a miners' meeting Sunday.

The officers decline to say anything concerning the purpose of the meeting further than that one of the main objects is to effect a better working plan among the officers of the three districts. An organization covering the whole region by combining the three districts is a possibility.

It is understood, also, that some grievances that have come to the office of the different districts will be passed upon. A series of mass meetings throughout the whole region will also be arranged.

ELKS' LODGE OF SORROW.

Annual Event at the Lyceum, Sunday Night.

Next Sunday night the annual lodge of sorrow of the local lodge of Elks will be held at the Lyceum. An address will be delivered by John Henry Fort, of Camden, N. J., grand trustee of the Elks, and the eulogy on the dead will be pronounced by Hon. C. F. O'Malley.

The members of the lodge who died during the last year were Hon. F. W. Gunster, Richard Busted, Jr., and T. C. Snover.

FRESH FUN AND GOOD MUSIC

LIEDERKRANZ BOYS GIVE A MINSTREL PERFORMANCE.

Large and Appreciative Audience Hugely Entertained by the Wits and Vocalists of Scranton's Representative German Social and Musical Organization—Unique and Pretty Staging of the First Part. Singing Was of a High Order and the Funny Men Were Rich in Gags.

Encouraged by the success of their summer festival of mirth and music, and in response to the general solicitation of their friends, the Liederkranz boys gave another minstrel entertainment last night. As an the former occasion, Music hall, the scene of the entertaining, was crowded to the doors and the crowd was one that was far from being slow to see and that had appreciation of the unending succession of good things that were presented.

Comparisons are sometimes, if not always odious, but if one was called upon to compare the two performances he would have to say that last night's affair surpassed its predecessor in many respects and when he had that much said he would be saying a great deal, as those who saw the first performance will agree.

From the very outset the performance was a "go." The first part went with a dash that betokened confidence born of careful preparation. The soloists "let themselves loose," to express it in a pointed, if not elegant way, and in the chorus work there was a spirit and harmony that was scarcely to be expected from amateurs.

There was no end of original features and chief among them was the "get up" of the first part, the design of the stage manager, J. Nelson Teets. It is something no doubt, that will be copied extensively.

THE FIRST PART.

The scenario was a beautiful terraced garden at night, profuse in flowers and decorative lanterns. The company appeared in the latest approved summer garb of the really truly up-to-date young man, the shirt waist being the particularly prominent portion of the costume. The vocalist who appeared in white face wore shirt waists with black bow ties, dark leather belts and dark trousers. The comedians were attired in giddy pink or blue shirt waists, daintily tinted ties and white duck trousers. The first comedian, "Jake Ferber," departed from the customary staid make up of the middle man and donned a puffed-out creation of white and scarlet that would put Lew Dockstader to shame. The tambourine was played by Victor Nathan, Jacob Weiss, Victor Wenzel, Fred Weiss and Jacob Hills. Handling the bones were Billy Williams, Ed. Elsiele, George Breig, Charles Bertine, Gus Weiss and John Hovey.

The chorus was comprised of Edward Siebeck, Lewis Siebeck, Albert Davis, Frank Becker, F. Albrecht, Fred Linder, A. Keller, Frank Diehl, Gus Reppert, A. Graf, James Miller, Charles Wagner, Ernest Glor, Isidor Ross, Charles E. Wenzel, Lorenz Haberstroff, Fred Widmayer, Will Vockroth, John Elden, Louis Conrad, Fred Diehl, Louis Stipp, Fred Hays and Phil Wagner.

Lawrence's band and orchestra rendered the instrumental music, under the direction of Professor W. C. Ott, who also had direction of all the vocal music.

The vocal numbers were especially commendable, every song being brand new and exceedingly catchy.

The opening chorus was a pot pourri of the popular melodies cleverly arranged and was rendered with spirit that set a good pace for the whole entertainment. Then followed "No Cake Comes Too High For Me," "Will Emmerich," "The Song of the Lark," "The Premier," "Just a Little Bit Off the Top," "Charles Bertine," "At the Bottom of the Deep Blue Sea," "Fred Weiss," "The Luckiest Coon in Town," "Billy Williams," "She's a Queen," "Albert Davis," "The Premier," "F. L. Albert, Prince of Wales," "Gus Weiss," "Let By-Gones Be By-Gones," "Louis Conrad," "The Old Church Door," "Charles E. Wenzel," "My Susie Anna from Louisiana," "Fred Softly," "The Cake in the Sk," "Fred Weiss, Will Emmerich and company.

ENCORES NUMEROUS.

Every number was encoored and several of them had to be repeated. The first time before the audience was content to let the singers sit down. A delegation of Electric City wheelmen occupying the front seats in the parquet helped make things lively and evoked several laughs by throwing bunches of vegetables tied with gay ribbons to the performers.

Some of the jokes were better than the others, it must be said, but, without exception, they evoked loud and hearty laughter.

Billy Williams made a hit with "Why are the Electric City Wheelmen like bananas?" Because they always go in bunches."

Nate Jacobs told a funny one about Doctor Wehlan being a wonderful physician. He was called in to attend a man who swallowed a penny and he made him cough up two dollars. Fred Softly had one to the effect that he drew a hen on a piece of paper and it was so natural that when he threw it into the waste basket it laid there. Fred Emmerich provoked one of the biggest laughs of the night by explaining in true end-man style that notwithstanding the fact that the municipal building was only recently changed to city hall, it was going to be changed again at the instance of the Men's union, who deemed it more appropriate to call the place the "steal mill." Fred Weiss will decker the house by telling that they aren't going to hang man in the county jail any more—they are going to have them Schadt. Charlie Bertine told that he hadn't slept in ten days and when Jake Ferber wanted to know why he was so tired "Because I slept at night."

SPECIALTY NUMBERS.

The olio was of an exceptionally high standard for an amateur performance. Among the features were the children, the youngest musical team in the country, bar none; the Durkin brothers, boy acrobats; Jacob Hills, specialties; Will Emmerich, tramp act; John Elden, lantern swimming exhibition; Gus Weiss, comedian; J. D. Ferber, Ed. Elsiele, Fred Softly, Fred Weiss and Isidor Ross.

The performance is to be repeated in several of the nearby towns at the request of Liederkranz and other societies.

GREAT ADVANCE SALE.

Diagram for the Opera Carnival Will Open Friday Morning.

The diagram for the Opera Carnival will open Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the Lyceum. There is a great advance demand for tickets, but the $1.50 and $1 tickets are practically all sold. Only those holding tickets will be given seats on Friday, as no cash sales will be made, hence the patrons who have so generously afforded their support for the entertainment may feel assured that they will be taken care of, as no more tickets are issued than can be exchanged for the seats according to the prices named.

It has been hinted that the surprising dearth of tickets is due to the fact that some are being held back by speculators. Such is not the case. Tickets have been distributed according to the members of the Recital club and those interested in the Hahnemann hospital have requested. These have been sold to friends who are anxious to see and hear the performance. When it is realized that upwards of seventy persons are in the cast, and that each person represents a large number of friends, the urgent demand for tickets may be comprehended.

There are still plenty of tickets for the matinee and patrons are urged to take these in advance, in order to be able to secure the choice of seats on Friday. The committee is preparing a beautiful souvenir programme, charmingly decorated and tastefully arranged, in which most of the business houses of the city will be represented.

FIFTY POUNDS OF HONEY.

The Cause of the Downfall of William Morgan.

William Morgan, of 221 Railroad avenue, was yesterday held in $500 bail by Alderman Miller, on the charge of stealing fifty pounds of honey from the Reliable Preserving company, on West Lackawanna avenue, and in default was committed to the county jail. Morgan was arrested Saturday at the instance of his wife, who charged him with assault and battery.

At the hearing Mrs. Morgan insisted that her husband had come by the honey in no honest manner, and Detective John Mohr accordingly set out to discover the owner of the mass of sweetness. He learned that Morgan, who is a palmer by trade, was just recently employed on a job at the Reliable Preserving company's establishment, and that when he left the place the fifty pounds of honey were discovered missing.

Morgan was arrested by Special Officers Byers and Greenberger. When Byers attempted to serve the warrant Morgan denied his identity, and tried to evade capture by giving a fictitious name.

RECEPTION TO MEMBERS.

Enjoyable Affair Was Last Night Given at B. R. Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

A very large number of the old and new members of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association assembled in the association's rooms last night, and there the seniors accorded a hearty reception to those who had just returned from the Scranton convention, and there they spent by all in the enjoyment of a pleasant social time, and in listening to a well prepared programme.

Music was furnished by Flore's orchestra and a Mandolin solo and a splendid address was made by W. B. Fenn, secretary of the New Haven Railroad Young Men's Christian association. He spoke on the subject, "My experience as a Member." As he has been an active worker in the association since 1875, he had some experiences to relate which proved exceedingly interesting. Professor Robert Frederic gave an excellent zither solo, and refreshments were then served.

A NEWBOYS' SQUABBLE.

A Missing Purse Caused One Lad's Arrest.

Patrolman Dave Parry was last night accosted by a ten-year-old Lackawanna avenue newboy, who pointed out another newboy who had his own purse and wretchedly declared that the latter had picked his pocket of his day's earnings.

"He swiped forty cents from me," the lad remarked indignantly, and Parry, after a short conference with the other newboy, who was on duty, found it in front of J. D. Williams' store, however, and then, strange to relate, the first newboy relented and lamely said that maybe his co-worker did find it. The latter was allowed to leave the station a free boy once again.

No. 24—Martin Moffatt, principal; Nellie Richards, Mary Mahon, Nellie Keegan, Kate Walsh.
No. 25—H. L. Morgan, principal; Arthur Davis, Richard Dougherty, Mae Davis, Kate W. Brown, Carl Gress, Mary Davis.
No. 26—L. Hayden Oliver, principal; Kate H. O'Neill, William Henry Harris.
No. 27—Rosa A. Vail, principal; Mary S. O'Malley, Lucy Emma, Helen Fowler.

A further recommendation of the committee declaring that no day school teacher should be appointed as night school teacher, unless as a principal, was also adopted.

A recommendation that the schools be closed on Thursday and Friday of this week on account of Thanksgiving, met with quite a little opposition from Mr. Evans, who declared that it was the teachers who were behind the movement not to keep open on Friday and that they shouldn't expect too many holidays. Mr. Barker explained that they were not paid for the two days, so that it would make but little difference to them.

"I know what's the matter," said Mr. Golden. "Mr. Evans is sparking one of the teachers and he's afraid she'll want him to take her off some place on a trip."

This remark caused a general laugh and the gentleman from the Fifth blushed a rosy red as the motion to adopt the recommendation of the committee was put and carried.

A resolution was presented and adopted unanimously, providing for the appointment of a committee of five members, the chairman to be ex-officio a member, to prepare such legislation as may be deemed advisable, fitted to the needs of the Scranton school district when the city of Scranton shall have entered into the second class.

The committee is to be authorized to act for and in behalf of the school board in consultation and otherwise.

The teachers' pay-roll for the month of November was also passed last night.

KNOCK OUT DROPS DID IT.

Scranton Man Said to Have Died in Cumberland, Md., Jail.

A dispatch from Cumberland, Md., says: "Patrick Fitzgerald, of Scranton, Pa., who worked on the cut-off at Pinta died in jail here today. He had twenty-two spasms in a shanty-town shanty before being committed. An autopsy will be had, as it is believed it a case of knock-out drops. Three or four deaths under similar circumstances have occurred within the past two months, and Fitzgerald's tragic end increases suspicion of knock-out drops."

THE SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Interesting Exercises at Rescue Mission Last Night.

The seventh anniversary of the Rescue Mission was last night made the occasion of a pleasant entertainment at the rooms on Franklin avenue. A large number of guests were present, and a very interesting programme was carried out.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Robinson, of the Second Presbyterian church, and Rev. George A. Birch, of the Grace Reformed church, gave short addresses, and Alderman Frederick Fuller, of the sixteenth ward, also spoke. Several copies of the mission gave testimony, and Miss Edith Martin, of North Scranton, and Miss Anna Salmon sang. At the close of the exercises, ice cream and cake were served.
