GREAT JUMPING BY A MULE.

Over a Manger and Through an Opening 21 by 30 Inches in Size.

A most remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by Major B. R. Selden, the well-known street car man, and several of his employes, concerning two full-grown mules jumping through a small window in the old horse car stables in Manchester, has just come to light. The story as related by Major Selden, and sworn to by several of the most reliable men in his employ, is as follows: The blacksmith, Henry Dandridge (who has since died), was required to go to the stables daily to examine and replace all shoes that had become loose or been lost while the mules were at work. On the occasion referred to above he had purchased a new sheepskin apron, which the mules had never seen, and when Dandridge went into the stall without warning, one of them, "Bet." became alarmed at the sight of the leather and leaped through the open window to the ground outside. Major Selden says he came in about this time, and upon learning the cause of the excitement, ordered the man to go back into the stall, and when he started the mule reared up and was about to repeat the performance. He feared the mule might not be so fortunate in the second jump and told the man to come out of the stall. The "Maggie" mule, says Major Selden, jumped through a window the same size on the opposite side of the stable and as far as he could discover, can obtain. upon close examination, neither of them received the slightest scratch. He says tracks were plainly visible on the outside where the "Bet" mule landed and made an effort to turn and again face the window, she being still mother and sister, of Fairdale, last Nicholson, Nov. 27.-George Weaver, haltered to a scantling on the inside, of Scranton, spent Sunday with his Sister, Mrs. F. Supporting the principals was a company composed of a number of capable players. The staging was elaborate and artistic.

The Sponers drew two large audiences at the Academy of Music yesterday. In the afternoon he bill presented was Kate Claxton's great suc cess, "The Two Orphans," The piece was staged and costumed in a handsome manner, Miss Edua May Spooner appearing in Henriette and Miss Cecil Spooner as Louise. Last evening "Uncle Daniel, or "The Messenger from Jarvis Section," was produced in which Miss Cecil Sponer made a tremendous hit in the role of Clip, a young harum scarum in which parts Miss Spooner has no equal. The specialties introduced between the acts are exceedingly elever. Claude Thardo, monologist, sings 'coon songs which are new and up to date. Cecil Spooner's spectacular and character dances are certainly fine. Miss, Jessie McAlister sings very sweetly, descriptive ballads McAlister sings very sweetly, descriptive ballads and the optigraph, a new moving picture ma-chine, gives perfect views of places of interest also comic scenes taken from life. This after-noon a grand double bill will be presented. The curtain raiser, "Between Two Forts," will be succeeded by a beautiful two-act play en-titled "In 1778," arranged and camatized by Miss Edna May Spooner. This evening "A Wife", Peril" will be produced.

The "Oriental Burlesquers," who today close three-day engagement at the Galety, were again greeted with a large audience last evening as any audience who ever attended a performance at this popular theater. Some little excitement was caused during the evening by the appearance uon the scene of a squad of sol-diers in full uniform, who were in search of a deserter, and who proceeded to closely scan the countenance of every occupant of the theater before they were satisfied the said deserter was

There is a telephone incident in the second act of "The Night of the Fourth," which is one of the funiest things in the successful farce. The young lawyer has a live wire running from the telephone down under the floor to one of the chairs in his office, so that when anyone sits on the chair the belt rings. He bowed his head attentively. "It is soon told. It is about a dear girl friend of mine with whom I was at school in the North. She was the daughter of wealthy parents. Their generosity to her was only equaled by their love for her. She gave them up, her home, her fortune, her iuxurious mode of life, all for the sake of a handsome and impecunious young fellow who had won her affections. Indirectly, and acting through a mere sense of duty, the girl's father procured this man a comparatively lucrative position. For a while he was de-
