THANKSGIVING ANECDOTES AND OTHER NOTES OF INTEREST FROM WHITNEY.

Hunting Yarns from Pike County. Annual Ball of the Erie Hose Company—Railroad Matters Tensely Discussed—Fed a Horse with a Spoon—A Lady with Two Lovers.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Susquehanna, Nov. 29.—There comes a day near the last of November, when dinner at a well-spread table may feel inclined to repeat the remarks of a new recruit at West Point, some time since. The young man was a rough diamond, a recent importation from the rural districts, and when the carving was ready he spoke as follows: "And now, Mr. C., what part will you take?"

The answer was at once forthcoming: "Imparticular," said Mr. C., "Big piece anywhere!"

SOME SHORT ONES. The Erie shops, the schools and the banks are closed today.

The funeral of the late William P. Munson, who died at the age of 75, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Christ Episcopal church.

In Pike county, a few days since, Frank Boyden, of the Oakland side, aged eighteen, killed a magnificent buck, which weighed 275 pounds.

Some men speak from the heart, and some from experience, but the most listeners lately have surrounded the man who speaks from the stump.

In the fall, the honest farmer kills the "grainers" in the moon; in the fall the rural sportsman hunts the wild, beautiful deer.

It is the person who talks most during the performance that always attracts the loudest and longest just at the wrong time.

The human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something, and those who sit still and yell: "Why in the deuce wasn't it done the other way?"

The faith cure people appear to be dying here and there. It is fully time to end this species of killing, but how are fools to be protected?

If we may judge from some of the recent lawsuits being instituted, a man does not know who his wife is until he dies.

A number of vicinity newspapers "note" with thanksgiving the stable condition of the business in springtime, more especially, a majority of the people note with sorrow the "stable condition" of Susquehanna's chief thoroughfare.

RAILROAD CINDERETTES. Our own Chauncey Depey denies the current report that the New York Central people are to gobble up the Erie.

The Erie is practicing with telephones in telegraph offices, preparatory, it is said, to placing the former into signal towers.

Since the death of the late lamented Scott Harris, of Owego, G. M. Wrighter, also of Owego, is the only survivor of the galaxy of old-time Erie passenger conductors.

The Erie is a good freight traffic on the Jefferson division of the Erie. The Delaware and Hudson road, which formerly came over the division, now goes over the Carbonate and Honolule branch of the Delaware and Hudson road.

MATTERS IN GENERAL. A Susquehanna dentist has a practice of $2,000 a year, and yet he is often seen looking down in the mouth.

A Scranton lawyer has decided that a man is in duty bound to tell his wife where he spends his evening when he is away from home. He generally does, but nine times out of ten he hasn't been there. And when he tells her the truth, she thinks he has been somewhere else anyhow.

The little blue bird that perched itself on the tree tops a few days ago has abated, and the cold-hearted felle will soon have his position.

A Binghamton case, who has served twenty-five years in that position and always showed a square balance, was the other day presented with a ring worth $5 by the bank director. This is another living proof that honesty is certain to be rewarded in the end.

The church fair is never referred to as a "fair exchange."

For a week the Thanksgiving turkey has looked over his shoulder every time he stooped to pick up a kernel of corn.

A man in Monroe used a coffin handle for a door knob, and there is not a negro in the town who would open that door, even though the house was full of chickens.

"Nothing is ever really lost, or can be lost," sings Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Ella appears never to have played poker.

FED A HORSE WITH A SPOON. A vicinity veterinary surgeon recently performed an operation on a horse that is said to be the first of its kind. The animal's lower jaw had been broken by a kick, and in order to properly reduce the fracture it was necessary to encase the jaw in plaster copper, in which position it will have to remain for about four weeks, during which time the animal will be fed with a spoon, on gruel, milk and eggs. The beast's recovery is anticipated.

STORY OF TWO LOVERS. About forty years ago there was a young lady in Anarat who had two sweethearts, and, not being able to decide between the two, she set out two willow bushes in the yard, naming one for each of her two lovers, believing in the old adage, "If he loves me the bush will grow," and according to her faith, so it happened with her.

One of the bushes soon withered, but the other flourished, and in the course of time she married the man for whom the growing bush was named. They raised a large family, who are well known throughout the state, and the locust bush also grew and multiplied. Time has laid bare the spot upon which the old adage stood, and nothing remains to mark the site of this once happy home but the complete hedge about fifty yards in length.

The lady is a Methodist minister's young niece. Although she will be greatly missed, her friends wish her success in life.

Clinton Lee, of Binghamton, is spending a few days at home.

Messrs. Russell Mumford and Charles Clark, of Pleasant Mount, were in town Tuesday, looking for their interest in the Northeastern Telephone company.

Miss Edith Sherwood has returned to her home in Parkersburg, W. Va. About five years ago her mother died and she came to live with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Woodmansee. For the last year she has lived with her uncle, John Woodmansee. She was of a pleasing disposition and had a host of friends among the people of this city. Although she will be greatly missed, her friends wish her success in life.

ter, Miss Jennie Moon, to George Leonard, at New Milford.

Those from Hartford who recently called on friends here were Mrs. J. C. Tanner, Miss Clara Tiffany, Miss May Sweet and Mrs. F. E. Carpenter.

An entertainment will be given in the Methodist Episcopal church at this place next Wednesday evening, December 5, for the benefit of the Sunday school orchestra. A fine programme is being prepared, including music, singing and recitations. Miss Sadie Sager, of Hopboston, and others will assist. Admission, ten cents; family tickets, twenty-five cents.

On Tuesday morning, as Mr. W. Farley jumped from a moving train at his home, he broke his leg above the knee. Dr. Hooven, of Hartford, was called to attend him.

A few minutes after the second half began, Penn secured the #numbered on her own fifteen-yard line on downs, and without losing the ball carried it, with the assistance of the guards' back, ninety-five yards for the third touchdown. In this march down the field, every man was asked to carry the ball, with the exception of the center and quarterback.

After Cross had made an unsuccessful try for field goal from Penn's forty-yard line, the Quakers again set their guards' back machine to working and slowly pushed Cornell's back yard by yard. Captain Starbuck's men on this time, however, stubbornly resisted the Quakers' onslaughts, but it availed them nothing as it only made the Quakers work a little harder for their next touchdown.

Penn's last touchdown, as already stated, was made by Potter on a fifty-five yard run.

The Audience. It is conservatively estimated that fully 25,000 persons saw the two teams play their last game of the season. The foot ball game between Penn and Cornell is the feature of Thanksgiving day in this city, and a big holiday crowd is always in attendance. It was a very enthusiastic throng, considering the slow game, and cheered every good play, notwithstanding which Cornell made it. A band of about 500 Cornell students who sang their hearts out in this morning, made things lively on the north stand by keeping up an almost constant yell for the white and carnation. The red and blue had three well-organized cheering sections and they made a great volume of noise when they cheered together. The Penn students signalled the victory by a great snake dance on the field, which was led by the university band. When they had tired, the Cornell men formed in line, ten abreast, and paraded over the sidelines, cheering for both Penn and their own alma mater. Following is the line-up:
