ful collection of dolls in one room be fore. A word about a few of the most striking. 1. The lady from the executive mansion at Albany. In the rightand booth as you enter the carnival is the famous Roosevelt doll, a little French lady in blue, with the card attached bearing this inscription: "Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Executive Mansion." 2. The large doll in the window fressed in blue sijk, who bears the distinction of being the largest doll in the room, is as tall as a four-year-old child, and is valued at $50. 3. The carnival 'Raby" seems to be the center of #ttraction, "Almost real," "Seems like holding a real baby," "All it lacks is the ability to talk," "You are the dearest baby here," and thus the talk coninues down at the last booth. 4. The 'swellest" doll entered up to this date is a large French doll, gowned in plake organdie over silk. The beautiful dress with its ruffles, tucking, etc., appeals to the feminine heart, but the dainty lingerie causes smothered exclamations of delight from all visitors. Her companion dolly, in blue, seems almost like a sister, so near allke are they. And we might keen describing dolls for the remainder of the week. However, the carnival is open to the public and "see-ing is better than reading." Visit the carnival, 127 South Main avenue, and
