AMONG THE FIRE LADDIES

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED BY NAY AUGS LAST NIGHT.

Those Who Were Chosen to Guide the Company's Destinies for the Coming Year-Much Interest Being Manifested in the "Firemen's Exempt Bill" Which Is to Be Introduced in the Legislature Soon. Proposed Reduction of Firemen's Relief Benefits.

The members of the Nay Aug Hose company met in the assembly room on the third floor of their handsome hose house last night and elected the following officers for the coming year; President, Isadore Goodman; vice president, Eugene L. Moir: treasurer, F. W. Zizelmann; secretary. Theodore Zizelmann; trustee for five years, Frank B. Reese; foreman, J. W. Moir; trustee for five years, first assistant foreman, Charles Reihl; second assitant foreman, Joseph Foster; pipeman, Henry Braun. At the conclusion of the election there was a general jollification with limburger cheese and liquid refreshments on the side. The officers elected will take office on January 1. The report for the year read by the secretary at the meeting showed that eighty-seven fires had been attended during the past year by the company with an average attendance of seventeen men at each, This last is a most remarkable record, very few companies mustering more than five or six men at ablaze.

Considerable interest is being manifested in this city in what is known as the "Firemen's exempt bill," which is to be introduced during the coming sesion of the legislature and which is backed by the 60,000 volunteer firemen of the state. The local Firemen's Relief association has appointed a committee to wait upon the five local legislators with the view of securing their support for the measure. This measure is intended principally to retain for the use of the volunteer firemen the tax on foreign fire insurance companies which now comes to them under the provisions of the Clarency law. This would, of course, only apply to those in which a change is made from a volunteer to a paid department, as at present proposed in

The idea is to permit the organization in such cities of associations to be known as "Firemen's Exempt Associations," to consist of all voluntees firemen who have served a certain number of years. The money now going to firemen's relief associations in these cities it is proposed to have go to these associations to be used in paying sick benefits. The bill is now being drafted under the direction of a committee appointed at the last state dremen's convention.

There are several members of the Firemen's Relief association who are going to make an effort in the near future to have the present beneft rate of $2 per day cut down. This is said to be the highest paid by any similar association in the state, the majority having benefits of only $5 a week.

There are two reasons which are advanced by those who favor a reduction of the benefits. The first one is that it is an incentive to members to be "laid up" just as long as they posbly can after being injured at a fire. There are very few physicians who wouldn't strain a point or two in signag a certificate for a regular patient, it is argued.

The other reason advanced is that one big fire with a falling wall, explosion or some other catastrophe resulting in the injury of fifteen or twenty men would completely wipe the fund for that year out of existence after the penetits would have been all paid. A uniform rate of $8 a week would seem to be the figure agreeable to those favoring the reduction.

Select Councilman Chittenden is hopeful that when common council re-ormnizes next Thursday night, which it will if the special election is held on Tuesday, that his fire department reorganization ordinance, which passed select, will have a fighting chance of getting through that braffeh. Several of the members who recently passed in their checks were most vigorously and violently opposed to the measure, and with these out and eight new men in, he thinks his hopes may be realized. The mayor will sign the ordinance, it is understood, if it ever

The annual election of officers of the Century Hose company will be held on December 28.

HE WILL BE RENOMINATED.

No Opposition to President Lansing, of the Board of Trade.

At next Monday night's meeting of the board of trade officers will nominated for the coming year and there is no doubt but that the present president, James A. Lansing, will be the only nominee. There is no opposing candidate nor is there any likelihood of there being one. The retention in office of the present secretary will be recommended by the manufacturprs' committee and will meet with no opposition. The committee on membership, which is hustling to get three hundred members before the January meeting, will have an interesting report to make of the success they are meeting with. The petition now being circulated among the members of the West Scranton board of trade requesting them to join the central board will be presented. In addition to these questions the second class vify question will be thoroughly discussed.

RIDICULOUS IDEA OF ANOTHER STRIKE

Organizer Benjamin James, of the United Mine Workers Referred to the Matter in a Speech in West Scranton.

National Committeeman Eenjamin James, of the United Mine Workers of America, addressed a mass meeting of miners in St. David's hall, West Scranton, last evening, and spoke in a very hopeful vein of the existing conditions in the anthracite regions. He advocated the perfecting of the local organizations and stimulated the men with the thought that the eight-hour work day for them was not far distant. In concluding his remarks he took occasion to remark that he may not be with them much longer and urged his hearers to have implicit confidence in their leaders and to select capable men to conduct their business along business lines. In conversation with a Tribune man, Mr. James ridiculed the published statement regarding the alleged strike among the miners next April, and in his address spoke in part as follows:

"My friends, I am pleased to be among you once again and to know that you are so well organized in the Lackawanna valley. This is something I have looked forward to for several years. When I witnessed the trouble at Latimer on Sept. 10, 1897, I made a firm resolution to always do what I could for the cause of labor. It was then I started out to build up an organization that would relieve the condition of the anthracite miners and eradicate some of the wrongs they endured.

"At that time there were but 1,200 members in our organization in the Lehigh region, but today over 100,000 are in the ranks and recently we gained the grandest victory ever recorded for organized labor in America. When I first came here, less than two years ago, there was not an organization of mine workers in existence. The men had lost confidence in organized labor, they believed they could not get anybody to serve the interests of the masses. "But today, I am proud to say, they have scored a grand victory, and, numerically speaking, the miners are the strongest labor organization in existence. You must remember, however, that your organization can easily go down by its own weight, if not propthe battle is entitled to honor and eredit, and it would be vain in me to say it was due entirely to the officers of your organization. I do not expect any trouble on April I, and if the operators take carof themselves they won't have any The talk about operators trouble. preparing for a strike is absurd. The probability is that they will arbitrate whatever grievances may arise instead of inviting trouble. The crafts that suffer most are the least organized and are continually striking. It we are forced into a strike again it will be because we have not built up our defence. 'I do not look for a fight because I believe the operators will be willing to continue the ten per cent. increase, and possibly later on will grant additional concessions. I believe that if our organization is thoroughly perstrikes will be a thing of the past. I belive the general public will realize that the proper way to sett'e all disputes will be by the operators and employes meeting together on the same floor and discussing questions of

The only law that has been enforced was that mine inspector should draw a salary of $3,000 a year It is time for you to want up force the laws, and if they are no force the laws, and if they are no good, have them repealed. I have worked in places where if the law was enforced the conditions would be better than a ten per cent. advance." Samuel Morgan presided at the meeting and made a few remarks, He suggested the need of a board of miners to regulate the output of anthracite coal. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mr. James for his encouraging words.

LIQUOR MEN DID NOT MEET.

Will Get Together Monday to Consider the Transition Question. The committee having in hand the matter of planning a campaign for the Retall Liquor Dealers' Protective association against the entrance of Scranton into the second class was not ready to report yesterday, and the meeting that was to have been held in Durr's hall in the afternoon was in consequence postponed until Monday afternoon.

The association is considering the advisability of sending a committee to the board of trade meeting Monday night to air the liquor men's views on the transition question.

CARBONDALE.

Shipping Agent Smith Remembered by His Friends on His Wedding Anniversary.

Twenty-nine years ago Thursday, on Dec. 13, 1871, Frank L. Smith and Miss Catherine Graves, of this city, were married. Mr. Smith is now shipping agent for the Ontario and Western railway in this city and lives in a beautiful home at 31 Carfield avenue. It was his intention to not celebrate this anniversary of his wedding except in a very quiet way with his family. So yesterday he had his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, of Scranton, come up and spend the day.

·But he had forgotten some of his friends. They had planned to help Mr. and Mrs. Smith enjoy this anniversary and so, without letting the gentleman of the house know aught of their intentions, they repaired to his residence in a body, all of them being associates of his on the Ontario and Western Railroad, and they came all the way from Scranton and stations along the route between that city and Carbondale.

Mr. Smith was certainly nonplussed when he saw a formidable delegation of more than a score of coal and rail way men come marching into his house and taking possession of his parlors. But his astonishment changed to dismay and then to happiness as he beheld a beautiful library table suddenly appear in the center of his handsomely furnished parlor and realized the object of his visitors. In a few felicitous words, Mr. P. J. Powderly, of this city, told Mr. Smith of the pleasure it gave his friends to bethe pleasure it gave his friends to bestow the gift. Mr. Smith was almost ing the Holidays. overcome by the sudden surprise, but accepted the gift with heartfelt

The gift is a beautiful oak library table, hand carved. The bottom shelf is supported on lion's claws and above it on either side rise heavy carved griffins, and the top shelf is of elaborate and beautiful workmanship. The table is about six feet long and four feet wide and finished in the highest grade of the cabinet-makers' art. It was the gift of the coal inspectors and weighmasters of the Ontario and Western railroad.

After the presentation and acceptance of the table came another surprise. Mr. John P. Campbell, of this city, drew from some concealment a handsome silk umbrella, with handle of silver and pearl, and, advancing before Russell B. Williams, of Scranton, superintendent of the Scranton division of the Ontario and Western, proceeded to make a speech, much to that gentleman's astonishment. He said that the coal inspectors and weighmasters of the road presented Mr. Williams this token of esteem and appreciation. Mr. Williams, as soon as he could swallow his gasps. thanked the gentlemen for their beautiful gift and wished them all prosperity and many thanks. Then the Rev. Mr. Sawyer, of Trinity Episcopal church made a short congratulatory speech to Mr. and Mrs. Smith and to the coal and railway men.

Furing the evening, Miss Bridgett, of this city, rendered a plane solo Mr. Watkins, of Peckville, sang severela selections: Mr. Gliroy, of Archbald, played a violin solo, and there several selection on the phonograph by Mr. Smith and W. J. Lewis, of Providence. During the evening a luncheon of fried eysters, devilled strongest locals in the city. olives, potato salad, sandwiches, coffee and cream, was served. Perfectos enjoyed themselves imemnselv.

Among those present were: Superin tendent Williams, of Scranton; J. P. Campbell Thomas Horn, Jones J. Jones, John Connell, Thomas Connell, P. H. Murrin, Morris and William Clifford and P. J.
