A DISASTROUS FIRE.

The Grocery of D. W. Humphrey on Salem Avenue Wrecked.

At 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm of fire was sounded from Box 21, at the corner of Salem avenue and Main street. The firemen quickly responded, and found a dense volume of smoke coming from the cellar under the grocery store of D. W. Humphrey, at 55 Salem avenue. Before the fire could be subdued a great volume of water was turned into the cellar and store, completely ruining the large stock of groceries, and the combined loss by flame and flood is estimated at from $2,000 to $3,500.

At about 1:15 Mr. Humphrey started for his home at 108 Salem avenue, leaving the store in charge of two of his clerks, Elmer Brokenshire and Fred Van Gorder. Mr. Humphrey's daughter, Miss Grace, was also in the store, in the office. She is the bookkeeper and cashier. Mr. Brokenshire started in to turn up the windows for the holidays. He had just begun and Mr. Van Gorder and he were discussing the style of trimming, Manager Byrne, of the opera house, and City Treasurer Connor were in the store and the four were in an animated conversation when Mr. Brokenshire looked toward the lack of the store and saw smoke curling up between the boards of the floor.

He jumped out of the window and said: "The store's on fire!" He ran for a water pail and shouted to Manager Byrne to turn in an alarm. Mr. Van Gorder with water he raised the cellar door and was greeted by a dense volume of smoke of a heavy, pungent odor. He at once saw the futility of attempting to descend and ran back to the cashier's office to tell Miss Humphrey of her peril and to save the books and lock the safe. He succeeded in getting her to a place of safety and had just time to grab the books and swing the safe door shut and get out before the smoke made it perilous to remain longer.

Then the firemen arrived. They found smoke pouring from the cellar, the roof, the chimneys over the doors and from a multitude of other places. They attacked the cellar first, but had to turn their attention early to the upper portion of the building, which seemed in imminent danger of combustion. For half an hour they worked with great zeal and then the fire was drowned out.

An element which tried the courage of the firemen severely was the knowledge that in the cellar and not far from the fire was a tank of kerosene oil, containing four barrels of the fluid. Despite this the volunteers worked with a will and were helped by a number of bystanders in shifting their hose and directing its nozzle where it would do the most good.

When it was declared safe to go in the store a number of curious persons followed the clerks and firemen inside. It was a most deplorable looking place. The fire had only scorched the walls on the main floor, but the energy of the water had knocked everything movable askew, tore the labels off the canned goods, and the floor was covered with a litter of crackers, nuts, apples, and many other parts of the stock. Mr. Humphrey looked on and sadly observed: "Well, this is a dandy-looking store now." A small square register in the center of the floor was taken up to sweep the water into the cellar and the front door was opened. A number of persons walked in and were cautioned to look out for the hole. Mr. Fred Lieberman, of the Carbondale Telephone company, came in behind the rest of the crowd, and did not hear the warning. He promptly put his right foot in the hole and but for the presence of bystanders could probably have been seriously hurt. As it was, he was grabbed and saved from falling. His leg above his ankle was badly scraped, however.

Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Humphrey's widowed mother, lived upstairs over the store. She did not suffer a bit of loss, as neither the fire nor water penetrated her apartments. Back of her home, however, Mr. Humphrey used the second floor as a storeroom for flour, tea and other goods in bulk, and some of these were soaked.

Mr. Humphrey did not sit around and bewail his loss, as many another man would have done. Although the fire had spoiled his trade in the busiest week of the year, he took matters philosophically and in half an hour after he saw his stock of goods was ruined beyond redemption, he had hired another store and was busy ordering a brand new stock from a local wholesale grocery house. Although it was necessary for him and his clerks to work hard all night, he proposes to be open and ready for business this morning. This commendable enterprise was to be expected of Mr. Humphrey, as he is one of the greatest "hustlers" in the city. His new location will be at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Main street, in the old Arnold store. He will be ready to receive all his customers and fill all orders this morning.

The groceryman had just stocked up with a full line of goods, when the store was packed from cellar to roof with a large extra stock. He estimates his loss at about $2,000 to $3,500, partly covered by insurance.

The store cat was found by the firemen in a dainty condition, overtopped by smoke. A merciful hand put it out of its agony.

MANY MOURNERS.

Two Funerals Held Yesterday in This City.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine White, who died early on Monday morning at her home on upper Chestnut street, was held yesterday morning at the Church of St. Rose de Lima. The funeral procession was one of the largest that has been seen in this city for a long time. A large number of her former friends were present. The Rev. George Dixon conducted the services and delivered a touching eulogy of the departed.

The pall bearers were all grandchildren of Mrs. White. They were:

NEW PLANT FOR HIGH SCHOOL.

A Contract Awarded to Eugene H. Dowe to Replace Inadequate Heating Apparatus.

The school board has awarded a contract to Eugene H. Dowe, of this city, to replace the boilers now in use in the central school building with one of another kind. The present boilers have proven woefully inadequate, and on cold days it has been essential to the well being of pupils and teachers to close the school. The school board concluded that this sort of thing had gone far enough. About a month ago, their attorney, Henry Butler, was instructed to notify the contractors who had put the heating plant in, that they must complete their contract, and have it come up to the architect's specifications or they would make the necessary repairs themselves and take it out of the contract price.

A MAMMOTH CHURCH ORGAN.

The New Organ for Trinity Episcopal Church Ready to Be Set Up.

The new organ for Trinity Episcopal church was unloaded yesterday afternoon and this morning work will be begun to get it in position and ready for the opening of the new edifice, which is being erected by the firm of George W. Hutchings & Co., of Boston. The new instrument is a two-manual, tubular-pneumatic organ. Its cost is $4,400, and it is the finest and largest church organ in Northeastern Pennsylvania, with the possible exception of the one in the Elm Park church in Scranton. Mr. Charles A. Ryder, the builders' representative, arrived from New York yesterday afternoon and will commence work on setting it up at once. He is accompanied by two expert organ builders. It will take four weeks to get the multiplicity of parts together and in working order.

The Trinity organ is described as a two-manual, tubular-pneumatic one. The wind chests are of the Hutchings patent, and the repetition for two manuals is instantaneous. It is absolutely quiet and the organ is to be blown by a Ross water engine. The action, instead of being on tracks, as in most organs, is tubular pneumatic, and all the valves in it are opened by automatic pressure, which, in turn, are operated by a column of air forced through lead tubes. There is in the neighborhood of nearly a ton of dead tubing used.

It is easily the largest church organ in town, weighing about seven tons. The action of the organ runs from the organ chamber, in the southern side of the chancel, down a square pillar in the chancel, under the flooring and to the northern side, making the length of each piece of lead tubing about seventy feet. The front part of the instrument will be painted in plain gold. It has all the very latest mechanical appliances in the way of couplers and combinations.

It was the same firm of organ builders that built the handsome organ in George Vanderbill's church at Elmwood. A description of the organ, its couplers, combinations and pedals, follows.

- Compass of manuals from C to C, 61 notes.
- Compass of pedals from C to F, 30 notes.
- GRAND ORGAN.
 - Eight-foot open diapason.

Lost Part of His Ear.

James Weidner, a driver for John Booth, was waiting in front of the shop with a team on Tuesday afternoon when his horse became scared at some object and started to run. He was unable to gain control of the horse and was speedily spilled into heap of scrap iron, his head coming in contact with the iron, the result being the tearing off a part of his right ear. The team was stopped before doing any damage to themselves. Dr. Niles attended the injured man and took several stitches in the remainder of the torn organ.

The Theatre Dark.

Nothing will be doing at the Grand Opera House for the rest of the week. The next production will be "The Woman in Black," to be given by the Jack Hoeller Stock company. This play is from the pen of H. Grattan Donnelly, whose works have been performed in this city a number of times. Besides the move play, the stock company will fill out the week, beginning Monday next, with an extensive repertoire, giving a matinee Christmas Day.

Union Beer Now.

The Carbondale branch of the Central Pennsylvania Brewing company was among the locals that signed the union scale submitted by the Breweries union. Manager Krantz has now complied with all the requirements of the scale, and no more will the union men of the city boycott the product of the South Church street brewery.

Another Fair.

The ladies of the First Congregational church will open a bazaar this evening at the Young Men's union, downstairs in the church. Fancy articles of all descriptions, Christmas knick-knacks, and other holiday goods will be on sale. Refreshments will be served. The fair will continue tomorrow and Saturday.

A JOKE ON THE MINISTER.

But It Was of the Kind That He Finally Appreciated.

From the Oxford (Mich.) Leader.

A good story is told on the Rev. Mr. Hageman. At the annual meeting of the Congregational church the question of airing a preacher comes up. At the last one, when the question came up, Hageman was rather anxious. The chairman, a good old deacon, arose, saying:

"All those in favor of retaining Elder Hageman for another year—at the same salary—will please rise."

Not one rose, and Hageman felt about as mean as mortal man could feel. But the chairman rose again, putting this question:

"All those in favor of keeping the Rev. Mr. Hageman at an increase of salary will please rise."

Every one rose. When it dawned upon the good old elder that they had been only joking with him, the scowl on his face broke into a broad grin—as an icicle breaks away in sparkling water before the beneficent rays of a warm sun. Some of his best friends had planned the scheme, which worked to perfection.

NOT FAR AWAY.

Why the Roar of the Cataract Could Not Be Heard.

From the Youth's Companion.

Tourists who go to see Bolton Abbey in England usually push on to Posforth Gill waterfall, which is nearby. On one occasion an old guide accompanied a party of very garrulous ladies and a solitary gentleman to the head of the gorge where the water comes down. The gentleman became somewhat tired after awhile, possibly from sight-seeing, and remarked:

"My good fellow, how much farther is it yet to the fall?"

"Just a minute or two, sir," the guide answered. "As soon as the ladies stop talking you will hear the roar."
