MUST FILL UP DITCHES.
Ultimatum Served on Contractor
Coons by City Engineer.
The residents of South Scranton have been greatly annoyed of late by the open ditches of the Seventeenth district sewer, now being constructed by A. H. Coons. The city engineer refused to give him any grade some two or three weeks ago on account of the approach of winter, but he has since, though repeatedly notified, failed to fill in the trenches.

There are two of these, one 150 feet long on Locust street, below Cedar avenue, and another on Pittston avenue, between Maple and Beech streets. The walks are filled with the excavated dirt. The city engineer yesterday afternoon sent a final ultimatum to Mr. Coons, informing him that if he didn't fill the ditches at once, the city would do the work and take the money out of the contract.

M'DONNELL INQUEST.

Jury Unable to Decide the Manner in Which the Woman Met Death.

The coroner's jury empaneled to inquire into the death of Mrs. Celia McDonnell, of Dunmore, whose body was found behind the Speedway hotel last Sunday morning, decided after an inquest held in Golden's undertaking rooms last night, that the woman came to her death at the hands of persons unknown to the jury.

No new facts were brought to light at the inquest which was conducted by Coroner J. J. Roberts. The only witnesses examined were Patrick McDonnell, the woman's son, and Andrew O'Hara, the young man who discovered the remains.

McDonnell's story was similar in every detail to the statement published in yesterday's Tribune, and he offered no theory as to who is responsible for the death of his mother.

O'Hara testified as to the position in which the body was found and said he was sure that the body had been placed where found by some party or parties.

TO DEDICATE THE CHURCH

BUILDING OF GREEN RIDGE BAPTISTS TO BE OPENED.

Rev. Warren G. Partridge, D. D., of Cincinnati, O., Formerly Pastor of the Penn Avenue Baptist Church, Will Deliver the Dedication Sermon Next Sunday Morning—Services Will be Continued All During the Week—Building Is a Handsome and Commodious Structure.

On Sunday the handsome new Green Ridge Baptist church will be formally dedicated. It is a commodious structure, carefully laid out, and is a credit to the enterprise and liberality of the Baptists of that part of the city. It is a notable addition to the long list of fine church buildings with which Scranton is ornamented.

The dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. Warren G. Partridge, D. D., of Cincinnati, O., formerly pastor of the Penn Avenue Baptist church.

skys' trouble. 'Bomsky' you may remember, was the little colored boy who visited this city with my late husband. He was exceedingly bright and useful, but, alas! was only human. In fact, he erred when there was no occasion for it.

"To make a long story short, while in Detroit previous to joining the Burke-Chase combination, I lost a diamond ring which I prized very highly, as it was the last present received from my husband. A reward of $100 was offered for information concerning the whereabouts of the lost ring. He had been in the habit of going to the city of Detroit, and I was sure he would be able to locate it. He was accordingly employed by two detectives to search for the ring. They finally arrested the boy in the act of trying to dispose of one of the stones at a Philadelphia pawnshop. He was taken back to Detroit for trial and acknowledged his guilt.

"A few days before this I had purchased a chameleon as a mascot. On the day of the trial the little reptile was in the habit of pecking at the ring which was in my pocket and seemed to be buoyant in spirits as he rested upon my shoulder in the court room. When the attorney for the defense, however, began to make his plea the chameleon dropped into my lap, dead!"

"Oh, no," responded the madame, quickly, "the efforts of the attorney were not as effective upon the jury. 'Bomsky' was convicted and is now serving his term in prison; the managers of the theater apologized for having graduated the Boston School of Cooking and having had much experience as a teacher. The classes for the new year are now forming. One cannot spend the small sum of money which is the price of the course in a more profitable way than by taking the course under Miss Smith's instruction. This is not demonstration work. The pupils actually cook the food and then after the lesson is over a little spread is made of the things which they have just learned to make. Owen Meredith tells us that 'civilized man cannot live without cooks.' He will live longer and more happily when he has good cooks."

MADAME HERRMAN'S MASCOT.

An Experience That Destroyed the Queen of Magic's Faith in Omens.

Madame Adelaide Herrman, graceful artistic and bewilderer in her dainty bit of color and magic known as "A Night in Japan," is none the less charming when divested of the rich laces and brocades of oriental design that win the admiration of all, especially the ladies, when she appears upon the stage. When in street costume the picture pantomimist and gorgeous queen of silent magic becomes the vivacious conversationalist, equipped with an inexhaustible fund of anecdotes that makes her one of the most interesting of women. While it scarcely seems possible, so well does Mme. Herrman perform the marvelous feats in the way of illusion, it is a fact, according to information given a Tribune reporter by the widow of the great magician, that she never attempted any of the sleight-of-hand work at which she is such an adept until after the death of her husband.

"Not superstitious," remarked the reporter, "the Madame Herrman, packed away a beautiful opal nearly as large as a robin's egg and encircled with a row of sparkling gems.

"Oh, not in the least. I have no fear of ill omens and have no superstitious use for mascots since the 'Bomskys' trouble. 'Bomsky' you may remember, was the little colored boy who visited this city with my late husband. He was exceedingly bright and useful, but, alas! was only human. In fact, he erred when there was no occasion for it.

THE SCIENCE OF COOKING.

It Is Being Taught at the Y. W. C. A. Rooms.

It is really an art to know how to cook well. It is really a science to know what foods to combine to make a wholesome and hygienic diet. It is most surely an accomplishment to prepare and serve an attractive meal.

How many housekeepers are proficient along these lines and can instruct their daughters and maids. It need be? How many maids have taken any training to fit them for the work whereby they try to earn a livelihood? The much-talked-of servant question will not be solved until there is more general and united effort among the housewives to maintain among themselves and their maids a greater appreciation of the value of scientific and practical training for the important work of the one who prepares the family meals.

As an institution for the betterment of women, the Young Women's Christian association is offering the means whereby such training may be received. The department of domestic science is well equipped and the instructor, Miss Kate Carlick Smith, is of the best, being a graduate of the Boston School of Cooking and having had much experience as a teacher. The classes for the new year are now forming. One cannot spend the small sum of money which is the price of the course in a more profitable way than by taking the course under Miss Smith's instruction. This is not demonstration work. The pupils actually cook the food and then after the lesson is over a little spread is made of the things which they have just learned to make. HE STOLE $15 AND A TEAM OF HORSES IN HONESDALE, BUT WAS CAPTURED.

A smooth-tongued and well-dressed man called at the livery stable of Murray & Richards in Honesdale on Wednesday morning and hired a team of horses and a buggy. Nothing but the best would suit him and he was given an outfit valued at $500.

He gave a check for $25, drawn on an Ohio bank and signed W. D. Smith, in payment, and the livery people gave him $15 in change. He was to have returned the horses and wagon on Wednesday night, but failed to do so. The liverymen communicated by telegraph with the Ohio bank officials and learned that no such person had an account with them.

The local police authorities were notified and yesterday afternoon, shortly before 5 o'clock, Mr. Smith and his stolen outfit were captured by Detective Mohr and Officer Bloch, on Penn avenue. He lived here some years ago and is known to the police.

He was lodged in the central police station and will be taken to Honesdale this morning.

WHAT IS THE DEBT OF CITY?

LAWYERS HAVE DIFFICULTY IN ANSWERING IT.

At the Hearing in Viaduct Case Before Judge J. P. Kelly a Great Many Facts and Figures Were Presented Yesterday, but the Results Were Not Satisfactory—Two Women Ask for Divorces. They Say Their Husbands Were Cruel—Longo Released from Penitentiary.

There was another all-day session yesterday of the hearing in the viaduct case before Judge J. P. Kelly in court room No. 2.

Deputy City Controller Charles Hartley was on the stand all day, and was examined and re-examined on various matters pertaining to the city's resources and liabilities, until his head ached, and all figures looked alike to him.

Attorneys I. H. Burns and H. M. Streeter are laboring to prove that the city debt is now so large that there is no margin left to pay the damages that will grow out of the construction of the viaduct, and that, therefore, the debt limit will be exceeded, which would be an illegal proceeding. City Solicitor J. C. Osburg, who represents the city, and Major Everett Warren, who appears for the Scranton Railway company, are laboring to keep the other attorneys from showing any such condition of affairs. Up to date they have had a fair measure of success.

The attorneys naturally fall to agree upon a system of bookkeeping. The amount of cash in the hands of the treasurer on December 1 is referred to as an asset of the city. "No," say Mr. Burns and Mr. Streeter, "is nothing of the kind. It's merely money in the hands of the city treasurer to pay bills contracted last April by council orders, when the annual appropriation ordinance was passed."

More than this, it is contended that some of this money in the treasurer's hands, as taxes collected, belongs to the sinking fund, being the result of the special tax levied for that very purpose. A short time before court adjourned Mr. Hartley was told to be on hand this morning prepared to say how much of the taxes collected to date belongs to the sinking fund, and how much to the general city fund.

Martin T. Lavelle, city clerk, and Joseph P. Phillips, city engineer, were also on the stand yesterday. The latter will be recalled today for the purpose of endeavoring to fix the amount of money the city owes for sewers recently constructed. This will be objected to on the ground that these sewers are provided for in the $2,300,000 issue of bonds voted by the people for the construction of sewers, and which, according to Judge Kelly's ruling earlier in the case, has nothing to do with the 2 per cent. limit up to which councils can run the indebtedness of cities of the third class.

When court adjourned, out of the mass of facts and figures it appeared that the city's debt on December 1, exclusive of the bond issue permitted by a vote of the people, was $67,417.55. This will probably be changed today.

TWO DIVORCES ASKED.

Mrs. Nellie Crofton yesterday asked for a provisional divorce from Thomas Crofton, to whom she was married February 27, 1888. They lived together until November 29 of this year, when Mrs. Crofton says she was forced to leave her husband because of his cruel treatment. She asks a divorce from bed and board.

Mrs. L. J. Phillips has a husband, Joseph Phillips, who also treats her in a cruel manner, she says, and she wants an unlimited divorce from him. They married November 24, 1897, and on October 28 last Mrs. Phillips declares she could no longer endure the brutality of her husband and left him. The papers in the case were filed yesterday.
