DISEASED KIDNEYS

Bring to the Human Family

A LONG TRAIN OF MISERIES.

Diseased Kidneys are responsible for Rheumatism, Dropsy, Bladder Troubles, Heart Failure, and Bright's Disease. In fact, Diseased Kidneys are the source of more than 80 per cent. of all the ills common to the human family.

Rheumatism

Rheumatism results from a poison in the blood known as Uric Acid. Uric Acid is simply the worn-out matter in the human body that is carried by the blood into the kidneys. It is the duty of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood. When the kidneys are diseased they cannot do their work, and the Uric Acid is distributed by the blood to all parts of the body and deposited in the joints, limbs and tissues where it causes inflammation and pain. Exposure to cold or wet weather, wrong habits, or the excessive use of alcoholic liquors causes the disease to become active and the pains to be more severe and constant. The only way to cure rheumatism is to make the kidneys do their work, thus cleansing the blood of all Uric Acid. The only way to cure the kidneys to stay cured is with are for sale by druggists generally or by mail prepaid on receipt of 50 cents.

Dropsy.

Dropsy is becoming a very common disease in these latter days and is one of the most fearful ailments to which human flesh is heir. Dropsy is simply an accumulation of water in the system out of its proper place. The water drawn from the limbs and bodies of dropsical persons only shows that the water which should have been accumulated by the kidneys and sent to the bladder was on account of disease in the kidneys permitted to flow back with the blood into the arteries. The best known symptoms of dropsy are puffiness under the eyes, bloating of the ankles or limbs or a swollen feeling which is usually brought about by excitement or over-exertion. The only way to cure dropsy is by making the kidneys do their work. The only way to cure the kidneys to stay cured is with Bright's Disease.

Bright's Disease is the final stage of kidney disease. It is due to a weak, impure condition of the blood caused by failure of the kidneys to thoroughly filter it. Poisons accumulate in the kidneys, and soon their interiors become a festering, rotten mass, giving off a most offensive and most poisonous matter. This poison gets into the blood and makes it still more virulent. Bright's Disease is insidious because it exists a long time without the knowledge of its victim. It is deceptive for it deludes even on the death bed with hopes of recovery. It is relentless for it devastates the world, causing more death and misery than war, famine and drink combined. But Bright's Disease is no longer incurable. There is one remedy that can overcome it wherever they meet. Morrow's Kid-ne-oids cure Bright's Disease by acting on the kidneys, toning them up and strengthening them and making them do their duty promptly and thoroughly.

Heart Failure

Almost daily you read of prominent men and women, (to say nothing of the thousands of people in the every-day walk of life, of which no mention is made in print,) dying from Heart Failure. The cause back of all ill-sick kidneys. When the kidneys are sick, all the other organs are affected. Dizzy spells, fainting, pains in the back, frequent severe headaches, or fainting or indistinct vision with flashes of light or floating specks are all ominous warnings of impending "heart failure." Reader your only safety is to get your kidneys right so that they can perform their duties promptly and properly. The only remedy in which you can place implicit confidence is Morrow's Kid-ne-oids. They strengthen and tone up the kidneys, enabling them to carry the blood, clear out the obstructed passages and make heart failure impossible. Morrow's Kid-ne-oids prevent heart failure by removing the cause.

Bladder Troubles.

The urinary organs are probably the most important part of the sewage system in the human body. It is their duty to carry off the poisonous matter that the kidneys separate from the blood. It is an absolute necessity that the urinary organs be kept in good condition if they are to carry off all the poisons passed them by the kidneys. Generally speaking, the kidneys cause all troubles in the urinary organs. When the kidneys get weak or diseased they cannot properly do their assigned them, and as a consequence they allow poisonous matter to back into the system and cause disease and death. By strengthening the kidneys and making them do their work promptly and thoroughly all these ills are avoided. All people who have used Morrow's Kid-ne-oids for diseases of the urinary organs are unanimous in stating that they can find no other remedy equal to them.

U. S. SENATOR DAVIS DIES FROM KIDNEY DISEASE.

Senator Davis made a prolonged and gallant fight with disease. The trouble, of which the kidney affection was the fatal outcome, first appeared about Sept. 20.

Trouble stealthily encroached. The trouble had, however, stealthily encroached upon a vital organ, and on Nov. 11 examination of the urine proved the presence of inflammation of the kidneys.

Both acute nephritis and diabetes made their appearance, and Mr. Murphy, of Chicago, was summoned. He agreed with doctor Thomas and Lanester as to the presence of these serious ailments in acute form, and while not making any public statement, he made known privately to some of Senator Davis' business associates his opinion that the case was hopeless.

To those, however, who were familiar with the symptoms of acute kidney trouble the bulletin held ominous information, the rapid respiration, fluctuating pulse, delirium and approaching coma telling the story of death's advances. —St. Paul Dispatch.

The Officer's Conscience

A Tale of the Civil War, by Clinton Ross, in the Binghamton Chronicle

WE HAD BEEN reading about in the Italian hill country when a vessel of the Bay of Genoa brought a sight of the flag—and one of our cruisers—colors of North and of South, of the great islands of the Spanish main, of the Philippines in the far China seas. So we declared, a little excited over the last four years.

For days they had been kept back from these weeks—marching the assault, as the steel-framed heights of Marescault checked the city and strength of Scotland, the other day in the Transvaal.

"This was taken from a man who says it's for you, sir." "Wait, Colonel," the general said, and then asked himself: "Where have I seen that writing?"

"The general, to whom would come all the blame or some measure of scorn, forgotten repute, to him—at his will's end—entered an officer with a sealed note.

"The sight of the flag has made me mad—I am stark mad, that's all there's to it, for I have honor and position here, I give you these words," "Right," said the general, "but the price?"

"Read on, read on, general," cried staff officer eagerly. The letter continued: "This part I tell you—I don't know why I have no consideration for your respect, no more than you for mine—yet I tell you: Having surrendered the position, I go to take the consequences as officer and gentleman—though you may deny me the last—should—well that ends my statement. What you are to do is this." The details followed.

"The general looked at the colonel, and the colonel at the general. It was the colonel who said at last: "No great risk to try. But what do you make of it?"

"The general said, 'brought the memory of old things—of—I can't think of him, even now, as having sold himself.' " "And will he do as he says—deliver himself up to them?"

"It's the old colors—and he took them—and—they're his anyway." "The man's feeling was allowed, or overlooked. Tenderly, as a mother about a babe, he wound the flag about the dead Confederate traitor—America in her emblem, encircling her heart—like Our Lady of Sorrows.

"Well," I said when the colonel had ended. "Oh," he replied, "that's all. Seems nice to see the old flag again—doesn't it? Poor Bayne!"

"The child—with the delicious candor—lives in our civility, our charity, our belief, one in the other—in Our America, mistress of our lands and our seas. And the flag lies over America's heart—the confusion of anarchy and political dishonesty—the faith in home and order and their might."

enables those who are receiving meals gratis to pass in among the paying customers without detection—something which cannot be over rated in its encouraging effects upon those whose fortune has used hardily, and who are obliged thus to ask for help.

THE EARLY TRIALS. During the first year of the Steam Kitchen's existence its manager had not learned the routine necessary for so large an establishment, and it could not even support itself. Then was started a side issue of the business which is now in a most prosperous condition and furnishes all the surplus for reserve fund and dividends, while the cooking department merely pays its own expenses, as no conjuncture of high or low prices for raw material can persuade the shareholders to charge more for the dinner, or give an inferior quality or quantity of the food provided.

THOUSANDS OF MEALS. During the year as many as 2,000 meals a day have been served either in the dining halls or to customers to take away, and the amount has never run below 1,500 meals a day for ten years, so that an average of 2,400 dinners a day cooked and served would not be an overrating of the facts. The establishment employs an immense force of servants in kitchen and dining hall, besides office assistants, cashiers, bookkeepers, heads of departments, sales people and drivers, stablemen and messengers. Those studying this matter of providing good food at reasonable cost for the inhabitants of great cities cannot fail to be interested in the work nor fail to see how superior it is, even to those in cities of far greater size and importance than the little Norwegian capital, with its 207,000 inhabitants.
