The Dudley Street Baptist church is again without a pastor, Rev. J. L. Kreamer preaching his farewell sermon there last night. Among other things he said that one of the great irawbacks to the upbuilding of the Christian religion is the man who subscribes a certain sum for church support and after two or three months decides that he will not pay any more while that preacher is there.

He said that many present would have to mend their ways if they did not wish to spend eternity with the damned in hell. He was giad to be abl to say that he spoke the truth at al times, although it might not be a pleasant task. THESE CROOKS ARE VERY PERISTENT

Family of Dr. John L. Wentz Fairly Terrorized by the Bold Prowling of Supposed Burglars.

There are some people who are pretthoroughly convinced that this town is periodically infested with crooks, and no amount of argument will change their point of view. If the recent experience of certain townscopie can be taken as a sample of and when he was eighteen had bought that may happen to any resident well blessed with this world's goods it must be confessed there is ground for the suspicion.

For instance, the family of Dr. John Wentz entertains opinions to the above effect, which are reasonably firm. For several days they have had detectives practically resident in their Years old. He was a tinner and a house on Madison avenue. Dr. Wentz was absent for a formight, and no concr did he leave home than demonstrations began to occur to indicate that suspicious personages were perfeetly aware of his movements and the habits of the family.

Men appeared at the outer making all possible pretexts with the apparent design of getting a good view of the interior. Sometimes they circumstances were not strange in themselves were it not for the fact that they frequently occurred late at night, while at other times attempts were made to forcibly en- ed in a dry-goods store while studying ter the house. Finally the family be- law. Wheeler, of Kentucky, worked isy. Funeral Wednesday at 4.30 o'clock, with came thoroughly alarmed and sought protection of the police.

It was noticed that the intruders kept tab on the movements of the officers and never apepared unless the latter had temporarily departed. What ter he entered college did chores for caused consternation in the family was that it soon became apparent that in vacation. William Alden Smith was they had knowledge of telegrams a page in the legislature. Tawney, of which were received and sent. On one occasion, for instance, a guest in the house had telegraphed to a friend in n of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, of 215 Smother town regarding the change of date for a call which he was to make, was the terror of Mrs. Wentz on the following day to have man ring the bell and ask for the gentleman to whom the telegram had been sent and leave a letter begging him for work. Of course, the gentleman was not there, and as he is lawyer, would scarcely be expected to find employment for the applicant, who evidently used his name as a pretext for getting into the house and for discovering whether any men were at

One of the suspicious characters pretended to be a bell boy from the Manhattan Hotel in New York and said that he was strauded on the way from Arkansas Hot Springs and that as he knew Dr. Wentz very well thought he might receive help from The doctor, on his return, stated scription was utterly unknown to him.

were obliged to wave the house for a short time and, knowing this, a friend of the family had been asked to remain. He came in from the rear entrance and was apparently unobserved by the crooks, for no sooner had the detectives gone than an attempt was made to enter the dining room windows. The family, exception of the friend, had retired. and he sat in the library with the light turned low. When he heard the noise made by the burglars, he made a hasty movement toward the window, which frightened them away, as they were evidently unprepared to find anyone watching. So swift were they that before he could fire after them, they had vanished and the officers on their return were unable to trace them.

By this time, Dr. Wentz's family had reached the verge of nervous prostration because of the persistence of the crooks. All sorts of motives were suggested and among them kidnapping the little children was not the least. The doctor returned on Thursday, since when there has been a cessation of hostilities on the part of the enemy. In justice to the local officers, who were detailed to act as detectives, Dr. Wentz and his family feel that they left no effort undone to catch he intruders. They were faithful and observant, and made every attempt possible to put a speedy end to the annoyance thus occasioned. The two men who were most frequently seen about the premises are described as being an elderly well-dressed man, and a young fellow wearing a slouch hat.

regarding him as wishing the company the compliments of the season, replied, "The same to you, sir." For precocity, however, the boy who was being examined in mental arithmetic in an East Lambeth school surpassed the Kennington scholar, "Supposing," asked the examiner, "there were six glasses of beer on this table, and your father drank one, how many would remain?" To this a boy replied, "None, sir," The inspector chided the pupil with the remark, "You don't know the simplest mental arithmetic." But the retort came promptly, "No.

and you don't know my father, sir." There was an element of frankness about the boy who was being que tioned on a scientific subject. It was impossible, the budding student delared, for the sun to shine at night. "But." remarked the inspector, "supposing I said I saw it?" And he was startled to hear the rejoinder, "Well, sir. I should think you were ver drunk." Natural history has, accor ing to Dr. Menamara, produced me than one unconscious wag in the ran of board school pupils. One juve was asked to name the partic place in which the ostrich laid eggs, and his questioner was sole ly informed that it was in the sc museum. There was, too, an elemen of piquancy in the answer of the boy as to the definition of a pilgrim. "A pilgrim," sald the boy, "is a man who travels from place to place." that," said the inspector; "am I a pilgrim?" The answer came, "No, sir; a ollgrim is a good man."

Unconscious humor among girls li not, said Dr. Macnamara, so marked as among boys. Yet the girl who received as a prize a book entitled "Our Feathered Friends" from the Bishop of London showed the nature and sec of her reading when she remarked to his lordship that she was not quite certain whether our feathered friends were red Indians or angels. In another instance a girl in a domestic economy class gave the following directions for sweeping a room: "Cover up the furniture with dust sheets, scatter carefully sweep the room into a dust
