AN OVERCOAT THIEF.

William Kenney Deprives an Engineer of His Garment on a Cold Night.

A man of many names and with a desire for a pillow was in the toils of the law long enough yesterday to be tried, held and taken to Scranton. It was all about an overcoat, which seems to be the proper thing to steal these days. These necessary garments have contributed to the maintenance of constables and aldermen considerably of late.

On Wednesday night William Mainwaring, night engineer in the Delaware and Hudson boiler house, in the railroad yard, went to work with his warm overcoat. He was not long in his chin and thought of the comfort it would be when he wended his way home again in the early morning. He tenderly, almost reverently, hung it up on a peg in the boiler house and went to work. About 12:45 in the morning he went outside to see if the steam was heating the cars all right. As he passed by his coat he stroked it carelessly. Five minutes later he returned. Tossing to contemplate the object of his pride he was horror struck to see that it had been taken.

He hurriedly notified Night Watchman Wills, who is a special officer, and they, with Officer Carden, discovered footprints in the snow, which led to a shanty above the Coalbrook culm dump. On approaching the shed they heard a noise within an of coal sliding down an iron chute, with a spasmodic gurgle at intervals. Mystified, but undaunted, the three hastened in, and beheld a man placidly sleeping, while a snore sounding like a steam shovel jarred the snow from the roof. The cherished overcoat was rolled up in a wad and decorated the under side of a frowsy head.

After an energetic struggle the weary one was aroused. He was rudely brought from the land of dream by the owner of the overcoat snatching it from under him at last. A search of his clothes disclosed the presence of a pocketbook which Mr. Mainwaring claimed. The erstwhile sleeper was hustled to the city tombs. Yesterday morning he was brought before Judge Main Delevan, where it was seen that if he was short of overcoats he was long on names, as he answered to the titles of William Lawler, William Bradley, William Kenney, and various other "fills." Mr. Lawler, etc., protested his abhorrence of such a deed as he was charged with and affirmed his sincere belief that some one must have put the coat under his head while he was lost in slumber and kindly transferred to his own coat the pocketbook. Somehow his story didn't make much of an impression on the alderman, who committed him to the county jail in lieu of an absence of $500 bail bonds.

TO TROT ON ICE.

The Annual Meeting at Crystal Lake to Take Place on February 8.

The annual trotting meeting on the frozen surface of Crystal Lake will take place this year a week from today. Next Friday a matinee will be held there, and some of the speedy horses from this vicinity, Scranton, New Milford and other places, are expected to skim over the ice in front of cutters in good time. Following the usual custom a half-mile course, straight-away, will be laid out and the drivers will compete for various prizes, such as blankets, gloves and other things handy for horsemen.

Ground Hog Day.

Tomorrow is the day set apart, according to all old-time legends, when the ground hog, or woodchuck, leaves his burrow to take stock of the weather. If he is unable to observe his shadow he takes his mid-winter stroll he is supposed to know that the winter is stout over and he does not go back again. But if the sun shines athwart his beam and he sees his silhouette walking beside him he knows that six weeks of cold weather are in store.

Laid at Rest.

Mrs. Margaret McDonough, who died at her home on Cottage street on Tuesday, aged ninety-one years, was buried yesterday afternoon in St. Rose cemetery. Services were held at the Church of St. Rose de Lima at 3:30 o'clock, which were attended by many friends.

Some Sleighting.

Although the snow flurries of the past four days have amounted to very little, there was enough of it on the

A PEST OF TRAMPS.

The "Wandering Willies" Seem to Like This City.

Carbondale seems to have more than its share of the genus homo just at present. For some reason the usual spring flight of these gentry northward has begun earlier than is customary, and a large number of them seem to have stuck a pin into the black circle representing Carbondale on the maps and included it in their itinerary. Pedestrians have been pestered by the requests, more or less gentle, of a nickel or a dime to be used for the purpose of staking the Vespucius in the beggars. Some of the housekeepers in various parts of the city have been annoyed in some cases frightened by the tramps appearing and asking, or demanding, food, clothing or being necessary, but he will be laid up for a month at least.

AT THE HOSPITAL.

A Number of Patients Received for Treatment—Two from Blakely.

August Cheney, a Russian miner, of Forest City, was injured yesterday afternoon by a fall of rock while at work. His most severe injury was found to be a crushed foot. He was brought to the Emergency hospital in this city, where it is said that he will probably recover without an operation being necessary, but he will be laid up for a month at least.

Mrs. Bernard McNulty, of Pike street, was operated upon for a remote trouble on Tuesday. The case was an extremely difficult one and for the past two days the patient has been very low. The operation was successful and the indications were last evening that Mrs. McNulty would recover.

The poor board of Blakely sent two patients to the hospital on Wednesday. One of them is Louis Tasseti, an Italian, who was sent on account of injuries he had received while at work in the Blue Ridge mine at Archbald, being hurt by a delayed blast. The doctors at the hospital, on examination found that he was also suffering from malignant trouble of the liver and was in a very bad state.

OBITUARY.

Edward W. House, of 2 Riverside place, died about half past 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, aged 39 years. His death was the result of a prolonged attack of rheumatism, brought on by a complication of other ailments. On Jan. 19, while at work in the Hendrick shops, he fell and badly lacerated his hip, the accident confining him in bed. Tuesday night he was attacked by a spell of rheumatism, which, with brief intervals, were continuous until he died of exhaustion.

CANDLEMAS DAY.

OLYPHANT.

The ninth anniversary of the Olyphant Conclave of Heptasoph was observed in a most enjoyable manner last evening. The social side of the order was given by the Olyphant club. The gathering included the members and their wives and friends to the number of about 250. In the early part of the evening the programme published in yesterday's Tribune was rendered in 24 wards, and the following guests repaired to the social room of the Blakely Baptist church, where tables were arranged tastefully with beautiful china-ware, silver and potted plants. The following delectable menu was served: Turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, celery, olives, pickles, cranberry sauce, scalloped oysters, potato salad, brown bread, biscuit, banquet wafers, cake, fruit, tea, coffee, ice cream. After all had partaken of the feast, Daniel G. Jones, as toastmaster, presided, and read addresses. The success of the affair was largely due to the committee: Daniel G. Jones, T. L. Williams, R. W. Taylor, M. J. McHale and A. Glynski. The officers of the society are as follows: Past archon, W. W. Jones; archon, Hugh O'Boyle; president, Arthur H. O'Boyle; George Zimmerman; inspector, John F.
