

A Good Way With Women.

I WAS sitting alone in the tent, watching the others play tennis. At least I professed to be watching them. As a matter of fact, I was day-dreaming. The dream—may be well confess it—was about Bob Chalmers and myself. He had paid me marked attention during the fortnight that he had been staying in the neighborhood.

Some one roused me by slogging a ball into the tent. When I had thrown it out and settled down again, I noticed that a couple of men were talking on the bench just outside. One voice was dear old Colonel Wardle's. The other belonged to a stranger—the gentleman who was staying with him, I suppose.

"Just fancy Bob Chalmers coming down here!" said the stranger. "I shouldn't have thought there was anything at Faraway to attract him." I smiled contentedly. He had seemed to find something.

"Oh!" said the colonel. "I don't know. If he likes a country life, you see?" "I shouldn't think it was the least bit of a life. He's a regular society man, knows all the best people."

"Does he?" I should hardly have thought so. "You see his wife?" His wife! The tent seemed to whirl round me. I lost the conclusion of the sentence, also the reply. When I recovered the visitor was speaking again.

"A niece of Lord Hevington," he said. "A really pretty woman. The belle of her season. He carried her off from a regular crowd of fellows, somehow or other. Quite a love match."

"He always had a good way with women," remarked the colonel, with a laugh. "He had a 'way' with one woman I know."

Wet actually goes about in blue spectacles, owing to some eye trouble. If this is true it is indeed one of the object lessons of the war. How many of the British officers whose sight was scientifically tested before they received their commissions can see as far as the blue-spectacled Dr. Wet?

SURFACE CIVILIZATION.

A Young Zulu Girl Who Couldn't Resist Her Natural Tendencies. Lady Brooke in the Cornhill Magazine. I think quite the most curious instance of the thinness of surface civilization among these Zulu people came to me in the case of a young Zulu girl who had been early left an orphan and had been carefully trained in a clergyman's family.

She proved an excellent nurse and thoroughly trustworthy. The children were devoted to her, especially the baby, who learned to speak Zulu before English, and to throw a reed assegai as soon as he could stand firmly on his little fat legs.

JONAS LONG'S SONS. The Annual Sale of Housefurnishings, Including Two Solid Car Loads of Peerless Enameled and Agate Ware, from one of the Greatest Auction Sales Ever Held in This Country.

Listen and you can hear the jingle of the pans. Can't tell at this writing just how many of the Thirty Thousand Pieces have been sold (we'll know tonight), but even now we can say:

The Selling Has Only Just Begun. It has been the wonder of all comers how such a quantity could be handled here. A mere bagatelle, we think, when you stop to consider the crowds.
