HUBBELL IS UP IN ARMS WANTS TO LEGISLATE AGAINST CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Says the Death of His Wife, Whom He Married in This City, Was the Result of Allowing a Healer to Take Charge of Her Case—She Was Suffering from Appendicitis—Sought the Authorities to Punish the Healers, but Found There Is No Law That Will Reach Them.

Scranton seems determined to keep on figuring in Christian Scientist sensations. In the New York Journal appears a half-page story of a former Scranton man who declares the scientists killed his wife and that he will never rest until he secures legislation which will put a stop to their practice of faith healing.

The man is Captain C. J. Hubbell, inventor and capitalist, who, when in this city during the greater part of the past decade, was interested in the manufacture of a miners' electric lamp and other articles of a like character.

At present he is living in Brooklyn at 116 Kingston avenue, and is vice-president of the Oxycide company, of No. 265 Westchester street, Brooklyn. He is a man of wide acquaintance in the business world and bears an honorable record of service in the Civil war, having won particular renown as executive officer of the gunboat Victory, of the Mississippi squadron.

Mr. Hubbell tells the story of his wife's death and the incidents leading up to it in the following language: "Queenie I called my wife. She was the daughter of a Swedish ironman, her father being an officer in the Swedish navy. My daughter married in New York when we were in Scranton, and in that way I and my future wife were brought together.

MARRIED IN SCRANTON. We were married in Scranton on February 20, 1891. I took my wife to Europe for a trip. We lived in London for a year and then returned and boarded in Paterson, N. J. We stayed with a Mrs. Gray and a man named Miller, a mental healer, was a constant visitor to the house. My wife always passed a cordiality for the scientist, and Miller explained to her the process of mental healing.

ALL WAS QUIET. I left them there together and sat smoking in my dining room. It was very quiet. An hour passed and then another, and I could hear no sound from the room. "What is the name?" I asked. "Leonard," he answered. "I took him into my wife's room and said to her: 'Queenie, here is Mr. Leonard.'

WON'T STAND A RIGID TEST DR. McLEOD ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MIRACLES.

They Bear No Resemblance to Bible Miracles, He Says, and Simply Show That Some Have Given Head to "Seducing Spirits"—A Comparison of the Miracles Performed by Christ and of the Cures Which Are Said to Be Wrought by the Christian Scientists.

Rev. Dr. James McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, last night gave the third of a series of sermons on Christian Science, taking for his theme, "Christian Science Doctrine of Miracles." He spoke as follows:

A MIRACLE DEFINED. It is significant that not one of the inspired writers was authorized to define a miracle. They simply record the facts, and allow the miracle to speak for themselves. Definitions are admirable for the sake of precision, and for the purpose of discussion, but even if we had a divinely inspired definition of a miracle it would scarcely add anything to its value as evidence for the truth of the Christian religion.
