

Analysis of Yesterday's Municipal Election.

At yesterday's city election common councilmen for the regular body were elected in all of the odd numbered wards and commoners for the expanded second class city council in the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twentieth wards.

A school director was elected in the Fifth ward and aldermen in the Fourteenth, Sixteenth and Twentieth wards. A judge and inspectors of election and a register of voters was elected in each voting district in the city. With reference to the regular common council yesterday's election resulted as follows:

First ward—John McDonald, R., re-elected. Third ward—James Haggerty, D., re-elected. Fifth ward—Albert P. Lewis, R., re-elected. Seventh ward—John J. Ruane, D., re-elected. Ninth ward—H. E. Paine, R., re-elected. Eleventh ward—Fred Phillips, D., re-elected. Thirteenth ward—Alfred Harvey, R., re-elected. Fifteenth ward—William Lewis, R., re-elected. Seventeenth ward—Luther Keller, R., re-elected. Nineteenth ward—Julius Troy, D., re-elected. Twentieth ward—M. J. Conolly, D., re-elected.

This will give the Republicans nine members and the Democrats twelve, a gain of one for the latter, due to the defeat of William J. Smith in the Nineteenth ward by Julius Troy.

In the Ninth ward a nice question arises. H. E. Paine and D. B. Partridge were nominated by the Republicans for common councilmen, but it was not specified as to which of them should be the candidate for the odd council. H. E. Paine was a candidate to succeed himself in the body, but Mr. Partridge received more votes than him. In the Thirteenth there is a similar condition of affairs, only there was an understanding between Messrs. Harvey and Sykes that the former should be considered as the candidate for the regular body regardless of the number of votes cast.

The men elected to the expanded common council follow:

This is a total of eleven Republicans and six Democrats.

A Quiet Election Day

It is many years since such public apathy has been displayed at a local election as was manifested yesterday. The day was a delightful one from morning till night, and the opportunity presented of choosing good men and true for the common council, which has obtained rather a bad name by reason of the fact that the Municipal league secured the indictment and resignation of eight of its members, was a splendid one.

The citizens, however, evidently decided that they had done their full duty in coming out to the primaries to nominate the men who yesterday ran for office.

The aldermanic contests in the Fourteenth, Sixteenth and Twentieth wards and the fight for common council in the Eleventh furnished practically the only enthusiasm and liveliness of the day. The polling places in each of these three wards were surrounded with large throngs of the friends and supporters of the rival candidates, and much buttonholing and persuasive argument was indulged in.

In the Sixteenth ward, which is one of the most uncertain ballwicks in the city, being now represented in council by a Democrat and a Republican, an earnest and aggressive battle was waged between Joseph Kline, the Republican candidate, and Attorney M. J. Ruddy, the Democrat. Carriages were used in great numbers and every possible effort was made to get out the vote.

There were six aldermanic candidates in the Twentieth ward, a Democratic stronghold. Five were Democrats, but four had filed independent nomination papers and each had a separate and distinct faction at his back plugging for his election. The result was "dire confusion." The polls were surrounded by excited groups of men representing each of the six candidates, but nothing more serious than long-drawn-out words was resulted.

matter to get the citizens out at all to exercise their right to vote. In the Seventh ward it was the same way. Up in the Thirteenth, Independent Candidate A. Krugerman made a hard fight to burst through the stairway line, but was met with great resistance.

In the First, Second and Third wards in North Scranton the vote cast was light as compared with that cast last fall.

In the Fourth, Fifth, Fifteenth and Twenty-first wards in West Scranton, almost shocking disinterestedness was displayed. The election officers in many of the districts had so little to do that they became drowsy and would be almost off in the land of Nod until aroused by a prospective voter.

There were ties in two of the three contests in the First district of the Eighth ward and the third was decided by one vote. W. A. Raub, the undertaker, and Frank O'Hara, the cigar dealer, whose place of business is next door but one to Raub's, were tied at 32 votes for register. It is claimed that the county commissioners are empowered to appoint when a tie occurs for this office, but this is not from a legal authority. Five years ago Mr. Raub and Mr. O'Hara's brother, Joseph O'Hara, were tied for the same office. It was arranged they should take a turn-about at doing the work, and share the proceeds.

Rufus Bryant and Samuel Jerkowitz were also tied at 32 for the office of inspector. They will toss up a coin to decide which shall be majority inspector. Druggist John J. Loftus, who is one of the city's most renowned jokers, owes his defeat to a joke. He was running against Joseph Greenberger, Republican, for judge of election. Charles Moore, of whose residence in the district there is some doubt was offering to vote, and Loftus, who is his close personal friend, said he would not challenge him. Moore voted, and, for the joke of the thing, voted against Loftus. His was the only split ticket in all the districts that were cast and his vote for Greenberger defeated Loftus.

What was probably the liveliest fight in the city was that over the office of alderman in the Sixteenth ward. Attorney M. J. Ruddy, Democrat, and Joseph J. Klein, Republican, a solid business man, were the contestants. They and their friends had been campaigning for a month and yesterday from early morning until the booths closed they had scores of husters scurrying through all the highways and byways of the ward bringing in the vote. The result was that a vote almost as large as that cast at the presidential election was polled.

The cosmopolitan character of the ward and its comparatively large "independent" vote left the result in doubt until the returns were announced. There was surprise even among Ruddy's most sanguine supporters at the size of his plurality, 183 votes. Several lively exchanges between champions of either side occurred during the day and threats of arrest for illegal voting were freely made.

John McDonald, Republican, will be his own successor in common council, and John J. Evans and T. W. Thomas, also Republicans, were elected as members of the to be enlarged council. M. J. Clark, Democrat, made a warm fight for one of the seats.

P., Register, J. H. Jones, R., 57; Register, John Flattery, D., 117; John Eastman, R., 52.

Twelfth Ward.

In the First district of the Twelfth ward, a lively scene was enacted at the closing of the polls. Each and every election officer had his own ideas as to what course should be taken in counting the vote and the effect of so much individuality nearly precipitated a free-for-all fight.

Just as the dispute was becoming so animated that the participants were on the verge of blows, Judge of Election James Carroll prevented the threatened outbreak by grasping the ballot box by the handles and carrying it to police headquarters in the city hall.

Carroll deposited his heavy burden, told Sergeant Ridgway that the citizens of the First district of the Twelfth ward did not consider themselves able to cope with the question of computing the ballot and were satisfied to let court settle the differences and walked off without further explanation.

In the Second district, the board did not post the result of the election up to a late hour and refused to give out any figures. Only election officers were chosen in that ward.

Common Council—Three to Elect. Id. 3d. 3d. Total. W. J. Smith, R. 126 92 416. W. Janosen, R. 64 38 43 30-175. J. Corlier, R. 57 34 45 60-190. Joseph Boese, D. 108 121 117 99-145. Charles Graf, D. 107 119 128 105-212. Julius Troy, D. 74 103 122 91-292.

Eighteenth Ward.

There was a peculiar condition of affairs in the Eighteenth ward yesterday. Because of the fight between the rival factions of the Democracy, none of the candidates got on the official ballot and all had to run on stickers. Only election officers were chosen.

District Officers. Judge of Election, James Soone, D., 90; Michael Nolan, D., 4; Inspector, Thomas O'Grady, D., 30; John Clark, D., 30; John Michael, R., 35; Register, Edward Mulchrone, D., 80; Patrick Duffy, D., 62.

Nineteenth Ward.

Three Democratic common councilmen, Julius Troy, Charles Graf and Joseph Rosar, were elected in the Nineteenth ward by great majorities. The present common councilman from this ward, W. J. Smith, Republican, was a candidate for re-election, but was defeated, although he made by far the best fight of any of the Republican candidates.

Common Council—Three to Elect. Id. 3d. 3d. Total. W. J. Smith, R. 126 92 416. W. Janosen, R. 64 38 43 30-175. J. Corlier, R. 57 34 45 60-190. Joseph Boese, D. 108 121 117 99-145. Charles Graf, D. 107 119 128 105-212. Julius Troy, D. 74 103 122 91-292.
