The ladies of the Tabernacle church, of South Hyde Park avenue, conducted their eleventh annual dinner and concert last evening, and as usual were unable to accommodate the enormous crowd. CONTAGION AND INFECTION.

La Grippe Is Infectious but Not Contagious. Contagious diseases are communicated from one person to another, infectious diseases are conveyed through the air.

Smallpox is a contagious disease; La Grippe is infectious. When an epidemic of the grip is prevailing it is in the air we breathe and no one is safe.

The only safeguard is to keep the system in the highest possible condition of health and on the first appearance of a cold in the head to use some safe antiseptic like Stuart's Catarrh Tablets freely, a tablet taken every hour or two for a couple of days will be sufficient to break up the attack.

La Grippe attacks the weakest part of the system, it may be the lungs, heart, liver, stomach or kidneys, but wherever it finally locates it almost invariably starts with cold in the head and throat or in other words, the direct attack at the beginning is acute catarrh.

This is the reason Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have been so successful in breaking up attacks of grip. The antiseptic properties of the remedy destroy the germs before the whole system is thoroughly infected.

Dr. Annett says: Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being free from cocaine and harmful drugs should be freely used at this time of the year on the first appearance of grip symptoms.

They check the excessive catarrhal secretions, stop the fever and prevent pneumonia.

They are composed of antiseptics and are taken in little children as freely as by adults and with great benefit.

Dr. Lewiston says: My usual prescription for the grip is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which can be found at all drug stores. Keep to the home for a day or two and use the tablets freely, and I have never heard any complaint of failure to cure.

Week days, 7.30 a. m., 4.30 and 7.30 p. m. A cordial invitation to be present for a day or two and use the tablets freely, and I have never heard any complaint of failure to cure.

The Wyoming Seminary basketball team defeated the Stags by a score of 11 to 7.

One of the most interesting games of basketball ever played in this section was witnessed last night at the Auditorium by a large crowd, when the strong Wyoming Seminary team battled against and defeated the North End Stars.

The Seminary team also downed the Stars two weeks ago at Kingston. The local players were much lighter than the visitors, who have held the championship in Luzerne county for some time. Last night's match was for the championship of Lackawanna and Luzerne, and resulted in a score of 11-7. The Seminary men played magnificent ball.

The Stars' team was made up of Samuel and Will Davis, Skiffendin, Orlando Jones and Frank Evans.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE. Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accompanied, for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune does not assume responsibility for opinions here expressed.

Stone Cutters Give Their Side of the Case. Editor of the Tribune:—

The charges made this morning in your paper and signed by three members of the Building Trade Council, has been a great insult to our organization, and we cannot stand the right side of a low way of discussion, especially when all of the facts stated in said letter are false. This organization has avoided any publication which would imply the intention of labor association. Our principles are to protect our trade and the industries of this city, where everyone of us, one of us, for the last fifteen years, have made our home, and we have formed a new union, but allow us to state that no Frank Carrol or any other man has formed it. We have formed this union ourselves, and we are glad to say that we are gaining recognition and strength every day. When it was formed we had only eighteen members. Now we have thirty-seven, every one of them as good a workman as can be found in the country, and we are not in the least afraid of any strike against the old union. They joined our union as a sign of protest to the unfair means used by the officials of the Scranton branch of the International Union.

We could not stay in that union and cheer our national organization of money for board and drink by playing the game of strike, when really there was no ground for strike. Let the public understand that the money from the right side of view. Before the strike was ordered both of Carrol's shops were shut down, so consequently the stone cutters from the Green Ridge would be discharged, and we were where the trouble comes in. Those discharged men were officials of the Scranton branch. They made up their mind to take their vengeance for being discharged, and for this reason they ordered a strike and placed a line on the company.

The action took place at a meeting when hardly any of the members were present. The meeting was present, and of course the strike was approved by the members present. At every succeeding meeting we have, in vain, protested against that resolution, but to attention was ever paid to us. Another important fact that disgraced the majority of the branch is that the strike committee appointed was not representing the general sentiment of the body, and were ordered by some members to pay attention to the will of the majority. They refused to do so, and the result of this imposition of a line suspended us to withdraw from the branch and form a local. Now let us justify ourselves.

Some Facts About Them and Doubtless Also Some Fiction. Allen Saenger in Knicker's.

The papers of Greater New York circulate every morning 1,000,000 copies, of which the World and Journal each supplies 300,000, and the Herald 150,000. The combined circulation of the other papers may be computed from that. The circulation of the evening papers is about the same in total, but fluctuates like a thermometer. A famous tragedy or trial will make a change of 100,000. The Spanish war was the greatest era for the evening papers. Just previous to its beginning Mr. Hearst secured one of Mr. Pulitzer's best men at a salary of $15,000 per year, and a percentage on the basis of circulation. His receipts for the first month of the war amounted to $25,000, so great was the increase in circulation. Each of these New York journals spends about $1,000,000 a year for paper, the quantity consumed being 31,875 tons. To furnish this, a village of 2,000 souls is employed year in and year out, and every day ten acres of surface trees are ground off to make paper. In the World building, 1,500 men are employed at salaries ranging from $4 a week to $12,000 a year. In twelve months $7,000,000 of money passes through the hands of the cashier.

The yellow journalism is successful from a financial standpoint. The profits of the Herald last year amounted to nearly seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or about two thousand dollars per day. Mr. Pulitzer's net profits for the same time were about a hundred thousand dollars, his income having fallen off since the World dropped from two cents to one. The Journal, it is generally understood, came out even, although Mr. Hearst might have made money had he not continued to invest money in pushing his circulation. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Pulitzer are each worth twenty-five million dollars, all of which has been made in the newspaper business. The Hearst estate, on which Mr. Hearst can draw indefinitely, it seems, is worth more than thirty million dollars, and six million dollars, it is estimated, have already been invested in the New York Journal and Chicago American, without any profits as yet.

All hands on a yellow journal are driven at a desperate pace, and little wonder that mistakes are made. The marvel is that there are no more. I know of one reporter on the Evening Journal, Mr. George B. Pitt, who recently worked thirty-nine hours continuously without sleep, on arriving at the office at 4 a. m. he was set to rewriting from the morning paper and taking down stories as they came in over the telephone. At 1 o'clock he was ordered to Philadelphia, where he wrote two columns and wired it back for the next morning's paper, and at the same time received a message to have two columns more ready for the evening paper. The latter he wrote in a baggage car coming home by the first light of a single lantern and sitting on a milk can. An artist with him made pictures at the same time. The moment he reached his office a United States mail-car ran foul in the bay, and Mr. Pitt, being expert in nautical affairs, was straightway assigned to cover the story in a steam launch, remaining out in a driving rain all day, and called upon to write up a society event on his return. In 24 hours he wrote in all 17,000 words.

The Real Riders. The name of highly power remain in England, and that is about all. They afford the cause for so splendid a display as marked the progress of the royalties from the palace to the home of lords, but the real riders of the empire sit in the house of commons—Brooklyn Eagle.

We have not said a word against that union, while they, on the other hand, have been talking day after day, through the press against us. We have not the few notorious leaders that are so fond of strikes and very little work.

We would like to call the attention of the public at large that we are not working for any such wages as they have stated in your paper, but are working at the same old wages, getting our standard wages and we enjoy every right that any other body of union men possess. In fact we have eight hours for a day's work, and in some cases an increase of 30 per cent over last year's wages.

As we all belonged to the same union there was supposed to exist a feeling of brotherly love between us, but instead we learn from your authority that the president and other officials of that branch, while they pretended to do so in our presence, have secretly been mounting a fight to drive all of us out of the city. That is very nice indeed, for a brother to make such a remark, especially from people who came from the West a year ago. Could not the same people do so if it was necessary? We feel far superior to them and are better citizens than they are, and have just as much right, in fact more, if we continue to make our home here and earn an honest living.

We hope that the Building Trades Council will investigate this matter before they take further action, and see that the interest of the stone cutters living in this city will be protected and not kept outside work away from this city.

J. Callahan, President, John L. Callahan, Secretary, Scranton Stone Cutters' Association.

OBITUARY. Joseph D. Lloyd. One of Scranton's most representative men, Joseph D. Lloyd, died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, at the family residence, 226 North Main street. The remains were taken to the late home last night, where interment will be made.
