New York for six weeks has been taking he laughing cure for the blues and there have een large and happy andiences giggling uproar-ously over everything that was done by Marle Dressler and her clever associates in T.Mint Prinnt," which comes to the Lyceum theater next Friday evening. It was certainly no mis-print on the part of the critics who voted the piece such an emphatic success. It is non-ense, pure and simple, but the best of us like no sense, and the chance to laugh and grow fat is not always among the possibilities. Miss Dressler is a whole show in herself, and in her breaster is a whole show in nerself, and it her latest offering she is said to have eclipsed the records which she made in "The Lady Slavey" and other pieces in which she has appeared. The company is a clever one. The company is a clever one.

The comedians are genuinely funny, and men who have their names on the programme, and do nothing but draw breath and salaries, are not with this aggregation: while the girls are pretty and can sing and dance. The play is emplatically a beauty show, and the good looks of the young ladies in the chorus—they are really young—and the elegance of the gowns which they divalar as sheady a matter of town they display, are already a matter of town talk. With such a star as Miss Dressler, and such people in her support as Nettie Black, Zella Frank, Robert Harris and William II. Lyis not strange that "Miss Prinnt" is the ell it olliest play of the year.
