Mr. Morgans, her brother, was present, and when asked if he had not promised to take care of his sister without the assistance of the board he said he much relief for her, but only a few small things. Mr. McCabe said that he and Mr. Lynch had gone to the poor farm and proffered Mrs. Bevan a home there and a room was fitted there up for her and her husband. Mr. Morgans was asked what about the four articles of her furniture that were missing when she left the farm and Mr. Mordid not know. Mr. Me-Cabe and Mr. Morgans had a little dispute about what became of the Bevans' hings, but no satisfaction was ob-

Hultzmeisted addressed the board in regard to the homestead his father had signed over to the poor was not necessary for his father to go to the poor farm, as he could live with his children and have his choice of three or four homes. The members of the poor board told young Mr. Hultzmeister that the board father lived and after his death it tory. would revert to his children. A discussion of an informal nature ensued as to the house, its tenants and various damages done to both.

McMillan asked Hultzmeister what he wanted to be done. The latter was a little indefinite in his reply and the matter was passed withou conclusion. McCobe reported that the steward had hired a man at the farm for the summer at the rate of $17 a month until Oct. 8. The bills of the auditors were pre--- sented, they figuring a day's work of six hours at $3, making $99 for the three. It was moved to lay the bill over to the next meeting. Carried. Williams read a letter from Collector

Passmore calling attention to unpaid taxes of $3.41 on the Hultzmeister estate; also a letter from Attorney Buttract between Stewart Clune, of the poor house and farm, and the poor board, which will be entered into by the parties. An amendment was made that the poor directors should be forbidden to parchase or receive as a gift anything from the farm. As Chairman McCabe said: "The directors must not be able to get anything at the farm, with money or without , money." A formidable stack of bilts was then read by Secretary Williams, some of so which were dated as far back as Deseember. Orders for many applicants for relief were sent in, some of which "O. was then taken up, resulting in a tie vote of three each for Drs. Malaun and M. L. Bailey. McMillan said the board must have a doctor and moved that Dr. Kelly be employed until the deadlock is broken, at the same rate of salary he received last year. This proposal also received a tie vote and the board was as bad off as ever. A great dispute between McMillan, Mchad not, but that he did not want Cabe and Lynch, which waxed warm, to the fever point, arose over the action of McCabe in sending a patient to Dr. Malaun. McCabe's action was consured by McMillan and Lynch, and McCabe shook his finger impressively in their faces and sharted at the top of his lungs that is was none of their business, and that no bill would come to the board for this patient. The dispute lasted about ten minutes and was a "hot number." Burke made a few remarks about a boy named Sheridan, who is suffering from a hip trouble and whom Dr. Gilies says should go to the hospital at once, in order to prevent the boy's being lamed for life. Full power to act was given to the Fourth ward meniswaggered into restaurant on North Main avenue about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. His eyes were encircled with red rims, as if he had been having a night of it "with the b'hoys." A smile of quiet contentment illuminated his features, and he had what might be delicately described as "an edge" on. There were not many in the place he entered. Meeting an old acquaintance, he gave an invitation, "Have one, Frank?" The whitejacketed man behind the bar took the order and placed two glittering amber-tinted glasses on the smooth plank.

"Say, Frank, I played in great luck last night. You know the poker room kept by Prof. H-? Well, I was there all night and cashed in $7 worth of chips this morning," and then followed a description of the narrator's cleverness and of the kinds of cards he held, and to exorcise any doubts in the listener's mind he reached down in his vest pocket and hauled out a little wad of "ones" and 'twos."

While he had been absorbed in his tale the door of the restaurant had opened and a woman with wrathful countenance peered in. One glance was enough. With a compression of her lips she recognized the object of her search. A few quick steps and she had the card player by the coat collar. He turned around with his winnings still in his hand, but when he saw who had him he turned pale, his knees knocked together, and he made an ineffectual effort to hide the money.

"Well, here you be, be you, and I sitting up all night waiting for you to come home and not a thing to eat for breakfast this morning for the children or me. Where'd you git that money? "I wen it, my dear, playing poker, and I was just going to bring-

HAVE WON THEIR DEMANDS. The Delaware and Hudson Company

Grants Machinists Extra Pay. The committee of machinists who journeyed to Albany on Tuesday evening, as announced exclusively in The Tribune the next day, have now returned home, well satisfied with the results of their mission. The committee was composed of Messrs. Brodie, Neuser and Sullivan. They left on the 4.33 train on Tuesday afternoon, their object in going to the Empire state being to lay the matter of their discharge before Superintendent of Motive Power John R. Slack.

Through some misunderstanding Mr. Slack started from Albany to come here at just about the time the men started from Carbondale, arriving in this city at 10.01 o'clock on Tuesday night. The trains bearing Mr. Slack and the committee passed each other about half-way between Carbondale and Albany. The next morning Mr. Slack went out to the locomotive shops, had a talk with Mr. Rennie, and then came to the Watt building, where he had a conference with the locked-out men. On learning that a committee was awaiting him in Albany, Mr. Slack sent word for them to await his arrival there. All day Wednesday he was around town investigating and before night he became convinced that the men had a just grievance. He left on the 4.33 train on Wednesday night, and on Thursday morning he met the local committee in his office. They were assured that all the trouble would be adjusted satisfactorily, and at 4.25 Thursday afternoon left Albany, reaching here at 10.01 that night.

It is now confidently expected that the forty-two discharged machinists will be reinstated in their employment on Monday morning, with a rate of time and a quarter for all overwork.

More Men Discharged.

Some of the men who are employed at the locomotive shops in the capacity of handy men to do odd jobs, were discharged yesterday morning. These men work in what the machinists term McMinn's gang," under the foremanship of George McMinn. They were set to work yesterday morning removing ashes from the pits. This they refused to do, saying that it was a "Hungarian's job." They were threatened with being discharged, when three of the six men weakened and went to work. The other three refused to do this work and were laid off. It is said by the discharged men that they will be joined by the others this morning.
