FIRE ON PIKE STREET.

Flurry of Excitement Caused by Blaze in Deserted Building.

An alarm turned in from Box 46, South Main street and Eighth avenue, at 5 o'clock last evening, caused quite a flurry of excitement in that section of the city.

The alarm came from the section adjacent to the business portion of the city, and there was a wild rush of anxious persons to that locality.

The place was occupied up to about a month ago by parties who left behind them a quantity of useless clothing.

There was also a cot or couch on the upper floor, and it was among this rubbish the blaze commenced.

The origin of the flames can only be conjectured. When the streams were turned on, the flames were readily subdued, though they had eaten their way into an adjoining building, which was also unoccupied.

The house being untenanted for a number of weeks, and the presence of the flames among the collection of rubbish, also the circumstance that the house was not the rendezvous of vagrants, lead to the belief that it was fired by someone.

The building is owned by J. W. Franks, of Oakford court, Scranton. Insurance, the exception of some damage, was carried by the owner.

CARBONDALE'S NAMESAKES.

Other Places That Bear the Name of the Pioneer City.

Some hitherto unknown interesting facts have been brought forward since the city has commenced preparations for the centennial celebration.

Among these is the knowledge that there are probably a dozen places in the country bearing the name of Carbondale, and the fact that most of these places have been named after our own Carbondale gives an added interest to this discovery.

Natives of the Pioneer City whose propensities for travel have taken them to widely separated sections of the United States in a spirit of native pride have christened these different localities in honor of their birthplace and the result has been that the name has been fostered until it found a place on the postal guide as a postoffice town.

The post-offices bearing the name of Carbondale are as follows: Carbondale, Garfield county, Colo.; Carbondale, Jackson county, Ill.; Carbondale, Warren county, Ind.; Carbondale, Polk county, Ia.; Carbondale, Osage county, Kansas; Carbondale, Menominee county, Mich.; Carbondale, Athens county, Ohio.

The committee in charge of the centennial has decided to commission the officials of these towns to erect a tablet in honor of their namesake's celebration and the secretary has forwarded the following invitation to each of the towns named:

"Carbondale, Lackawanna county, Pennsylvania, sends greeting to its namesake of the same name on the anniversary as a city. Settled in 1827 it is proud of the distinction of being the mother city of seven municipalities in the United States which bear its name. It was the fourth town in the West and the first city chartered March 15, 1851.

"Our citizens propose to celebrate its semi-centennial with a mammoth demonstration on Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4. Through this association they extend to you individually and collectively a most hearty invitation to be present and take part in the ceremonies.

"We expect to entertain many dignitaries of our state on that occasion and you were among the number. Please attend at the time and place as invited to the residents of your place, some of whom may have lived in our city in the years that are passed."

ONE DOLLAR EACH WEEK

COMMENCE NOW TO LAY ASIDE THIS SMALL SUM.

Cyclists All Over the Country Are Forming Touring Clubs and Saving Their Money for the Purpose of Wheeling to the Pan-American Exposition.

Clubs or parties formed for the purpose of touring a wheel to Buffalo this summer are now being organized in a number of localities. Some of those parties are of the "personally conducted" order—a certain stipulated amount being paid, in installments or otherwise, to the organizer or conductor of the party who assumes all responsibility and attends to all the business details. In other cases, clubs are formed on the co-operative plan, officers are appointed or elected and weekly or monthly payments made to the club treasurer.

Several important points must be considered in planning for a successful club cycling tour. In the first place, there should be, as a rule, a large enough party to create enthusiasm from mere numbers, and the feeling that the trip is an event. Twenty or thirty persons constitute a good number for a club tour. A party of this size commands attention and respect from landlords, and yet is not so numerous that the members can not be comfortably housed and fed. The manager of a party can not well look after more than 20 or 25 individuals unless the trip is a short one, and where large hotels can be reached each day.

On the selection of the route, depends much of the success of the tour. The best route is not always the shortest. Due consideration must be given to the grades, condition of the roads and side paths, scenic, historic and other points of interest, and last but not least, to the hotel accommodations on route. In addition to the information regarding the best routes and conditions of the roads, the principal railroads, if, however, in planning a tour, information is desired that is not to be obtained from other sources at your command, you are advised to apply to the Publicity Department of the Pan-American Exposition.

ONE DAY'S RUN.

Set each day's run at 50 miles and under—under is better. In order to reach a certain point, a few long runs may be necessary, but do not think the average wheelman can ride 75 miles a day for a week, and spend his evenings "doing the sights." If each day's run is stated in the itinerary, be sure it is never underestimated. If it should be when you get to the point in regard to every mile which has to be wheeled. This amusing trait is peculiar to cyclists. They claim to like to ride—and they really do—but compel them to ride a mile more than they expect to, and they immediately become very impatient.

After deciding on the size of the party, the route to be followed, and the number of miles to be ridden each day, select the various stopping places, and enter into correspondence immediately with the proprietors of the hotels, in order to secure reduced rates from landlords, but rather to insist on only two in a room with separate beds, if possible, and extra good meals. Landlords are often ready to give reduced rates, but if they do, they are apt to try and get even in some other way which may make matters unpleasant. On the contrary, if they are asked for no reduction, but for a little extra bill of fare, they become sadder to treat you well, and everything will run smoothly.

On the wheel, there should be taken as little baggage as possible if a comfortable tour is the thing desired. The bulky baggage of the party should be sent ahead each day by express. In addition, each member of the party should be advised to forward to the hotel, before leaving, a supply of ordinary clothing before leaving home. This done, he will find his visit to the Pan-American exposition made much more comfortable and enjoyable.

Nothing costs so much as a long ride, and getting into his regular clothes. Furnish "stickers" with the name and address of the Buffalo hotel written plainly thereon, in order to expedite delivery of baggage, or to enable same to be easily traced if mis-carried.

EXPENSES PER DAY.

In organizing a party for a tour to Buffalo, it will be well to estimate the expenses per day as follows: $3 per day for hotel expense (about $2.50 per day is the average hotel bill, the other half dollar will meet incidental expenses that are continually cropping out, and help to pay for necessities and printing). To this add the amount required for railroad and steamboat fares, and other known expenses, and then add ten dollars for unforeseen contingencies. Of course less would do, and a great deal more can be spent.

Making advance arrangements not only entails considerable care and labor upon the promoter or manager of the tour, but renders it necessary for the party to make each day's journey on schedule time. Circumstances, however, sometimes arise which make delays advisable or render progress inconvenient, as for instance, a severe rain storm which may make the roads impassable. In this case it will be necessary to proceed by train or boat to the place appointed for the midway meal and by the same method to the stopping place for the night. Should such deviations from the programme occur the manager will have reason to congratulate himself on his foresight in providing an excess fund for contingencies.

The expense of a tour can be hampered down very fine if it is desired. In many instances $2 per day would be an ample allowance for hotel expenses. This price will get good accommodations in most any part of the country. It is well to remember, however, that the old adage, the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, applies particularly to wheelmen after a long day's run. A man who is hungry and tired needs no food in anything and begins to find fault on the slightest provocation. He will criticize just as freely, whether he has paid a very low price or a high one for the tour. If, however, he finds on arriving at his destination that he has secured a comfortable hotel with abundant bathing facilities, and his luggage awaiting him (thus enabling him, after his bath, and rub down, to make a complete change of clothing from his cap down to his shoes, before dinner), he is apt to think less of the almighty dollar and more of his manager who has so thoroughly prepared for his comfort in advance. Consequently it is wise for the manager to make his estimate high enough to allow him to provide for the contingencies which may arise, affecting the comfort of the members of his party.

After being thus well cared for from day to day, the tourist will, on his return home, reflect with pleasure on the many agreeable incidents enroute, on the varied beauties of Buffalo, the Wheelman's Paradise, on the grand scenery of Niagara Falls and on the manifold glories of the Pan-American exposition.

SERVED A QUEER SENTENCE.

Novel Judgment Passed by a Judge Upon Two Prisoners.

From the Jefferson City Tribune.

Along in the '70's the late Judge Arnold Krokel, the well-known predecessor of Judge Phillips on the federal bench, was holding court at Jefferson City, relates an old-timer, when there appeared before him two men charged and indicted for a violation of the United States laws, one of whom will be called Brown. He was charged with cutting timber on the public domain. Brown was about forty years old and had been reared on the border in Arkansas and never had any opportunities for schooling; hence was unable to read or write. In his endeavor to get a living he had cut timber suitable for making ax handles on the United States lands, which led to his arrest and imprisonment. The Dropped Dead! Heart Disease?

No! Kidney Disease.

Every day people die of so-called "Heart Disease" or apoplexy, but in reality of an unsuspected kidney disorder. Why? Because physicians either are ignorant of its existence, or unwilling to tell the truth.

In the present age there is no more fatal malady than kidney disease. We do not even except consumption of the lungs, for a kidney disease which is allowed to become fully developed is certainly consumption of the kidneys. Kidney disease is often unperceived, as the kidneys have but few
