THE BALL LAST NIGHT.

Knights and Fair Ladies Dance in a

Bower of Flowers. Carbondale council, No. 329, Knights of Columbus, celebrated last evening the third anniversary of its organization by a grand ball, which, for brilliancy of conception and management has not been equalled in Carbendale this season. It was held in the spacious hall in the Burke building and was limited to the members of the order, and their wives, sisters, mothers, sweethearts and feminine triends. The participants began arriving, most of them in carringes, at shout 5.30, and a large throng of interested spectators thronged the vicirily of the main entrance to admire and comment on the beautiful gowns worn by the musts of the knights. The music was furnished by the full Mozart orchestra, which was scated on the large platform at the southerly end of the hall and aimost completely hidden from view by an immense banking of flowers, palms and potted plants. The half was lavishly and without tastefully decorated by flowers, of all descriptions, forms and evergreens. In the large bay window at the northerly end was a beautifully designed banging carden of roses and

A programme of artistic design, with the white, blue, golden and red infanin of the order embessed on the front and showing a list of eightsen curees, was a handsome souvenir.

ffrank D. Ciliford is at the head of council, being worthy grand knight, and Richard Kirwin is deputy grand knight. The gene al committee in charge of last night's delightful function was composed of F. B. Clif-terd, ex-officie; F. R. Devers, chairnami M. J. Hartin, E. H. W. Burke, Thomas L. Gilmartin and Richard

The reception committee comprised John F. O'Rourke, R. H. Kirwin, M. J. Horan, P. F. Coogan, D. L. Walsh, W. U. Philbin, William Peele, John V. Delancy, George W. Keene, William P. Lottus and Thomas F. Martin.

The scene on the ball-room floor was an inspiriting one. The handsome gowns worn by the fair guests, the splendidly Illuminated hall, the fra-grance and beauty of the floral garnishings, all a lifed a justice to the oceasion that was a tremendous factor to the grand success. AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

An Alarm from Box 25 Arouses the Sleeping Citizens.

At 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning an excited individual rushed frantically up to the residence of Dr. C. T. Meaker and rang the door bell with such a clatter that the doctor thought his house was on fire and hastened down to find out if his surmise was correct. The man explained in breathless tones that it wasn't the doctor's house, but one up on the top of the bill, at 49 Grove street, and he wanted the key liberal spirit when the circulars are to the five hox on the corner of Lincoln avenue en! Wyoming street, The doctor surrendered it, and the glarm morning echoes with its brazen clamor. Two minutes after the first stroke of the bell, the two fire companies' hose carts were on their way. The Mitcheils outfit sped through the streets without a bit of noise, but the Columbias wagon came along with a whire and rattle of the gong loud enough to wake every one of the 13,000 sleepers of the city, calling for assistance as it sped up the hill. When they got to Box 25 and found that the fire was half a mile further away, they murvelled at the stupidity of the man who ran all that way to turn in an alarm. the two drivers had go up the hill and the house, followed by a hundred half-clad men and boys, they found that the occupants had quenched the sames before the alarmer had turned in the glarm. Then there was more hearing in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Dlackmore, charged by George Washington Smith with uttering threats, larceny and other things, was held before Alderman Atkinson yesterday afternoon. She was in no ways tamed by her confinement in the city jail over night, and as soon as she got her breath after her camb up the steep ascent of Pike street, she began one of her customary tirades against her accuser, which the alderman tried in vain to suppress. Some of her choicest expletives were enough to cause the foreman of a section gang to turn pale with jealousy, George Washington, a well-known character, told of the midnight row in his home and of how the defendant tried to strangle him and how she pulled cut his whiskers. He such: "She and her husband and my son vere talking, her husband trying to personale her to go hims with him. She had been drinking a good deal, and was pretty well over the bay, when I joined in the talk she grabbed me by the whiskers, shook my head till it rattled, and then threatened to burn me out, to Whiteenp me and to break up all the furriture, and I ran down here to get a warrant for her, I was so seared. Why, Atkinson, you know there ain't three decent men in Carbondale that would try to Whiteenp me."

When the woman was asked what she had to say to all this she spake her mind so freely that the aldermon compelled to hide his face in his docket book to conceal his blushes. He then held her in $200 ball on each of three separate charges, and Constable Moran escorted her to the county
